MAYOR STARTS DRIVE TO CLEAR UP TAX TANGLE

Meeting Will Plan Legislation Today.

Mayor Kelly's campaign to enforce the collection of delinquent taxes, so that public employés may be paid and the local governments may be returned to a firm financial footing, will take definite form today.

At a conference of state, county and city officials to be held this afternoon in his city hall office, the mayor will urge legislation to compel the payment of back tax bills. Another goal of the conference, Mayor Kelly said last night, will be the formulation of a program for standards of government that will prevent a recurrence of the financial difficulties that have crippled the public agencies of the county in the last few years.

Those to attend the conference will include Gov. Horner, who arrived from Springfield last night; State's Attorney Courtney, County Judge Jarecki, several aldermen, a number of bankers and a group of members of the state legislature from the metropolitan area.

Kelly Outlines Aims.

Mayor Kelly, in discussing his plans for the meeting, said it is hoped to get the various governments on a stable working basis and keep them that way.

"First we hope to become united on a legislative program that will care for our present needs," the mayor said. "We need laws that will enforce the payment of taxes. We will discuss plans such as giving the county collector authority to appoint a receiver for delinquent property and let the receiver collect the taxes.

"Our present taxation laws are out of date. Times are different; taxation is different. It is the owners of big buildings who are giving taxing bodies trouble—those who are able to pay but will not. Under the law receivers for buildings should pay taxes out of the first money received, but many times they do not.

Plans to Keep City Solvent.

"It seems that the depression is on the way out and all will be able to pay their taxes soon. It is up to us to prepare a program that will make them feel like paying taxes. That will necessitate plans so that when we borrow our way out this time we'll not go right back in the hole again next year.

"We are also to discuss legislation authorizing joint tax anticipation warrants to cover the whole county, which could be used in payment of all general taxes. Now some warrant buyers look with disfavor on certain local governments and avoid buying any of their warrants. Warrants that would be a first lien against all taxes collected in the county would undoubtedly sell better and the proceeds could be prorated."

MAP 1933 CITY BUDGET

Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the city council finance committee, yesterday announced that he would call the committee together the latter part of this week to begin building the 1933 city budget. The time in which the aldermen can pass a legal appropriation bill expires June 15.

Miscellaneous revenue has been figured at $12,705,000, but what money the city is likely to get from taxation has not yet been figured by the committee's experts. The question has been complicated by the reassessment delay, the pending litigation on the order of the board of tax appeals for a 15 per cent reduction in the 1931 base assessment valuation of homes and small flat buildings, and the statement of Assessor Jacobs that there would be a general 15 per cent cut in 1932 valuations.

51 Millions to Be Available.

In January City Controller Szymczak estimated that the tax revenue would be $38,956,877, which, plus the miscellaneous revenue, would give the committee a total of $51,661,877 against which to appropriate. For comparison, the 1932 budget figure was $54,694,838 and the 1931 budget, passed under a former Republican mayor, was $67,552,961.

However, the late Mayor Cermak warned the aldermen several times that the 1933 budget would have to be drastically cut because of tax delinquencies, and Mayor Kelly has expressed the opinion that it would be unwise to appropriate more money than is likely to come in as revenue.

"It is my guess," said one city budget expert, "that the current budget will be between 44 million dollars and 48 million dollars."

A budget of 48 million dollars would be $6,694,838 under that of last year.

FIND JUDICIARY NOMINEES FOR JUNE 5 WET VOTE

Drive Against Delay to Open Today.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The drive to put repeal of prohibition to a ratifying vote in Illinois on June 5, the day of the judicial elections, is to be renewed at Springfield today. The aim of the repealists is passage of the bill by the legislature this week.

The first batch of replies from downstate bench candidates, received yesterday by the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, was favorable to setting June 5 as the time for electing delegates to a convention to ratify or reject the twenty-first amendment, which repeals the eighteenth amendment.

Last week the state senate, in voting to defer the repeal vote for a year, used as an alibi a rumor that downstate judges were averse to a vote on the wet and dry question June 5, on the ground that it would bring out a larger vote than usually turns out for a bench election.

Canvass Judicial Candidates.

Skeptical of this excuse, the women repealists started a canvass by wire of the judicial candidates. The first answers yesterday were favorable to action in June. By tonight the organization expects to have responses enough to indicate the attitude in most of the seventeen Circuit court districts downstate.

A survey of the probable repeal strength in the house was made yesterday by the women. Mrs. Leslie Wheeler and Mrs. William H. Mitchell, co-chairman of the Illinois division, and Mrs. George E. Brennan, chairman of the political action committee, of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, estimated that the house has a possible repeal strength of 123 votes. To pass the bill as an emergency measure 102 votes are necessary in the house and 34 in the senate.

The women declared that according to their records there are 46 Republicans and 77 Democrats in the house who had either voted in favor of liberal legislation in the past or had answered favorably a letter sent them last fall asking whether they would work and vote for prompt submission of the repeal question.

Michigan First to Ratify.

Early in the session the talk was for making Illinois the first to ratify. Michigan has been first, the delegate vote in convention standing 99 to 1 for ratification. Wisconsin, which has elected delegates solidly for repeal, will hold its ratifying convention tomorrow, while 24 other states have made arrangements for conventions. Meanwhile the Illinois legislature has been stalled on the question.

The program of the repealists is for the senate to pass the bill tomorrow as it stands, calling for a repeal vote one year from now, then rush it to the house and advance it to second reading. On second reading Wednesday it is planned to amend it to set the date for June 5 and then to pass the bill in the house Thursday. Thence it would go to joint conference for senate adoption of the June 5 house amendment.

Plea to Repealists.

In estimating the immediate action strength in the house the women's organization last night put out a plea to "every one of the 213,717 women who are members of our organization in Illinois, as well as all other men and women who favor repeal and the opportunity to vote on it on June 5, to write or wire their senator and three representatives in care of the state house at Springfield asking them to be present when this legislation is brought up this week and to vote in favor of its immediate passage.

"It is necessary that this legislation be passed this week if we are to have the opportunity to vote on repeal on June 5."

In addition to a delegation from the women's organization, officials of men's organizations active against prohibition are expected to be in Springfield for the drive. Among them are Col. Ira L. Reeves and Capt. William Biesel of the Crusaders and Capt W. W. Bayley of the Association Opposed to the 18th amendment.

THE MUSHROOM CROP

HARRY LYMAN, PAINTER OF RACE HORSES, IS DEAD

Harry Lyman, 77 years old, famous as a painter of race horses a quarter of a century ago and friend of many outstanding sportsmen, died last night in the county hospital of cancer. Beneath his pillow were newspaper clippings and other data telling of his earlier days. Among the material was a brief sketch of the Lyman family dating back to revolutionary war days.

Lyman lived with friends at 1859 Washington boulevard, close to the Chicago Stadium. This proximity kept him in touch with old friends, among them Nate Lewis, matchmaker at the Stadium. Lyman, according to Lewis, refused offers to be taken to a private hospital, but finally consented to go to the county.

"The last horse that Lyman painted was Reigh Count," said Lewis. "Before that he had done Exterminator and In Memoriam. He also had commissions from the Widener family of Philadelphia. Under the pillow of his bed in the county hospital was a letter from the Wideners referring to an inclosed check for $750 for one painting."

Lyman was a friend of James J. Corbett, John L. Sullivan, James J. Jeffries and others. He was born in Rockford, the son of Dr. Charles Lyman, a civil war hero.

PAYS ALL DEBTS, BREAKS SILENCE AFTER 11 YEARS

Wilmington, Del., April 23.—[Special.]—Acquaintances of Melvin Train, a garage hand, were amazed last night to hear him speak. He broke what he declared was an "eleven year silence" when he walked to a corner mail box and deposited a letter.

In 1921, Train explained, he was engaged in business in Boston with a brother-in-law. He induced several friends to invest their money in the enterprise. Within a year his brother-in-law absconded with the money, he said, and committed suicide in New York after the funds had been dissipated.

Train asserted that he made a vow that he would not speak to any one until he had reimbursed all who lost in the deal. Last night he mailed the last check in payment of his debt.

Secor Takes a Short Cut to Milwaukee

Dominick De Santo, an alert railroad signalman, snatched Secor Cunningham Jr. from the seat of his automobile early yesterday in North Chicago a moment before the car was demolished by a speeding North Western railroad train. Cunningham, who is 41 years old and lives at 1347 State parkway, is vice president of the Commonwealth Edison company and is prominent socially.

In addition to wrecking the automobile, the collision knocked the bung out of a ten gallon keg which Cunningham was convoying to Milwaukee, and splashed its contents out on the track ballast. Sergt. Fred Ebler of the North Chicago police, who recovered and sniffed the bung, reported that the contents of the keg seemed to have been of excellent quality.

On Watch in Signal Tower.

De Santo was on watch in his signal tower, at 2d avenue near the North Chicago station of the railroad, about 3 a. m. yesterday when he saw the lights of an automobile advancing in Marquette avenue. Marquette avenue is a continuation of Sheridan road, which turns west and crosses the railroad tracks a few blocks south, at 22d street.

De Santo judged, rightly, it proved later, that the driver had gone astray at the crossing farther south and got off the main highway. The motorist swerved at 2d avenue and started across the tracks to regain Sheridan road.

At that moment there was the scream of a whistle and the headlights of the early northbound mail train, known to commuters as the "paper train," hove in view around a curve at Great Lakes, half a mile south. Then, to De Santo's consternation, the motorist skittered off the crossing and headed north on the railroad instead of the highway, his car bouncing over the ties of the track on which the flyer was approaching.

Waves His Lantern.

The signalman snatched a lantern and ran down from his tower. When he reached the tracks the onrushing train, drawn by two locomotives, was only a few hundred yards away. He waved his lantern but saw that the engineers could not stop in time. Dropping the lantern, he sprinted up the track after the motorist.

Cunningham, for it was he, had apparently come to the conclusion that he had wandered from the most direct path to Milwaukee, for he had slowed his automobile to a snail's pace. Soon De Santo raced up abreast of it.

"Jump!" he yelled. "Jump before you get killed."

The locomotive whistled 50 yards behind, drowning his warning.

With one hand the doughty signalman wrenched open the automobile door. With the other he seized Cunningham by the collar and gave a mighty heave. Both men flew clear of the doomed automobile, tripped, and fell safely beside the right of way. At that moment the forward locomotive, fire streaking from its brakes, plowed into the car.

The train roared past, scattering accessories off the automobile until it came to a stop a thousand feet ahead. A police squad appeared and with the train crew began to pry into the wreckage for bodies. They found only the keg. Later they came upon De Santo and Cunningham. The signalman was a trifle jittery over his flirtation with death, but his companion, still planted on the railway roadbed, was possessed of great tranquility.

Police Captain Joseph Potocky, somewhat shaken himself by the affair, shook Cunningham's shoulder.

"Where did you think you were going?" he demanded.

"Milwaukee," said Cunningham.

Place Cunningham in Cell.

Cunningham was placed in a cell in the North Chicago police station. About noon he revived and identified himself. He was taken before Justice of the Peace John Nelson. There he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated and paid a fine of $50. He returned to his Chicago home later, where he was reached by telephone.

"We understand you had an accident this morning up in North Chicago," he was told.

"Yes," he replied.

"Can you tell us anything about it?" he was asked.

"No," he replied, quite pleasantly.

MRS. ROOSEVELT SCRAMBLES EGGS FOR M'DONALD

Washington, D. C., April 23.—[Special.]—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, who left England's shores a week ago amid a pompous send-off, including the royal good wishes of King George, ate scrambled eggs in the White House tonight, the eggs being scrambled by America's first lady. Mrs. Roosevelt was following a Sunday night custom of the 28 years of her marriage.

Unofficial reports indicated that he enjoyed it—the eggs. Sitting at the table with Mr. MacDonald were his daughter, Ishbel; President Roosevelt; the President's wife—who doubled as cook and diner—and the President's mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt.

Then Men Talk Finance.

The President and the prime minister talked world finance; the three women talked about whatever women talk about while their men folk are busy.

Observers viewed the incident as another example of the complete informality marking the Roosevelt reception of the MacDonalds. For instance, when the British minister and his daughter called at the White House yesterday they found the President, Mrs. Roosevelt and their daughter, Mrs. Anna Dall, bareheaded, waiting on the front portico while around them a couple of playful dogs wriggled into the picture. There were a few hearty handclasps and what probably were hearty "how do's." Another old American custom.

On his visit to Washington during the Hoover administration, Mr. MacDonald received all the fanfare and salutations, pomp and ceremony that might be accorded a dignitary of his rank. Then there was no such informality.

Roosevelt Greets Fishermen.

Earlier in the day Mr. MacDonald received another taste of Rooseveltian simplicity. The President, Mrs. Roosevelt, their son, James, and Mr. MacDonald and his daughter had been cruising in the U. S. S. Sequoia, some eighteen miles down the Potomac. Just then the fishing schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud passed them. Aboard her were twenty fishing ship captains gathered along the coast from Boothbay, Me., to Phoebus, Va., come to call on the President for aid for their industry. As the Thebaud passed the presidential boat the schooner sounded twenty-one ear splitting blasts on her fog horn.

Then the Thebaud proceeded toward the dock. But President Roosevelt in a steamer reached that point ahead of the captains and was waiting for them as the schooner was made fast. Sitting in his car with his family and the MacDonalds, the President remained to greet them.

The captains saluted. President Roosevelt grinned and waved to them. His party were invited aboard the schooner and the invitation was accepted by Mrs. Roosevelt, James, the son, and Miss Ishbel MacDonald. The First Lady scorned the gang plank, and called to a couple of husky fishermen nearby.

"Here, give me your hands," she asked. She scaled the Thebaud's rail. She returned to the auto after a brief inspection of the ship, exclaiming to the President and Mr. MacDonald, "I've never before met so many captains in my life." Mrs. Roosevelt invited the twenty fishermen to visit the White House tomorrow and she will show them the place.

Thebaud Famous Racer.

Capt. Ben Pine, who piloted the Thebaud in the international fishermen's races, was first of the many captains to greet President Roosevelt. The President greeted and talked with all the other captains. The President and the prime minister next met Johnny Boudreau, the Thebaud's cook.

"The most important man on a ship," the President observed.

Before the fishing captains departed they presented a 50 pound halibut to President Roosevelt.

MacDONALD AND ROOSEVELT SEE SUCCESS AHEAD

Herriot Arrives as French Envoy.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Washington, D. C., April 23.—[Special.]—England and the United States have reached a tentative agreement, it appeared tonight, on two major phases of the world economy program—disarmament and stabilization of money.

While this indication of substantial progress was reported, Edouard Herriot, veteran of world politics, led an imposing delegation of French economists into town, and accompanying them was a cry that the war debts must be revised or canceled before the other great problems of the world depression can be tackled.

May Be Too Late.

It appeared that M. Herriot, for all his haste in getting to America before Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald left, may have been too late. With the British and the American leaders well on the way to at least a partial accord, it may be difficult for France to stand in opposition.

There was some suggestion that Herriot was a bit miffed because when he arrived in Washington this noon, having raced at the fastest possible speed all the way from Paris, he found that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister MacDonald had taken themselves off on a houseboat cruise down the Potomac.

Conference Set Tonight.

M. Herriot in his own public interview did not show any irritation, but some of his colleagues were resentful not only of the fact that Roosevelt and MacDonald had gone off together today, but that M. Herriot will not even see the President until tomorrow afternoon, then only for a formal tea and to pay his respects, and that he will not hold a real conversation with Mr. Roosevelt until after dinner tomorrow night.

M. Herriot is stopping at the Mayflower hotel, while Prime Minister MacDonald continues his residence at the White House. Under the rule of necessity established by Mr. Roosevelt, prime ministers will live at the White House, while cabinet members or other representatives will find domicile in embassies or at hotels. M. Herriot, as a former premier, is required to live outside the White House.

During their pleasant sojourn on the American houseboat Sequoia the President and Mr. MacDonald went thoroughly into the disarmament question and although the details of their common understanding were not revealed, it was announced officially in a joint communique from both men that prospects for the success of both the disarmament conference and the world economic conference were "considerably advanced."

Joint Statement Issued.

The joint statement read as follows:

"Today was occupied in a thorough survey of the business of the disarmament conference at Geneva. It was felt by both the President and the prime minister that the results of the day's conversations would considerably advance the prospects of the success both of the disarmament conference and of the international economic conference.

"The President will continue the question of disarmament problems with M. Herriot."

While their two chiefs were thus engaged on the Sequoia British and American experts in a series of conferences at the state department came to an agreement in principle on the monetary issue.

Tonight, working swiftly—and it appeared this Sabbath toil was obviously aimed at reaching an accord which could be announced publicly before M. Herriot had even a word with the President — the experts met at the White House with Roosevelt and MacDonald and reported their findings.

Second Statement Issued.

After conferring with the experts, President Roosevelt and MacDonald issued the following joint statement:

"The President and Mr. Ramsay MacDonald had a further meeting this evening at which the secretary of state, the British ambassador, and American and British experts were present. Some of the subjects generally outlined at Saturday's meeting were explored in further detail.

"The discussion centered around the monetary aspects of the agenda of the world economic conference.

"After a helpful exchange of views it was arranged that a further discussion should take place between the experts at the office of the secretary of state Monday morning at 11 o'clock, preliminary to a further conference with the President and Mr. MacDonald on Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock."

It was reported that the experts were in accord that England and the United States should support a return to the gold standard on a revised basis, with the relative value of the pound and the dollar definitely fixed, but with a lesser content of gold behind the currency of each.

The experts, it was reported, agreed that there should be no damaging competition in seeking to raise or lower the relative values of the pound and the dollar. Both groups, it was said, realized that the old gold content of their currencies was too high and that its lowering would have a beneficial effect on international commerce.

The question of fixing the value of the pound and the dollar was not determined, according to the reports. Some American opinion is that the old ratio of $4.86 to the pound, which endured over a century and a half, should be restored, but British views were in support of a 3½ to 1 ratio, the possibilities being that such a proportion would be stressed first, with a later concession to a ratio of 4 to 1.

Tariff Revision Comes Up.

While progress was thus recorded on the issues of disarmament and monetary stabilization, the second major problem, tariff revision, considered by the Roosevelt administration to be coördinately important, presented considerable difficulties.

The tariff issue has been somewhat irrevocably joined, by the French at least, with the war debts issue, and reports today were that the British might find the debts also in the way of an early tariff revision.

France will not pay the June 15 payment, as she failed to meet the Dec. 15 payment, according to the word brought with the French delegation today.

Although M. Herriot would not reveal any stand on the debts in advance of his talk with the President, the members of his entourage were volubly and excitedly certain that France will try to push the cancellation of the debt to the fore of the economic picture.

President Roosevelt, it is known, wanted England to join with the United States in declaring immediately for a substantial downward revision of their tariffs affecting each other. He hoped that England and America might take a position in leading the world to a breakdown of the tariff walls which he holds responsible for the crash of world trade.

Herriot Issues Statement.

Upon his arrival in New York harbor earlier in the day M. Herriot made available the following statement before he boarded a special train at Jersey City for the trip to the capital:

"On landing in the United States, I want to greet, in the name of the French government and of the French people, the great American nation whom I admire for her enterprising spirit and stanch courage in the midst of the difficulties she is, like ourselves, laboring under.

"I feel so much the more friendly to the American community, as I know they are much affected by unemployment, a plague which has spared no nation and has struck numberless American families with whom, as a member of the French democracy, I deeply sympathize.

"I have come over, accompanied by several experts chosen among the best in France, to study with the eminent President Roosevelt, in all independence and good faith, what can be done in view of attenuating the world economic crisis and the sufferings it has caused.

"I shall set to work with the conviction that, to bring about and maintain peace, it must be sought for in the political as well as in the economic order; I shall do my best to interpret the desire for peace so deeply felt in our country.

"The recent events which we have heard of on board the Ile de France have evidently modified some of the technical data of the problem, but they have left the political and moral data untouched.

"We preserve all our ardor, all our convictions. We place at the disposal of the American government and of the American people a genuine and candid desire for unbounded coöperation.

"I particularly rejoice at meeting in Washington my friend, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of Great Britain, with whom I have already worked, in London in 1924, and at Lausanne and Geneva in 1932, to bring the nations into closer relationship."

Canada's Trade with U. S. New Factor in British Parleys

[Mr. Steele, the London correspondent of The Tribune, who accompanied Premier MacDonald to Washington, presents the European view of the situation thus far unfolded in the White House conversations.]

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 23.—[Special.]—Events in the Anglo-American conversations here today took a sensational turn. Edouard Herriot, former French premier and now representing his country in the conversations with President Roosevelt, arrived in Washington to find the two other parties in substantial agreement, not only on economic matters, but also on world disarmament.

Most significant was the sudden switch from economic affairs, which both Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Roosevelt had intimated before were the most pressing, to disarmament.

Practically the whole time on the Sequoia today was devoted to that subject. Mr. MacDonald, fresh from Geneva, told the President just what had happened there and what, in his view, is necessary to make the disarmament conference a success.

French, British Views Opposed.

It was intimated tonight that they had reached substantial agreement. This will not be good news for M. Herriot, for the French thesis of disarmament, plus security, is diametrically opposed to that of the British.

M. Herriot, who on his arrival professed to be overflowing with hope and good will, dined at the French embassy tonight with his entourage.

While the chief of the delegation preserves the most correct attitude, some of those with him are more outspoken and declare that in view of what has happened since they left France they might as well turn around and go home. They feel that the dice have been loaded against France and they are in anything but an accommodating mood.

They are particularly bitter against the British, who they think have abandoned the united European front and lined up with the world's great creditor against the world's debtors. The French are specially insistent on the importance of war debts, which the British are now disposed to treat as of minor importance. All these matters are likely to be raised when Herriot meets the President tomorrow.

Another angle will be added tomorrow when R. B. Bennett, the Canadian prime minister, arrives in Washington. He has been called in to discuss a modification of the Ottawa agreements, which might prove a stumbling block in the way of the President's and prime minister's plan for restoring the free flow of world trade by the abolition or reduction of artificial restrictions, such as tariffs and quotas. Mr. Bennett, it is reported, is now much more likely to agree to this than he was six months ago. The Ottawa agreement has proved much less valuable to Canada and to Britain than either expected.

Canadians Favor U. S. Trade.

Mr. Bennett has been under severe pressure from Canadian manufacturers and financiers, who point out that Canada's natural market is the United States and that American trade reciprocity would be much more valuable to Canada than preferences in the British market. The British, too, have found the Canadian preferences of little use to them and are quite willing to let them go.

It has been argued that to vary the Ottawa agreements would require another imperial conference, but in the agreement itself there is provision for amendment by mutual consent, and if Canada is willing to surrender her Ottawa privileges there is no reason to believe that any of the other dominions would raise serious objection.

This would clear the way for all round tariff reductions, not only by the United States and Britain but by all the British dominions as well.

ITALY CALLS FOR POLITICAL ACTION TO AID RECOVERY

Finance Chief Tells Aims of Trip to U. S.

ROME, April 23.—(AP)—Finance Minister Guido Jung, Italy's delegate to the preliminary world economic discussions in Washington, in an interview on the eve of his departure for America tonight announced he was taking two fundamental points of view with him:

First, the necessity from political action to prepare the atmosphere for economic reconstruction, and

Second, adjustment in international payments so as not to surpass the transfer possibilities of nations which have such transfers in effect.

Lauds Roosevelt's Idea.

Jung will leave tomorrow for Genoa, where he will embark on the Conte di Savoia for the United States on Tuesday.

Sitting in his private office in the ministry of finance building, Italy's financial and trade expert lauded President Roosevelt's idea of holding conversations preliminary to the forthcoming world economic and monetary conference in London and of conferring with representatives of various countries on proposals for curing the world's ills.

"The exchange of ideas and formation of personal contacts which President Roosevelt has promoted will serve, I hope, to clear the ground of those dilatory gropings that have characterized initial stages of many conferences," he said.

"By concentrating the attention of statesmen on fixed points of the world economic conference program, they will be able to assure its more rapid achievement wherever the concourse of common good will is fervid enough."

Hopes for Good Results.

Speaking excellent English, Minister Jung said he was hopeful for good results because of Mr. Roosevelt's vigorous and courageous handling of initial affairs.

As to the actual problems to be discussed the minister said:

"Two points seem preliminary to any economic and financial reconstruction.

"One has been summed up by Premier Mussolini when he recently said that less difficult times could be ushered in 'if political action will know how to prepare the way for an economic revival by reëstablishing the fundamental element, confidence in the future.'

"On the other point of international transfers, the opinion of experts has been unanimous.

"International payments of whatever nature cannot in fact surpass the possibilities of transfer of various countries without irremediably shattering the economic and financial coherence of the world.

"Nor can they appreciably cut into the productive patrimony of the debtor without destroying every source of his income and increasing general misery by reducing to a minimum the purchasing power of entire populations."

131 MILLIONS FOR DETROIT BANKS TO BE RELEASED TODAY

Detroit, Mich., April 23.—(AP)—A flood of money—131 million dollars—will be unloosed tomorrow, representing 30 per cent of unencumbered accounts in the First National bank, Detroit, and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce, both in the hands of federal conservators.

The payments represent the first sizable release of funds tied up since accounts of 800,000 depositors became "frozen" with the declaration of Michigan's banking holiday, Feb. 14.

A buying revival was anticipated by merchandise men.

Since the banks closed, depositors have had access only to 10 per cent of their accounts. Those who had not claimed that 10 per cent will receive it in addition to their 30 per cent in the payment starting tomorrow.

Canadian Premier Boards Train to Washington Talk

OTTAWA, Ont., April 23.—(AP)—Premier Richard B. Bennett left by train this afternoon for Washington to engage in the international conversations with President Roosevelt. He said he was confident the conversations in the United States capital would result in great benefit to Canada and the world in general.

WOMAN FLYER FOUND 30 MILES FROM RANGOON

RANGOON, Burma, April 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Harry Bonney, who had been missing since she left Alor Star, Malay states, Friday on a flight from Australia to England, was found 30 miles south of Victoria Point, Burma, today. She was not hurt, but her plane had been damaged in landing. She hopes to continue after repairs are made.

Mrs. Bonney was discovered on the Siamese island Baing, where she had attempted to land. Because of a terrific storm the plane overturned.

She was living on frugal rations and boiled water. She is learning the Malay language in order to pass the time.

FRENCH PREMIER HITS ROOSEVELT'S INFLATION PLAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 23.—Premier Edouard Daladier today reaffirmed the French government's intention of sticking to the path of financial orthodoxy charted out for it by Raymond Poincare, premier in 1926, regardless of what the rest of the world does. The premier strongly criticized President Roosevelt's scheme of world-wide inflation to raise prices in a speech delivered at Orange, his home town.

"We have seen at too close range the woeful effects of monetary difficulties ever to let them reappear of our own accord," the premier said, referring to the inflation of the franc which reduced its value by four-fifths. "Those who govern should understand that reestablishment of international confidence is more important for the recovery of each country than all the more or less artificial measures from which salvation is awaited.

"The franc remains the most solidly covered and most stable money. The world today aspires to that stability. We ardently hope that conversations in Washington will permit our English and American friends to emerge from the period of monetary uncertainty and facilitate resumption of trade. We also hope that the world will welcome the message of France on the franc."

Daladier issued a warning that France is ready to cut itself off from the rest of the world and live in economic isolation to defend its currency if necessary.

"While we firmly believe that only sincere coöperation can cure the evils from which the world suffers, we are confident that if we are obliged to fall back on our own resources, domestic and colonial, we could weather the storm better than most nations," he said.

Sweden Calls 10 Experts to Discuss Currency Problem

STOCKHOLM, April 23.—(AP)—Finance Minister M. Wigforss has called ten economic and financial experts to discuss the currency problem as a consequence of recent international developments, and a decision, taken when Sweden left the gold standard, to review the matter by May 20.

CUBA TO REQUEST U. S. TO ADMIT SUGAR DUTY FREE AT CONFERENCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, April 23.—Responding to an invitation by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Orestes Ferrara, Cuban secretary of state, will go to Washington this week to negotiate a new trade treaty with the United States. He is expected to sail Wednesday. Oscar Cintas, Cuban ambassador at Washington, and three other delegates yet to be named will also take part in the conference.

Hoping to induce the United States to admit duty free about 2,000,000 tons of Cuban sugar, President Machado today instructed his economic experts to work out plans for a 30 per cent tariff reduction on all manufactured imports from the United States. It is planned to grant still greater concessions on imported agricultural and industrial machinery and automobiles. Government officials believe the proposed tariff reforms would mean rapid economic recovery.

Ferrara announced that the Washington administration has indicated its willingness to reduce the existing two cent sugar duty to one and one-half cents for unlimited exportation, or to admit duty free. Over 80 per cent of all Cuban imports come from the United States. The Cuba-United States trade, which, before the depression, amounted to $200,000,000 annually, is expected to show a reduction of $36,000,000 for the fiscal year ending July 1.

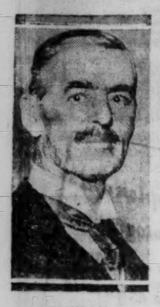
BRITISH BUDGET PROVIDES CUT IN TAX ON BEER

Treasury Chief to Ask for Huge Sum.

LONDON, April 23.—(AP)—Faced by a financial uncertainty unparalleled in modern times, Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, will present to parliament on Tuesday Great Britain's annual budget, revealing secrets of how more than £700,000,000 [currently about $2,695,000,000] will be raised and spent this year.



NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN. [Associated Press Photo.]

Even this huge sum makes no provision for the June installment on the American war debt, but there is no political significance in the omission.

Debt Not Mentioned Before.

It is recalled that the British installment of $95,550,000 in December was not provided for in the previous budget.

Numerous financial factors have been crowding upon the chancellor since the main lines of his budget were approved before the economic mission of Prime Minister MacDonald left for the United States.

It would seem from opinions in political and financial circles which sense the nature of Chamberlain's problem that a reduction of a penny in the beer tax can be expected. This would be made as a sop to the mass of people. Perhaps a few pennies also may be taken off the income tax rate as a reward to the middle and upper classes for their heavy financial sacrifices to the government in recent years.

But, while beer drinkers are likely to get the tax cut which would bring the standard brew to eight pence a pint, income taxpayers are not at all confident the chancellor will be able to reduce the present tax rate of 25 per cent.

Among other much discussed features of the budget is whether Chamberlain may accept the theory that in such abnormal times the sinking fund may be suspended and its resources used for tax relief.

May Boost Silk Duties.

Heavier taxes on the larger road vehicles are expected, but not so heavy as recommended in a recent report by the royal commission.

There may be higher silk duties, but no change is expected in oil and tobacco duties.

Dealing with the political aspects in his budget speech, Chamberlain is expected to back up the program MacDonald is outlining in his White House talks with President Roosevelt.

Chancellor Chamberlain is expected to reiterate that Great Britain will not return to the gold standard until the war debts have been scaled down, tariffs reduced, and exchange problems settled.

HOOVER FORCES FIGHT TO REWIN G. O. P. CONGRESS

Washington, D. C., April 23.—[Special.]—The Hoover Republican forces, which controlled the government at Washington for four years and went down in overwhelming defeat in November, have started a counter move to regain command at the capital.

An active organization, under the name of the "Republican Federal Associates," is soon to be set up here, headed by former Postmaster General Brown and former Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills, with the immediate objective of electing a Republican congress next year.

As organizer, W. Irving Glover, former second assistant postmaster general, will endeavor to set up a "select group of members in such congressional districts throughout the country" to promote the object of the body.

The Washington office is to be in charge of former First Assistant Postmaster General Coleman, who will be the director of the watch on both the Democrats and insurgent Republicans who trailed off on the Roosevelt bandwagon last fall. Only outspoken Hoover men will be officers of the "Republican Federal Associates."

JUDGES START PICKING QUEEN FOR WORLD FAIR

CHARM TO RULE IN CONTEST FOR QUEEN OF FAIR

Photos of Winners to Be Published May 7.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Photographs of the first group of winners in the contest to select her majesty, Queen of a Century of Progress inaugural, and her court of 50 of the world's most charming girls, will be published on May 7 in the rotogravure section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE and by its associated newspapers.

The tremendous task of selecting the 51 lucky girls and their alternates entered its final phase last week, high up in THE TRIBUNE Tower. An undercurrent of excitement animated the photograph gallery where charming faces from every corner of the world smiled down on the jury of men and women charged with the responsibility of choosing the most attractive.

One of the Girls to be Queen.

To one of those chosen by the jury will fall the honor late next month of being chosen Queen of the Fair.

The judges went about their work of eliminations and their nominations enthusiastically. Their goal for this review was their joint approval of a sufficient number of these candidates —survivors of other and earlier surveys—to insure the presence in Chicago of a court of fifty-one girls, all of whom will be the guests of THE TRIBUNE and affiliated newspapers for the opening ceremonies of the 1933 World's Fair. The deadline for entries in the contest was April 15.

Whirl of Gayety Ahead.

From Europe and from many cities and villages of America the girls chosen by the jury will congregate in Chicago several days prior to June 1. A whirl of gayety planned for them will be climaxed by the selection of one to wear the crown and rule over the great spectacle of the exposition's opening. And though the glitter of the scepter and the gleam of rich robes would delight any girlish heart, there will be material reward for her as well as fame, for she will receive $5,000 as token of her triumph.

So the discriminating group gathered in the gallery bent earnest heads together on their job. The chatter of discussion rose higher as the afternoon waned and the pile of photographs in the center of the table grew apace. One thing the chosen girls may boast of always. They are the pick of as critical a group as could be assembled anywhere, each individual distinguished for his or her high standard of personal taste.

Members of the jury present were Mrs. Pauline Palmer, Mrs. R. R. McCormick, Mrs. Howard Ellis, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, and Wallace Kirk. Two other members of the jury, Mrs. William H. Mitchell and John T. McCutcheon, were unable to attend, but will be present at the final review of the court at which the queen will be chosen.

First among the selections confirmed was a stately English girl whose dark hair, gracefully arched brows and fine eyes were faintly reminiscent of Myrna Loy, film beauty. The second was a Parisienne, a girl with soft tendrils of blonde hair waved back from a sensitive face and wide set, dark eyes. Both are unanimously acclaimed as possessing the prime qualification for members of the queen's court—feminine charm. Physical beauty is held second to it in this instance.

Chicago had a vast representation of pulchritude and allure, over which the judges debated long and solemnly. Every social stratum had its delegates —university girls, secretaries, debutantes, factory girls, domestics, high school students, seamstresses, and many another classification. But no information on any one was available until they had been judged literally "at face value," for the data concerning each was on the back of each photograph and was not referred to until its subject had been voted satisfactory.

Select 51 and Alternates.

Identities of the fifty-one girls named by the jury were withheld to give each time to notify contest headquarters, or its representatives, that it will be possible for her to make the trip to Chicago at the designated time next month. Alternates for each girl have been selected in the event that any contingency prevents the participation of the initial choice of the judges.

Besides THE TRIBUNE, the associated newspapers in which the names of the winners will appear include the Paris edition of this newspaper and its Milwaukee edition; the Herald-Traveler of Boston; Philadelphia Public Ledger; Washington, D. C., Post; Richmond, Va., News-Leader; Louisville, Ky., Courier-Journal and the Times; Atlanta, Ga., Journal; New Orleans Item-Tribune; Arkansas Democrat of Little Rock; Journal Post of Kansas City, Mo.; Oklahoman of Oklahoma City; Express of San Antonio; Chronicle of San Francisco, and the Journal of Portland, Ore.

MYSTERY MARKS DEATH OF MODEL AFTER A PARTY

Miss Edna Lewis, 33 years old, a pretty artists' model, died last night of injuries suffered supposedly during a drinking party in her apartment at 3015 Broadway. Lieut. Stephen Barry of the Sheffield avenue station and Detectives John Lagattute and John Lafevour took into technical custody John Schneiness, 35 years old, 2146 Dayton street, a printer and friend of the model, and Dale Pendleton, 28, 60 Maple street, a busboy and friend of Miss Edith Baumgartner, 30 years old, Miss Lewis' roommate. Miss Baumgartner is being sought.

Dr. Robert Graves, 4249 Hazel street, who attended Miss Lewis, notified police of her death. He said he was called to her apartment late in the afternoon and found her suffering from a deep cut behind the ear. She told him she received it in a fall. Dr. Graves was called again last night. Miss Lewis died soon afterward. Police found the two men in the apartment. They said Miss Lewis fell while intoxicated. She originally came from Decatur, Ill.

NICE SAFE JAIL GUARDS 4 FROM POULTRY RACKET

New York, April 23.—(AP)—A fourth partner in the S. & B. Live Poultry corporation joined three others in a jail cell today for protection against racketeers, who, District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of the Bronx said, hold a powerful and sinister monopoly on the poultry industry.

The four partners are material witnesses against seven men scheduled to go on trial Friday on a charge of coercion in connection with the wrecking of the company's plant April 6.

Foley said the place was wrecked because the partners refused to join an organization and rent trucks and crates from it, although the company has its own trucks and crates.

At their own request they are being held in default of bail totaling $1,050,000, said to be the highest ever set in this city. The partners are Hyman Blank, Samuel Shipper, Samuel Weiner, and Samuel Sinberg. There are two other partners in the business.

SPAIN'S WOMEN EMERGE FROM CLOISTER TO VOTE

Ballot for First Time in City Elections.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, April 24 [Monday.]—An historic taboo was swept into the dust bin yesterday when the Spanish woman came out of her cloister and in elections in 2,500 municipalities exercised the vote granted her by the new republican constitution.

Early returns seem to show the government forces barely holding their own. Alejandro Lerroux, leader of the radical opposition, claims victory in fourteen out of forty-four provinces, including the province of Madrid. The clericals and monarchists are winning in the old Carlist north. However, the Socialists lead in Badajoz, where agrarian problems are acute.

Women Have Their Chance.

About 1,000,000 of the estimated 6,700,000 women voters had their chance today to thumb their noses at countless generations of Spanish caballeros for whom woman's place was at home, and preferably at a home with bars at the windows. How many availed themselves of this symbolic opportunity and what the political significance, if any, of the elections might be will not be clear until the returns have finished trickling in from the backwoods.

The elections, the first since the historic municipal vote two years ago which was turned into a national plebiscite that sent King Alfonso scampering, were held in the strongholds of Spanish feudalism. About 14,000 municipal councilmen are being replaced because they were "elected" under article 29 of the monarchy's electoral law by which unopposed candidates were considered elected automatically. The republican government declared those elections void.

The political bosses' job under the monarchy was to arrange to have their candidates unopposed. How successful they were may be judged by the fact that one town yesterday voted for the first time in twenty-nine years.

Four Slain in Riot.

That the bosses died hard nobody doubts and at Ciudad-Real yesterday the Socialists smashed ballot boxes when they heard they had been stuffed.

In Badajos province a feud between rival bosses resulted in riots at the village of Hornachos. There civil guards killed four persons and wounded seven.

Premier Manuel Azana's left wing Republican-Socialist coalition went united to the polls, while the Republican opposition threw in their lot with the clericals and in some cases, even with the monarchists. The Republican opposition, particularly that of the Lerroux radicals, inherited the monarchy's bosses. Nevertheless the Catholic party and the Socialists, who oddly combined to give the women the vote over opposition moderates, expect heavy gains. They feel that the emancipated Spanish woman will vote for the priests or the socialist visionaries.

Florida Publisher May Get Post in Porto Rico

PLAN RECEPTION TO UNWELCOME GUESTS AT FAIR

Lieut. Edward J. Kelly, in charge of the confidence game detail at the detective bureau, took the rôle of school master yesterday and 24 pupils took a lesson in picture reading memory. The lieutenant is preparing the men to be official greeters to all confidence men and pickpockets who come to Chicago for the World's Fair.

Two weeks ago Kelly sent letters to all large cities in this country and Canada requesting that the photographs and fingerprints of their home town crooks be sent to him. So far 500 pictures have been received. The Chicago police have more than a thousand of their own on file.

Study Photograph Albums!

Here is a sample of the class that was conducted yesterday in Lieut. Kelly's schoolroom at the detective bureau:

Twenty-four detectives, most of whom have made a study of the confidence game racket, sit with books of photographs before them, turning page after page. And what faces they looked into!

Schoolmaster Kelly addressed the class. "It's hard to detect a con man," he said. "You must know him. That's why I sent for these pictures. Con men always go where the crowds are. You men will be assigned at the fair. Some will be stationed at railroad depots and if you see those faces greet them, not with the word 'welcome,' but with the words, 'You're under arrest.' And if they come by bus or automobile get them before they pass the gate to the grounds.

Smooth Tongue Is Weapon.

"Remember that a con man's best weapon is his smooth tongue. He will do his best to talk you out of a pinch if he believes he's not known. Don't let them con you."

"Now," continued Schoolmaster Kelly, holding up a photograph, "take a look at this man. A sweet faced angelic type. At first glance you'd be foolish enough to loan him your best girl for a dance. He's a penny matcher. That racket is worked in pairs. The first crook always throws heads. His partner always throws tails. The victim can't win. A college professor was taken for $70 at this game not so long ago.

"Here's the photograph of a pickpocket. They're called cannons. Three or four get into a crowd and start to push the victim while one will do the searching. Sometimes the thief's hand is caught in the victim's pocket. Then the three pushers become shillers for their comrade. They tell the victim they are policemen and will take the thief to jail. They get him away. That's the reason they never work alone.

Tells About "Mollbuzzing."

"Look at the face of this girl. Grab her if you ever see her in a crowd. She's there for no good purpose. Her racket is called 'mollbuzzing.' She works on women who swing their purses beside them. Her favorite haunts are in crowds and at stop lights. She stands beside her victim, opens the purse, and takes everything.

"Now, here's a man whose racket is to study faces. He'll sell you the lions in front of the Art institute for $5 apiece. If you are interested he'll offer you the pigeons that fly along the lake front for a quarter a pair. He's the kind of a salesman that sells but never delivers.

"Study those pictures. And remember, a good detective might slip up on a name now and then, but he never forgets a face."

Lee Gehlbach, former army pilot and winner of the army pursuit race in 1927 and the American air Derby in 1930, yesterday entered the free for all high speed events of the American air races, to be held in Chicago airport July 1, 2, 3, and 4. Gehlbach will fly the Laird Solution racer which won the high speed event of the Chicago air races in 1930. The racer has been rebuilt and the power of the motor increased. He expects the plane to do better than 300 miles an hour.

PONY EXPRESS RIDERS LEAVE SAN FRANCISCO FOR WORLD FAIR HERE

San Francisco, Cal., April 23.—(AP)—Mail service between San Francisco and Chicago was slowed down to 46 days today and the postage was increased to $1 for a two ounce letter, but nobody complained.

The occasion was the departure of ten pony express riders, six girls and four men, for A Century of Progress at Chicago. Their saddle bags carried special United States mail at $1 a letter and greetings to the governor of Illinois from the people of California.

The riders were sent away from Tanforan race track on the San Francisco peninsula after a feature Pony Express purse race. They planned to make Tracy, Cal., their first stop.

In contrast to the time these riders will make, the old pony express, established April 3, 1860, made the trip from St. Joseph, Mo., to San Francisco in 10 days, but in those days the mail was sent by relays of horses and riders.

AMERICAN AIR RACES TO GIVE PUBLIC NEW DEAL

No Exorbitant Fees to Be Paid N.A.A. or Promoters

BY HUGH SEXTON.

A new deal in air racing is promised to the aviation industry and the public at the American Air Races, to be staged on July 1, 2, 3, and 4, at Chicago airport under the sponsorship of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. This assertion was made yesterday by Capt. M. M. Corpening, president of the Chicago Air Race corporation, which is producing the air spectacle.

"Huge fees will not be paid to professional promoters in the staging of Chicago's annual aviation classic," he said. "Nor will an exorbitant fee be paid to the National Aeronautic association for the guaranteeing of the prize money, because that organization last year failed to make good its guarantee. The benefits of the American Air Races will accrue to the participating pilots and to charity.

Too Much Promotion.

"Air racing on a big scale has suffered from too much high pressure promotion almost since its inception, and the large air racing meets held in the last twelve years almost invariably have lost money for their sponsors. This condition is to be corrected in the American Air Races. Leading pilots and members of the aviation industry have placed themselves behind this move to clean up air racing.

"In 1930 the National Air Races were brought to this city by the same outstanding citizens who are behind the American Air Races. The races were held for ten days under the management of professional promoters. The total income amounted to $582,555, of which $59,855 was paid to the promoters and the National Aeronautical association in fees, leaving only $2,779 for charity, after expenses incurred by the promotional management amounting to $430,591, had been paid.

$100,000 in Prizes.

"Prizes totaling $89,330 were paid out of income to participating pilots, and additional private donations brought the total amount of prizes paid to more than $100,000, the advertised amount. In spite of the $25,000 fee paid to the National Aeronautic association, another air show at Cleveland was sanctioned by that organization for the last three days of the National Air Races here, and many of the outstanding performers left Chicago to attend that meet.

"For the last two years the National Air Races, held at Cleveland under the same expensive management that conducted the 1930 races in Chicago, have operated at a total loss of $136,359. Last fall the leading racing pilots went on strike when they learned that prizes for closed course racing actually were considerably less than the amount that had been advertised and guaranteed by the National Aeronautic association.

"During the same period two aviation meets were held in Chicago under the sponsorship of THE TRIBUNE and the management of Maj. R. W. Schroeder director of events for the American Air Races. Both were financial successes. THE TRIBUNE Charity Air Show held on the lake front, on Nov. 8, 1931, produced $18,700, which was turned over to the Joint Emergency Relief fund, and the American Legion Charity Air Races, held at Sky Harbor on Sept. 11, last, produced more than $10,000 for veterans' relief.

No Expensive Promoters.

"In view of this experience, the Chicago Air Race corporation is conducting the American Air Races without the aid of expensive promoters, and without the sanction of the National Aeronautic association, which failed to protect Chicago's interests in 1930, and failed to protect the pilots' interests last fall.

"Net profits of the American Air Races will be given to charity. The cost of producing the races is being held at a minimum. Substantial prize money will be offered for the events of the American Air Races. The amount will be announced on June 1, when the money will be placed in escrow to insure its being paid to the pilots who fly during the American Air Races."

HIGH FEES PERIL TO AIR RACING

The financial history of large air racing meets in the last twelve years held under the sanction of the National Aeronautic association, is shown below, as taken from the records of the organization. The losses to sponsors total $613,908. The $69,556 profit shown for 1929 was used to pay off a large deficit incurred by the race promoters in staging an indoor aircraft show.

Year.	Days of meet.	Place—	Cost.	Revenue.	Prizes.	Profit or loss [+ or —]
1921	3	Omaha	$ 53,000	$ 13,000	.....	$— 40,000
1922	7	Detroit	66,160	38,147	$11,631	— 28,012
1923	4	St. Louis	315,416	155,743	13,352	—159,673
1924	3	Dayton	197,000	123,000	37,600	— 74,000
1925	3	New York	90,314	33,578	24,901	— 56,736
1926	8	Philadelphia	99,495	17,177	28,341	— 82,318
1927	2	Spokane	113,608	114,063	45,750	+ 456
1928	9	Los Angeles	397,865	361,055	75,965	— 36,810
1929	10	Cleveland	358,452	438,364	80,655	+ 69,556
1930	10	Chicago	579,776	582,555	89,330	+ 2,779
1931	10	Cleveland	477,357	372,049	90,000	—112,808
1932	10	Cleveland	279,000	262,000	65,080	— 23,551

"From this table it is obvious that air racing cannot survive as a sport unless it is divorced from the expensive promotional costs and the large fees exacted by the National Aeronautic association," said Capt. M. M. Corpening, president of the Chicago Air Race corporation, which is to produce the American air races at Chicago airport on July 1, 2, 3, and 4. "Our aim is to place air racing on a self-supporting basis as an annual attraction in Chicago."

MURDER THEORY GROWS IN DEATH OF YOUNG NURSE

Bloomington, Ill., April 23.—The theory of murder gained impetus today in efforts to account for the mysterious death of Miss Lola Wells, 20, a nurse at St. Joseph's hospital, Bloomington. Her body was found in the Illinois river near Chillicothe last Wednesday. It was announced by officials in Chillicothe today that when the body was embalmed no signs of water were found in the lungs.

Kenneth Wells, her brother, said Miss Wells' disappearance followed a lovers' quarrel the Sunday night preceding Monday, Feb. 27, when she was reported missing.

Max C. Lockenvitz Jr., 23, of this city, was questioned and denied there had been a disagreement between him and the young nurse.

Yank on Missing Plane in Greece-France Flight

MARSEILLES, France, April 24 [Monday].—(AP)—A seaplane on which an American, who gave the name of John Van Chef, was a passenger was missing today en route from Corfu, Greece. The plane, which carried a crew of three and four passengers, left Corfu for Naples and Marseilles at 4:40 a. m. It was last reported crossing the Apennines 3 hours and 15 minutes later.

MACON RETURNS FROM SECOND TEST CRUISE

Akron, O., April 23.—(AP)—The huge dirigible Macon, with Lieutenant Commander Herbert V. Wiley, sole surviving officer of the U. S. S. Akron as a passenger, cruised for nearly 13 hours over northern Ohio today in her second test flight.

Nearly perfect weather conditions prevailed throughout the cruise, which ended at dusk tonight as the navy air cruiser, her lights gleaming, came floating into her airdock here while a crowd estimated by Airport Manager B. E. Fulton at 75,000 persons watched the maneuvers.

The Macon shunted back and forth over the Lake Erie shore all day in what her officers described as a "very successful" flight. Today's cruise included trials to determine the ship's climbing ability.

On the return tonight, Capt. Alger H. Dresel descended from the cruiser with the comment: "The ship handled satisfactorily in climbing and diving trials."

Commander Wiley smilingly confined his remarks to "very fine weather, a very fine ship, a very fine flight."

The ship today carried 106 persons one more than on her first test flight

AUTO TURNS OVER DODGING CRASH; PEDESTRIAN DIES

Blatz Brewing Official and Wife Injured.

August L. Klein, secretary of the Blatz Brewing company of Milwaukee, overturned his automobile on a highway northwest of Waukegan yesterday in a vain effort to avoid hitting a pedestrian. The pedestrian was killed and Klein and his wife, Clara, were injured.

The man killed was William H. Pierce, 1913 Horeb avenue, Zion. He was walking in Green Bay road, a short distance north of Grand avenue, just outside Waukegan. Klein swung out to pass another automobile and saw Pierce walking toward him. He applied his brakes and turned at the same time in an attempt to avoid hitting the man.

Caught Under Upset Auto.

The car rolled over. Pierce was crushed beneath the automobile, receiving injuries which caused his death a few hours later at Victory Memorial hospital in Waukegan. Klein was cut and bruised, but his wife received more serious injuries. She was taken to St. Theresa hospital in Waukegan, where it was said she will recover.

A baby was killed and four other persons injured yesterday when Frank Leona, 3650 Chicago avenue, driving a new automobile which he had purchased on Saturday, collided headon with a street car at Chicago and Kilbourne avenues. The infant killed was George Diamond, 1½ years old, 1526 Kedvale avenue, whose mother, Marie, also was injured. The others hurt were Leona, his wife; Rose, and their 15 year old daughter, Mildred. All were riding in Leona's car.

Six Deaths Raise Toll to 265.

The death of the Diamond child and five others yesterday in Cook county raised the 1933 traffic toll here to 265. The other victims:

Julius Isackson, 56 years old, 2745 Cortland street. Killed last night at North avenue and Mozart street, by an automobile which did not stop.

Clifford Curtis, 34 years old, 1321 Prairie avenue, Chicago Heights. Killed when his milk wagon was struck by an automobile in Chicago Heights.

Edward Wagner, 45 years old, 2435 Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn. Died in the county hospital. His automobile collided with two others last Tuesday in River Forest.

James Miniter, 28 years old, 7532 North Damen avenue, a gasoline station attendant. Died yesterday in St. Francis' hospital, Evanston, of injuries received April 16 when his automobile skidded against a pole in front of 6015 Broadway. His father, Michael, is a desk sergeant at the Cragin police station.

Dennis Sweeney, 51 years old, 1725 East 86th street. Died last night in the Illinois Central hospital of injuries received earlier in the day when he was struck by an automobile in Jackson park. The driver was Leslie J. Mugford, 4545 North Seeley avenue.

Four of the victims were killed instantly, while a fifth died on the way to a hospital.

Three bodies were pinned inside the automobile, while two were thrown clear of the wreckage.

OEDIPUS DINES AND PROVES HE'S A RARE OCTOPUS

Becomes Aquarium's Best Attraction.

Oedipus the Octopus, chief attraction of the John G. Shedd aquarium in Grant park, fed placidly on his daily allotment of crabs at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon to the delight of a knot of spectators and to the wonderment of Walter H. Chute, director of the aquarium. The fastidiousness of the ugly Oedipus amused the visitors, while the amazement of Director Clute was due to the fact that Oedipus was eating.

By all the rules of precedent Oedipus should have become a product of the art of taxidermy long ago. For octopi do not flourish in captivity, particularly inland. Even in captivity on the seaboard, where ocean water is pumped into their tanks, they have rarely lived more than a week or two.

Alive and Healthy.

Yet Oedipus continues to be alive and healthy in the glass tank which he has occupied since March 24. Each meal time he moves upon his food in his stately way. Oedipus is stately in movement because he gets about by sucking in water and expelling it. The method is slow and laborious, but it was good enough for his forbears and it's good enough for Oedipus.

Scientists have advanced several theories for his longevity. Director Chute considers most plausible the one that Oedipus was captured in the winter. Most octopi are taken in the summer when they secret themselves on the floor of the ocean among rocks. Those caught in the summer season are sickly and decline rapidly in captivity, said Director Chute.

Travels in Special Car.

Oedipus was taken off Key West, Fla., last March 18. He was brought here in a special car March 24 with no other name than the surname of his family—Cephalopoda. Since then he has received a variety of given names, among them Oedipus. He responds to none.

When he sits down, which is seldom, Oedipus resembles a wagon wheel three feet in diameter. His wrinkled, bald head forms the hub and his eight tentacles are not unlike spokes. Oedipus prefers to cling to the side of his tank and stare moodily at visitors.

To most visitors Oedipus is a disappointment. His size, mild manner and apparent harmlessness do not measure up with the devilfish of fiction. Director Chute said these monsters are only distantly related to Oedipus. Nevertheless Oedipus has become the greatest attraction of the aquarium.

HUNT HOODLUM FOR SHOOTING IN TRAFFIC CRASH

Louis Romano, 38 years old, 3906 Congress street, one of Sam Hunt's hoodlum "Secret Six" who aided Jake Factor in his hunt for his kidnaped son, was being sought by the police yesterday in connection with the shooting on Saturday of Albert Lucenti, 21 years old, 5433 Harrison street.

Lucenti was shot in the abdomen during a quarrel over a minor traffic accident at Morgan and Van Buren streets. The gunman drove away, but the license number on his car was traced to Abe Levin, 1357 North Lincoln street, a partner with Romano in the manufacture of alcohol cans.

Police believe Romano was driving Levin's car at the time of the shooting. Romano's wife said Romano had not been home for a week. Two blood transfusions were resorted to yesterday in an effort to save the life of Lucenti.

Waiter Battles 2 Bandits; 1 Surrenders, 1 Escapes

Arthur Lockett, 1007 Townsend street, waiter, yesterday grappled with two bandits who attempted to hold up a restaurant at 1160 North Larrabee street, where he is employed. One of the robbers fled and the other, who said he was Leo Zajac, 27 years old, 1261 North La Salle street, surrendered.

FRANKIE LAKE IS SET FREE; BIDS CHICAGO GOOD-BY

Frankie Lake, former partner of Terry Druggan in the early prohibition beer racket, has said good-by to Chicago, it was learned yesterday. He was released from the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas., last Tuesday, came to Chicago to wind up some affairs here, and then departed for Detroit, where he had started an ice business before his imprisonment. He said he is through with beer.

Lake was taken to prison on Feb. 5, 1932, to serve a sentence of 18 months for income tax fraud. Druggan was sentenced to two and a half years, and his term started a week later than Lake's. An allowance of time off for good behavior ended Lake's imprisonment in 14 months, 13 days.

NURSES OPPOSE REPEAL OF STATE CERTIFICATE ACT

An organized fight against a measure now pending in the state senate to repeal the public health nursing law, is being waged by the 6,000 registered trained nurses in Illinois, through their district associations. The present law was enacted two years ago at the request of the same groups.

The law provides that public health nurses must hold certificates issued by the state and must be qualified as graduate training nurses. According to officials of the first district of the Illinois State Nurses association, the district comprising Cook and Du Page counties, the repealer was introduced by Senator W. E. Hickman [Dem., Paris] "for political reasons." They said that if his measure is passed the standards of public health nursing in the state will be lowered.

Miss N. E. Hauser of Hinsdale, of the first district association, said that Senator Hickman introduced his measure after a southern Illinois community refused to accept the appointment of a public health nurse who had no state certificate. This nurse, according to Miss Hauser, was a political patronage appointee.

A committee representing the various districts will go to Springfield this week to oppose passage of the repealer.

SHOT WHILE CRANKING AUTO.

While cranking his automobile yesterday in the garage behind his home at 2230 North La Porte avenue, Policeman George Hammond of the West North avenue station was shot in the left knee when a small automatic pistol dropped from his pocket.

SHOT TO DEATH IN ALLEY; POLICE HUNT TWO MEN

Shot once near the heart, Joseph Bujalka, 28 years old, 1645 North Winchester avenue, an upholsterer, was found dead last night in the alley in the rear of 2058 West Erie street. Police said he was murdered. Detectives went into the Erie street house and found Mrs. Henrietta Hirschman, the tenant, and Mrs. June Eckman, 2358 North Normandy avenue.

Mrs. Hirschman's husband, George, and his brother Thomas are said by police to be out on $60,000 bonds each on robbery charges. Police said they would hold the women for further questioning and would search for the brothers.

CUT 3,000 MILES OFF NEW YORK TO ARGENTINA ROUTE

Trans-Andean Railroad Is Begun by 5,000 Men.

BY NORMAN INGREY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, April 23.—Work has begun in northern Chile on an international railroad which has been talked about for half a century, but which hitherto has been frustrated by trade and political jealousies in Chile and Argentina. It is a line which will unite the Pacific port of Antofagasta with the inland town of Salta, Argentina.

Five thousand men were employed to begin construction after the contract had finally been ratified by two trans-Andean governments.

Opposition Overcome.

Chilean opposition in the past was due to the southern agricultural interests who feared they would lose their market in the industrial north in face of Argentine competition. Argentine opposition was fostered by the big British railroads who were afraid of losing freight on their systems linking Buenos Aires with northwestern territory. In both countries opposition was finally overcome by citing the project as a reëmployment measure.

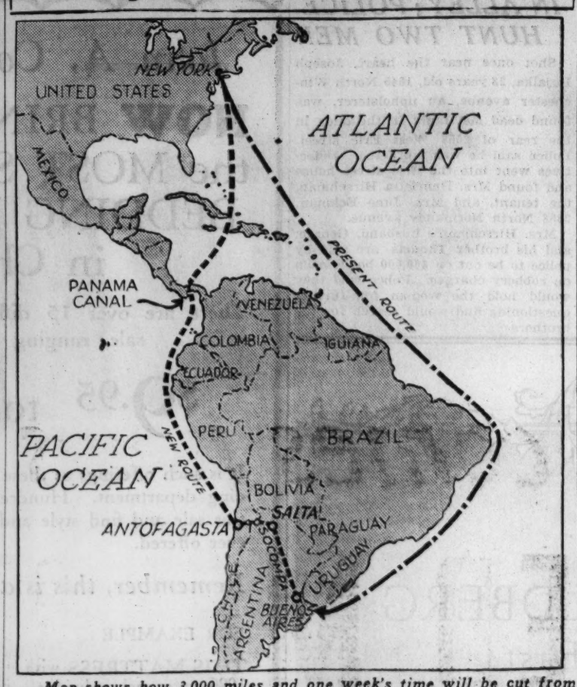
The rail route between Antofagasta and Salta measures 450 miles, traversing the nitrate pampa and the Andean mountain range. On the Chilean side 100 miles is already built, owned and operated by a London company, the terminating station being Victoria Augusta. In Argentina the line is virtually finished to Socompa, on the frontier, so that the main construction work will be between that point and Victoria Augusta, a distance of about 100 miles.

The railroad has been exhaustively surveyed by American engineers on both sides of the Andes, who estimate construction work in Chile and Argentina will cost $20,000,000. When work is in full swing 10,000 men will be employed.

The new railroad will place a vast tract of Argentine northwestern territory 3,000 miles and one week's steamship voyage nearer New York, substituting a Pacific ocean outlet, via the Panama canal, for a tedious and costly trip via Buenos Aires and the Atlantic. Perishable produce from this part of Argentina will be spared long cold storage freight, and grain and live stock producers are expected to derive much benefit from the new route.

Northern Chile will also benefit by receiving fresh meat and vegetables. It will also be helped by the increased maritime movement at Antofagasta, the leading port north of Valparaiso. The government decreed a public holiday at the port to celebrate the commencement of construction work.

Begin New Trans-Andean Railroad



Map shows how 3,000 miles and one week's time will be cut from the present route from northern Argentina to New York by the trans-Andean railroad now under construction. The new road will connect Antofagasta, Chile, with Salta, Argentina. Argentine grain and live stock producers are expected to reap huge benefits.

LEVEE GUARDS EXCHANGE FIRE WITH BOATMEN

Belzoni, Miss., April 23.—(AP)—A single brisk encounter early today between guards and a boatload of men attempting to land on the west levee of the Yazoo river at Little Atchafalaya marked an otherwise peaceful night along the Humphreys county levee "war zone."

Rifles were fired several times. No shots took effect. The boat hurriedly withdrew.

One soldier and two civilian guards were stationed at the post when the boat approached. When its occupants failed to heed a command to halt, the guards opened fire. The shots were quickly returned by those in the boat.

Little Atchafalaya is situated on the extreme end of the area under patrol near Silver City. The levee touches the Silver City-Belzoni highway at that point and a tear in the protection wall would disrupt traffic between the guard posts to the south and Belzoni. It is considered one of the most important points in the threatened area. Guardsmen have connected their posts by field phones. Powerful searchlights were placed at strategic points. There is a slight drop in the water level in the flooded area east and north of Belzoni.

ARMY AVIATOR AND GIRL COMPANION DIE; PLANE HITS WIRES

Santa Rosa, Cal., April 23.—(AP)—An army aviator, Lieutl S. A. Beck, 27, of Crissy field, and a companion, Miss Marjorie Patricia Hughes, 24, San Francisco, were killed as an airplane in which they were flying crashed.

The plane, an army observation craft, struck high tension wires after the motor apparently had failed, witnesses said. Persons at the airfield said Lieut. Beck had invited Miss Hughes to take a sightseeing flight.

Two Killed in Oklahoma.

Duncan, Okla., April 23.—(AP)—Two men were killed when a cabin monoplane nose dived from an altitude of about 100 feet into a pasture northeast of Duncan late today. The dead were Harry Burgard, about 40, shop foreman of a cementing company here, and Glen Reed, 27, a mechanic.

Bodies Found on Mountain.

Winslow, Ariz., April 23.—(AP)—The burned bodies of C. L. Giragi, publisher of the Winslow Daily Mail, and Jack Irish, airplane pilot, who had been missing since they left last Monday on a business trip for Phoenix, were found in the charred wreckage of their plane today on West Sunset mountain, thirteen miles southwest of Winslow.

GOVERNOR AGAIN ASKS ASSEMBLY FOR A BEER LAW

Springfield, Ill., April 23.—[Special.]—Before he left tonight for Chicago where he is to confer tomorrow with Mayor Kelly and the state tax commission concerning the latest Cook county tax tangle and other revenue matters, Gov. Horner was asked if he had any message to leave for members of the legislature when they start gathering tomorrow for Tuesday's reconvening.

"Yes," he replied, "I'd like to remind them that the opposition to the beer bill in the senate is merely postponing the inevitable at the cost of about $1,000,000 to the state and that in the meantime there is absolutely no protection on our statute books for our churches, schools, and other institutions."

"Enactment of the beer bill so that it will take effect on July 1 is absolutely certain. That requires only a majority vote in each house."

BETTY COMPTON'S $435 LINGERIE BILL FULLY PAID

New York, April 23.—[Special.]—Betty Compton's $453 lingerie bill, which became the subject of legal action last month, has been paid in full. That was learned today.

Allan Deutsch, attorney for Helen Coen, owner of a fashionable specialty shop at 2095 Broadway, said his client has been completely compensated for $10 lace step-ins and $50 pajamas purchased by the actress bride of ex-Mayor James J. Walker in June, 1932.

Deutsch, who sued Mrs. Peggy Stanton, and her husband, Edward L. Stanton, Walker's former secretary, because it was Mrs. Stanton who purchased the pretties for Miss Compton, declared that counsel for the Stantons had paid the bill and court action has been withdrawn.

RECOVER BODY FROM LAKE.

The police yesterday recovered the body of John M. Hempel, 48 years old, of the Y. M. C. A. hotel, from the lake at 77th street. They had received a report that a man jumped into the lake at that point Saturday evening.

SERBS TRY CROAT AS TRAITOR FOR BACK TO '18 PLEA

Minority Revision Move Is Fought by Jugo-Slavia.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, April 23.—(AP)—The treason trial of the Croatian leader Vladko Matchek, based on a "back to 1918" appeal issued by him and others last November, will begin before a defense of the realm court tomorrow.

The hearing will be of unusual interest in view of the world-wide discussion concerning revision of treaties.

In this case, the Belgrade government, one of the victors in the world war, is combatting a revisionist movement within its own borders. Dr Matchek has denied he advocated the complete separation of Croatia from Serbia with the possible union with some other neighboring country.

Slogan Disturbing to Serbs.

The prosecution, however, contends that the "back to 1918" manifesto could be interpreted only as a demand for complete separation to form a new country.

Croat and Slovene leaders opposed to the present régime said they referred, in voicing this demand, not to the general European status of 1918, but to the status of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes when they came together after the collapse of Austria-Hungary to erect as equal partners a new Serb-Croat-Slovene state.

Complain of Serb Power.

This new state, it is argued by Matchek, the Croat peasant leader, and Antun Koroshetz, former prime minister of the Slovene clerical party, has been illegally transformed into an overlordship of the Serbs.

"We Coats will not be satisfied with anything less than autonomy," Matchek once said. "The gentlemen in Belgrade know very well what we want. We want to be free.

"When we, after the collapse of the Austro-Hungarian empire, joined with the Serbs in a Serb-Croat-Slovene state, it was with the understanding that we entered as a free people, not as a subject race. But we learned to our sorrow that agreements can be set aside."

PREPARE TO REMOVE WINNIE JUDD FROM PRISON TO ASYLUM

Florence, Ariz., April 23.—(AP)—While Winnie Ruth Judd was spending her last day in the Arizona State prison, attendants assumed from her demeanor that she knew her life had been spared by a sanity jury verdict, but she said no word about it.

Her transfer to the state hospital for the insane in Phoenix was delayed because Superior Judge E. L. Green, who presided over the sanity hearing, did not sign the commitment papers after the verdict was returned last night.

Prison attendants said Mrs. Judd appeared to be in high spirits, but that they have been unable to elicit any comment from her to indicate whether she understands she is not to die on the gallows next Friday, as was scheduled until the sanity jury verdict automatically set aside the court order.

FLAMES SWEEP VACANT BUILDING; ORDER INQUIRY

After extinguishing a fire in a four story brick building at 542 West 13th street yesterday, an investigation was begun to determine the origin of the blaze. The building was unoccupied. Fire Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan said he would question the owner today.

The fire was discovered shortly before noon. A 3-11 alarm was sounded by Chief Adelbert White of the first battalion as he reached the scene. Chief White told Fire Commissioner Daniel Carmody, who was also on the scene, that he saw thick smoke rolling from the building and that the smoke had an oily smell.

Several firemen and a number of spectators were endangered when two of the walls collapsed, scattering bricks over the street. After the blaze was extinguished firemen tore down another wall as a safety measure.

"Three weeks ago there was a small fire in the same building," Commissioner Carmody said. "I made a recommendation to the underwriters to cancel the insurance policy. At the same time I warned firemen of this district to expect a large fire soon."

JAPANESE MOVE 9 MILES ALONG ROAD TO PEIPING

Chinese Hold Stubbornly; Strengthen Miyun.

TOKIO, April 23.—(AP)—A Rengo [Japanese] news agency dispatch from Kupeikow today said that four hours of bitter fighting had carried Maj. Gen. Tadashi Kawahara's Japanese lines beyond Shangsuntze, nine miles southwest of Kupeikow, the Great Wall pasageway to Peiping.

The Chinese stubbornly contested the Japanese advance in north China over the rugged terrain, while the invaders pressed the attack and threatened to turn both of the Chinese flanks. For this reason a general Chinese retreat in the direction of the Miyun area was reported to have started.

Chinese concentrations at Miyun, about thirty-five miles north of Peiping, were said by the Japanese to hold threats for Kupeikow, the pass thirty miles north of Miyun. It was said the Japanese intend to maintain a neutral zone in this area.

Expect Further Attacks.

PEIPING, China, April 14 [Monday].—(AP)—In bitter sanguinary fighting in progress since Friday morning near the important Kupei Great Wall pass Chinese troops are reported to have killed more than 200 Japanese, captured 30, and seized much ammunition.

At 1 a. m. today the Chinese military command issued a communique from Kupeikow, the northern gateway to Peiping, stating that further Japanese attacks in the sector were anticipated.

The Chinese defenders of the area blocked an attempted Japanese advance southward through the pass, routed the invaders, and forced the latter to withdraw on Saturday, but at 5 p. m. Sunday Japanese reinforcements arrived to stiffen the Japanese lines, the Chinese bulletin said.

Tientsin Natives Seek Refuge.

TIENTSIN, China, April 23.—(AP)—Fears that a political upheaval will follow a Japanese invasion of North China crippled Tientsin with increased intensity today. The huge Chinese population of the native quarters began streaming into the foreign concessions seeking safety. Hundreds of rickshaws, carts, and automobiles, all laden with property, choked the roadways.

The Japanese war office said Japanese and Manchukuo armies did not intend to advance beyond the Lwan river unless they were attacked. Foreign observers, however, believe the attackers would enter the Tientsin and Peiping areas if Chinese resistance continued to the north.

It is widely reported that the Japanese and the Chinese separatists are endeavoring to bring about the withdrawal of the Nanking government divisions from the vicinity of Kupeikow and the retirement of all troops of the former Mukden armies from the Lwan river front, which was quiet today.

Chess Game Played by Mail Ends After Seven Years

Portland, Ore., April 23.—(AP)—The chess game Walter J. Dodge of Portland has been playing with his brother, George S. Dodge of Montebello, Cal., is finally over. Played by mail, it took seven years to complete it. Their first game, started in 1922, took only four years. They have one more game to go to decide the series, each having won a game. Dodge predicts the championship will be decided by 1940.

ISSUE REPORTS ON 20 CLOSED NATIONAL BANKS

Only One Institution Here Missing from List.

Reports of the receivers for twenty of the twenty-one closed national banks in Chicago and suburbs as of March 31, were made public yesterday at the office of the controller of the currency in Washington.

The reports show that in some instances one individual is acting as receiver for two or three banks. Unlike the reports of state bank receivers, there is no segregation of receivers' and attorneys' fees under the item of "receivership expenses." This makes it impossible to determine whether the receivers listed are drawing fees from more than one institution, and to what extent.

Collect Stock Levies.

The reports show that national bank receivers have been far more successful in enforcing assessments of double liability upon bank stockholders than have the state bank receivers. In national bank liquidations the receiver imposes the stockholders' assessment as soon as the bank is suspended while in state bank liquidations a separate receiver is appointed to collect from stockholders.

The report of N. W. Irwin, receiver for the Hyde Park-Kenwood National bank, which suspended last June 22 with deposit liabilities of $4,849,770, is the only one missing in the list now being made public. A federal court jury recently returned a judgment of $184,392 against John A. Carroll former president of the bank, on a stockholders' liability suit brought by the receiver on behalf of the depositors.

Other Receivers' Reports.

Reports of the other receivers are as follows:

SOUTH PARK BOARD WILL BUILD BEACH AT OAKWOOD BOULEVARD

The south park board has voted to expend $70,000 for the comfort and enjoyment of thousands of bathers along the shore line this summer. A new beach at Oakwood boulevard and the outer drive was the major project in the program adopted by Mayor Kelly, who retains his presidency of the board, and the other commissioners.

The Jackson park beach will be decked out in a gay Riviera fashion for World's Fair visitors. Plans call for brightly painted umbrellas and beach chairs for the swimmers. A new system of night illumination will be installed and the beach area will be enlarged. Special provisions will be made for large beach parties.

A temporary pedestrian bridge will be built over the east drive at the foot of 64th street in order that the crowds going to and from Jackson park beach will be unmolested by traffic.

In order to create the new beach at Oakwood boulevard the park board will have to make a sand fill of 40,000 yards. The beach will be 500 feet long and will cost $50,000. It is scheduled to be completed by the opening of the Worlds Fair on June 1 or shortly thereafter.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE JARECKI PLAN.

Judge Jarecki has lent his name to a proposal for the collection of delinquent taxes on the installment plan. The delinquencies now total, according to a recent compilation, no less than 206 million dollars for the years 1928, 1929, and 1930. It is still impossible to determine what the delinquency will be on the 1931 levy which is now in collection, but, according to present indications, it can hardly fail to add another 50 or 60 million dollars to the amount in default.

The Jarecki plan provides that any one delinquent on his 1928, 1929, or 1930 bill may be authorized to pay his back debt in installments over a period of eight or ten years provided he shows his good will in the matter by paying up his obligations in full on the 1931 taxes. When he has paid his current bill the penalties on his unpaid obligations will be reduced from 12 to 6 per cent a year. Then, if he meets his future bills and his installments on back taxes as they fall due, he will be in no danger of losing his property through a tax sale.

It is also proposed to permit delinquent taxpayers who filed objections to previous assessments but were given no hearing before the board of review to present their objections to the County court for adjudication.

The merit of the plan lies less in the provision it makes for collection of back taxes than in the incentive it offers for payment of the current bills. There is little basis for estimating how many dollars that incentive might be expected to bring in. If the first installment is 10 per cent, as has been tentatively proposed, the maximum that can be expected is 20 million dollars, and of course the payments will total far less unless one of the effects of the expected inflation is to raise real estate income and values overnight to the boom levels.

The payment of the installments is not likely of itself to provide any great relief to the local governments in the next few years. All that can be expected of these payments of overdue amounts, broadly speaking, is that they may be applied against the outstanding tax warrants of the governments and to that extent improve the governments' credit. Improving their credit, however, is a very different thing from restoring their credit. It will take much more than a partial collection of a part of the accumulated delinquencies to bring about a full recovery.

The fact must be recognized that the taxes now owing on many properties are not going to be paid unless the value of the dollar sinks a good deal farther than any one can reasonably expect. Many present owners can better afford to lose their properties than pay because the properties are scarcely worth what they would cost at tax sales, even if there were any tax buyers in the market. On the other hand, there are some owners and prospective owners after mortgage foreclosures who can and would start to square their accounts.

One danger in the proposal is that it may invite further tax evasion and give a color of legality to it. Owners whose equities have been wiped out but who still are hoping for some miraculous intervention to save their investments may seize upon the arrangement to gain time. They will file their papers in the County court and then delay the hearing as long as possible unless regulations are set out which make this kind of stalling impossible. The plan should not be given a moment's consideration unless it provides that no one may go into the court for consideration of his back taxes unless he has paid his current bill in full. If he cannot meet his current bill it is obvious that he cannot raise the money to pay his installments in addition, and time spent on such cases will be wasted. The plan should also include precise description of how the tens of thousands of complaints that are to be expedited are to be handled expeditiously in the court.

The revenue situation is bad enough as it is without invoking any plan which might serve to make matters worse. Too much kindness to delinquents can only be an encouragement to delinquency by those who hitherto have faithfully contributed their share to the costs of government.

As an expedient for encouraging payment of the current tax bills the Jarecki plan is deserving of study, but even if it passes muster no one can afford to regard it as offering a permanent solution. There is only one permanent solution of the tax problems of Cook county and that is so radical a reduction in taxes that they will no longer be too burdensome for large numbers of property owners to meet.

PRIVATE JUSTICE IN THE COURTHOUSE.

A lawyer who punched opposing counsel's nose and broke it apologized to the victim and the court and was fined $100. Judge Sabath seems to have felt that the fine and the apologies were sufficient to wipe out the affront to the court and its processes. That merely reflects the low price which the judge places upon the dignity of the position to which he has been elected. Courts were instituted precisely to avoid the physical conflicts and other forms of private justice which had been the only means of settling many disputes. Physical violence should be as unwelcome in the courthouse as a witch doctor would be in the operating rooms of the Presbyterian hospital. A judge who had the traditions of the law in his marrow would not have regarded a hundred dollar fine as adequate to the offense. At least six months in jail would have been added.

THE SECRETARY OF UNEMPLOYMENT.

One unavoidable result of Miss Frances Perkins' 30 hour week minimum wage bill would be a far more intensive use of labor saving machinery than we have yet seen. The technocrats thought they knew something about machinery as a job destroyer. They didn't know the half of it.

A factory employé may work only 30 hours a week, Miss Perkins' bill says, and every factory worker must earn a minimum wage which she will determine. Factory girls are now paid in the neighborhood of 20 cents an hour in numerous industries. If they work 44 hours they make $8.80 a week. That isn't much, and every one wishes it were more, but the companies which are hiring these girls aren't getting enough for their product to pay higher wages. If consumers could afford to pay more for the things they buy the factories could pay wages at something like the 1929 level.

Miss Perkins says the girls may work only 30 hours a week. At 20 cents an hour, which is all the factory owner can afford to pay, that would mean only $6 a week. No doubt Miss Perkins would regard that as below the proper minimum wage and would order wage increases.

One of two things would inevitably result: Either the company would go out of business, thus throwing its whole working force on the relief lists, or the management would discover mechanical substitutes for its workers. It comes down to pretty much the same thing.

The urge to employ automatic machinery comes from the saving which that machinery enables the factory owner to obtain. Because wages are currently lower than they have been the pressure to install new machinery is less than it was a few years ago. Machine builders of late have had greater difficulty than before in convincing factory owners that new automatic machines will save money.

Now Miss Perkins is going to change all that. She is going to provide new and artificial inducements to install job destroying equipment. She wins the 1933 prize for good intentions gone wrong. It is not every secretary of labor who can propose, at a time when ten million or more people are out of work, a measure which all but guarantees the destruction of a substantial part of the remaining jobs.

LOOKING AT EACH OTHER.

Tong-Lim, a Chinese contributor to Vox Pop living in Chicago, asks his American friends to take an introspective view of their own conditions and a more sympathetic one of conditions in China. He discovers that his Chinese friends doing business in Chicago must accept the hazard of holdups and robbery as a not unexpectable part of their daily business. He knows that the Chinese are not exceptional in taking these chances because the American has the same experiences.

His own country is in turmoil but he believes that an American merchant in a Chinese city would have greater immunity from crime committed by Chinese than a Chinese merchant in Chicago could expect from crimes committed by Americans.

We think of our own security as being any number of pegs above that in China under its varieties of government, its war lords, and its bandit chiefs. Inasmuch as our politicians are not at the head of regiments, taking each other's cities and levying taxes by presenting bayonets, we conclude that Chinese and American civilizations belong to different worlds and different ages. Each man sees his own conditions with an acceptance of them he does not extend to conditions alien to his normal habit. We view our own prejudices with a charity and understanding which we do not extend to the other fellow's prejudices. We proscribe a habit or a people with a greater indulgence of our own ideas than we grant to their proscriptions of habits and people. We take a hazard to which we have grown accustomed with less difficulty than we meet one totally unfamiliar.

These kinks are ingrained in the human mind. They lead constantly to the astonishment with which one people views another. It must be admitted that a Chinese visitor could view some of our methods and some of our complacency with about as much bewilderment as an American would contemplate what to him would be the political chaos of China. Our sentimentality, giving criminals so free a hand, might be observed by a Chinese with incredibility. The inability of the masses of peaceable Chinese to disarm their buccaneering leaders is something the American can't understand. The mote and the beam are forever getting into the national eye.

Editorial of the Day

WHAT THANKS FOR ECONOMY?

[Decatur Herald.]

No activity of state government has been more constantly under fire than the maintenance of armies of game and fish wardens. The purely political functions of these employés have been given public recognition in such common epithets as "rabbit shepherds." It might have appeared that no sort of retrenchment in state expense would be more nearly unanimously approved than in this department.

Gov. Horner almost immediately upon taking office gave effect to this point of view by dismissing game wardens in droves and by declining to appoint Democrats to succeed them. What happens? Is there a great public shout of applause for the governor's economy? On the contrary, the first thing heard is a complaint from citizens interested in fishing that enforcement of the fish and game laws has been weakened.

This little episode should be instructive to business men who imagine that it should be easy to reduce government costs by elimination of nonessential services. The fact is that every state activity to which the people have grown accustomed has great numbers of friends and no curtailment can be made in any direction without bringing down upon an administration a deluge of angry protests. The business men and taxpayers who desire economy are not much heard from; the special groups who feel that they are being deprived of something make the heavens ring.

All government and all politics are of necessity businesses of compromise. Governments cannot possibly proceed by the strict application of business principles and retain the power to do anything at all. The best they can do is to effect the most advantageous adjustment possible between vociferous and conflicting groups of the people.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

WHILE WE WOULD LOVE to strum our lyre as Homer did and raise our melodious voice in praise of the administration's knightly charge on the Gold Dragon and tying a tin can to the beast's tail, still, not having paid the last three installments on the lyre, they grabbed it away from us, but at least we would like to sing a modest canto celebrating the fact that while Franklin Delano has been President of these United States for almost two months he hasn't been fishing once in all that time. Which sets some kind of record.

"MOVIES REDUCE Will Hays' Salary 80 Per Cent."—Headline. Oh, gosh! Another tag day.

LOTS OF PEOPLE seem to think it was very noble of Ramsay MacDonald not to feel peevish at Franklin Delano for going suddenly off the gold standard while Ramsay was on the ocean coming over to have a little chat at the White House on that very subject. But we didn't notice that England sent out much advance notice or put up any three sheet posters to announce the British were going off the gold standard. A nation going off the gold standard is like a man taking a cold bath—he just shuts his eyes, grits his teeth, and jumps in.

WITH BEAUTY MY CREED.

With beauty my creed,
I quarrel with none:
Can we wrangle of stars,
Or argue the sun?
Come walk with me gaily,
Forget the old feuds;
There's bird-song and wind-song,
Though winter still broods.

Our life is a nectar
For poets to sup;
What matters how came it?
Drink, drink from its cup!
Earth, too, is a dreamland
Of gay nooks and bowers;
Forget its dark secrets,
And brighten your hours.

With beauty our creed,
We're fellows in song;
With beauty our creed,
We'll travel for long;
Dark Death shall not stop us
Who speed o'er the hills,
With dreams in our hearts
And dare in our wills!

IN ASKING FOR DONATIONS of books the public library says the old Demon Depression has borne down so hard on it that it hasn't been able to buy a new book for over two years. That's too bad; still, there is a little bright spot in the picture do we but look for it. Now that the eager readers cannot get hold of the newest best sellers, detective stories, crime thrillers, and love stuff, maybe they'll turn to the books that have been covered with dust on the library's shelves these many years. They range from "Tom Jones" to "The Forsyte Saga" and from "The Moonstone," the best thriller ever written, to "Wuthering Heights," one of the greatest tragedies in the English language, and "Dead Souls," that incredible thing, a masterly comedy out of Russia. If they want romance, let them try Maurice Hewlett's "Forest Lovers," "Janice Meredith," "Lorna Doone," Stevenson's "St. Ives," or Farnol's "Broad Highway"; if they want melodrama at its best, there's "Jane Eyre." Something amusing? All right, take the whole lot of old Trollope's Barchester novels, beginning with "The Warden" and ending with "The Last Chronicles of Barset," or "Cranford," or the endlessly witty "Pride and Prejudice," "Zuleika Dobson," and "Penguin Island." If they must have their realism, they'll find "Madame Bovary," "Kristen Lavransdatter," "Buddenbrooks," and Stendhal's "Red and the Black," written to the queen's taste. Norman Davey's "Pilgrim of a Smile" is a forgotten book that's worth anybody's reading; and from a list like "South Wind" and "The Mill on the Floss," "Old Wives' Tales," "With Fire and Sword," "Precious Bane," "The Woolngs of Jezebel Pettifer," "Vanity Fair," "Tono Bungay," and "Don Quixote," everybody on earth ought to find something to please him. As for the newest nonfiction, our bright spot in the library's not being able to buy any of it is as blinding as August sunlight. We wouldn't give you a page of Carlyle's "French Revolution" or the essays of Charles Lamb for all the books the bright young people of today, who know so darn much they annoy us, could write in a thirty hour week for the next five centuries.

WE FEEL we must continue the inflation of the last line in spite of the Republican opposition in the senate. But, of course, the Republicans would be against it. Politics is like that. WHOOPING COUGH.

ONE of the contagious diseases of childhood that remains in the important class is whooping cough. This is partly because we have no effective vaccine to prevent it and no serum to cure it. Another reason is our uncertainty in diagnosing it. Every parent knows how to recognize the typical cases, but not even the laboratories and the experienced physicians are able to say with certainty what is the nature of many borderline cases.

Whooping does not come until late, and a large part of the cases never whoop. Paroxysms of coughing leading to vomiting, and coming on chiefly at night, are evidence enough for diagnosis in many cases, but not all the children with this contagious malady have night paroxysms or cough until they vomit. There is no accepted, widely used way of proving the nature of these typical cases and parents are slow to accept on conjecture a diagnosis that causes so much domestic inconvenience.

Whooping cough is of importance only in children. One-half of the children have had it when they get old enough to enter school. Another 10 per cent have it in the first four school years. At 10 years of age 60 per cent have had it. Only 1 per cent of the population have whooping cough when over 10 years of age. Of children under 10 years old 6 per cent yearly have it.

The fatality rate among those sick with whooping cough is 1.25 for each one hundred cases. Among babies of one year and less who get it, 4 die out of each one hundred attacked. In the second year of life the rate is 3.3. After that it is not so serious. In age 2 to 5 the fatality rate is only 7 for each one thousand sick. In the group between 5 and 10 years of age the rate is only 2 for each thousand attacked. Compare this with the fatality rate of the pneumonias, which runs near 250 per thousand cases.

According to two British physicians epidemics of whooping cough occur in cities once every two years. One that gets a good start in summer can be expected to hold on through the succeeding winter. There follows a full year of relative freedom. In order that a statistician should be able to see this two year periodicity, with one good and one bad year, the epidemic year should be made to start in summer, as so often the fiscal year is made to do, rather than stick to the calendar year.

These British epidemiologists find many points of resemblance between whooping cough and measles. Both have alternating good and bad years. Both are most contagious in the very early stages and become almost noncontagious before the symptoms disappear. Both diseases seem to burn out before all the exposed people have taken it. In both those in contact with it seem to develop a latent immunity, and it is this feature which causes the epidemic to die down.

PLEURISY.

Mrs. H. F. writes:

1. Is pleurisy curable in known cases?
2. What could cause a dull ache in place where a pleural condition had existed?
3. Could pleurisy be the after effect of pneumonia?

REPLY.

1. Yes. Most cases are cured. There is more than one kind of pleurisy. Some get well without treatment. Some are incurable. Most cases lie between these extremes.
2. An adhesion, a new attack of pleurisy, rheumatism of the chest wall, neuralgia. These are the more likely causes.
3. Yes. In nearly every case of pneumonia there is some pleurisy. Many of the pleurisies are due to the pneumococcus, the microbe of the pneumonias. The pneumococcus pleurisies are usually acute, severe, suppurative, and tend to recovery. On the other hand, the tubercular pleurisies are apt to be mild, chronic, to cause pleura to fill with water. They have far less tendency toward complete recovery.

MAY OR MAY NOT.

Reader writes: 1. Will an electrocardiogram reveal angina pectoris?

2. Can an abscess in the ear drum drain and extend into the mastoid and cause serious trouble, necessitating a very dangerous operation?

REPLY.

1. It often does show the heart is subject to attacks of angina. However, it may not. Cardiograms are usually made between attacks.
2. Yes.

SALES TAX.

Chicago, April 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If a customer orders printing that has been printed, paper purchased, and the articles put in stock during the month of March to be billed in April, does he have to pay the tax? 2. If articles are carried as inventory for nearly a year and are ordered out monthly does that carry a tax? 3. It is our understanding that we pay 3 per cent on all receipts for April billing and not 3 per cent on the total sales even if unpaid. Is that correct? 4. Does a representative come in for the check or is it to be mailed monthly attached to the blank we are to fill out? A. D. W.

1. The law is well established that if nothing remains to be done by the seller except to deliver the goods, title passes at the time of the contract, and we would say that such articles having been in that sense "sold" in March are not subject to the tax.
2. Your facts are not clear. Has there been a definite contract for the goods?
3. Your question is not clear. The tax is "3 per cent of the gross cash receipts from such sales."
4. Article 3 of the regulations requires that the check be mailed with the blank to the department of finance, Springfield.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

UNDER OBSERVATION.

Chicago, April 20.—[Friend of the People.]—Wish to call attention to an old building which formerly was used as a brewery but is now idle. The continuous vibration caused by passing street cars, as well as trains which pass just alongside of this building, can mean nothing else than sooner or later walls or the 300 foot chimney will topple. The wrecking of this building, as well as the old Kirk building on 18th street, would help to give employment to many men.

W. J. G.

The old brewery building referred to has been under our observation for years. There are more than twenty heirs to the estate and there is a mortgage of $250,000 on the property. We have been unable to find any one who will assume responsibility or who will show any interest in the buildings. The building department has, from time to time, removed dangerous portions of these buildings. Our inspector reports that conditions have not changed for many months past and that the 150 foot chimney shows no cracks nor other defects and appears to be in a safe condition. As for the old Kirk buildings, arrangements are under way to put same in good condition or wreck.

JOHN E. ERICSSON,
Commissioner of Buildings.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

40 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 24, 1893.

CHICAGO.—The Midway Plaisance had more than its usual crowd of Sunday sightseers yesterday, ranging in point of material prosperity from the man in broadcloth to the artisan in his Sunday suit. The mud on the street was equally sticky, however, on the patent leather boots of the millionaire and the brogans of the chance farmer who had strayed in between two days of spring corn planting.

Sunday was not religiously observed by the workmen at the World's Fair. The Javanese, for example, tied together the bamboo poles of their huts and tied cocoanut bark over the roofs in the same industrious way that characterizes them during the six secular days of the week.

The Dahomey village was deserted yesterday, but the blue gowned Arabs were on hand bartering with the crowds through the bars of the gates to the Street in Cairo. Some workmen were putting the finishing touches to the German village, and the panorama of Swiss scenery had a sign out announcing it was ready for visitors.

The employés of the American Bronze company placed in position the statue of Columbus. The bronze feet were first lifted up and riveted to the top of the pedestal. Upon them the lower part of the body and the legs were raised and securely fastened. The head and upper portion, all in one piece, weighing nearly four tons, were taken to their lofty position by means of a derrick. Twenty feet high is the statue, the granite pedestal is thirty feet, and the base of the latter is eight feet above the level of the park, so that the top of the head is fifty-eight feet above the park.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 24, 1917.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The United States has given its word that it will fight in conjunction with the allies until the Prussian autocracy is crushed and Americans at home and abroad are safe from the ruthlessness of the Berlin government. This was the outcome of the first conference here yesterday between President Wilson and the Rt. Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, British secretary of state for foreign affairs. The only other participant in the conference, which lasted forty minutes, was Secretary of State Lansing. The head of the British commission which has come to this country to formulate complete coöperation between the United States and the entente allies in the war with Germany was received in state at the White House.

LONDON.—The battle of Arras, which has been smoldering for a week, burst into flaming fury. When night fell the British had taken the village of Gavrelle, almost due west of Vitry, together with the hostile trench system of two and one-half miles to the southward as far as the cemetery of Rouex, Guemappe, south of Monchy, as well as Trescault, near Croisilles. The capture of Gavrelle, according to dispatches from the front, means that the British have broken the "Oppej" line which protects the Von Hindenburg positions north and south of Vitry. There is excellent authority for stating that yesterday's fighting opens up the most ambitious plan the British have yet set before them in the war. The big battles of the last two weeks on the British and French fronts constituted the necessary preliminaries to the effort which began today. Everything is now ready for the final attack on Lens, which is virtually surrounded and must fall quickly. Douai and the roads to Lille, the great industrial center of northern France, constitute the next objectives.

CIVIL LIBERTIES.

New York, April 14.—In an editorial entitled "A Fraud Exposed" in your issue of the 13th, in referring to the defense of the Scottsboro case in Alabama, you characterize as frauds appeals published by the Civil Liberties union for funds to insure a fair trial. You further state that the managers of the Civil Liberties union "have no regard for civil liberties except when they can be pleaded for the protection of radical mischief makers and criminals." You characterize them as "communists and sympathizers with bolshevism." You are wholly in error on every point.

1. The appeals are not "frauds," but an attempt to aid in the defense, for which we have no responsibility, in order to guarantee the constitutional right to the fairest possible trial as demanded by the United States Supreme court in reversing the first conviction. Your assumption that we are not interested in a fair trial but in some ulterior purpose is wholly gratuitous.

2. The managers of the Civil Liberties union, far from protecting only "radical mischief makers and criminals," are engaged in campaigns on many issues not involving radicals at all—radio censorship, the motion picture censorship, academic freedom in our schools and colleges, the third degree, civil rights for American Indians, legislation to end the evils of injunctions, among others. The Scottsboro case, by the way, does not involve radicals but almost illiterate Negro boys, who are yet to be proved to be "criminals."

3. The managers of the Civil Liberties union are not "communists nor sympathizers with bolshevism." The chairman is the Rev. Harry F. Ward of the Union Theological seminary. The vice chairmen are Miss Helen Phelps Stokes, James H. Maurer, well known Socialist, and Freedom [sic] Older, San Francisco editor. The general counsel are Arthur Garfield Hays and Morris L. Ernst, identified as liberals, not radicals. These are among the men who most actively determine the policies and activities of the Civil Liberties union.

Your attempt to characterize the union as run by "enemies of democracy" because I pointed out the obvious fact that political democracy everywhere is being scrapped for dictatorship is a wholly unwarranted conclusion. Your own paper has said as much.

In conclusion it is appropriate to remind you as evidence of our nonradical activities that the American Civil Liberties union was the first champion of freedom of the press involved in the Minnesota gag law case, which THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the American Newspaper Publishers' association later took over from us and defended.

ROGER BALDWIN.

TIMES ARE HARD, BROTHER.

Chicago, April 18.—Let's stand back of former Chief Justice Thompson and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. These new fangled notions of equality and public welfare and new doctrines of government are dangerous to the freedom of the country. Yes, sir, Mr. Kipling! Let them only be temporary.

But when the pressure of necessity has passed let's return to the true principles of Americanism of Morgan, Bain, Mitchell, Insull, Mellon, Bishop Cannon, Al Capone, et al.

Bet you a nickel you don't publish this epistle. R. F.

A BILL OF DIVORCEMENT.

Chicago, April 17.—Mr. Tomczak said: "The New York law is not as strict as the Bible, which absolutely prohibits divorce 'a vinculo' for any cause." If Mr. Tomczak will refer to the Scriptures he will find verbatim the following passage [Deut. xxiv., 1.]:

"When a man hath taken a wife and married her, and it come to pass that she find no favor in his eyes, . . . then let him write her a bill of divorcement and give it in her hand and send her out of his house."

J. MITCHELL BRUCE.

YES, YES, GO ON.

Chicago, April 20.—Will you grant me the favor of a small space in your paper to thank the young lady who so willingly risked her own life to save the lives of a frantic mother and small child from being killed by two automobiles last Saturday evening about 5:30? This happened on Arthington street, near Albany avenue. I was a witness to this, but was unable to find out who this courageous young lady was. I hope she will read this and know there is at least one person who appreciated such a wonderful act of charity. She was injured, but I hope not seriously. It was a miracle all three were not killed. The mother and child escaped.

BRITONS EXILED BY RUSSIA GET ROUSING OVATION

Great Crowd Greets Four Engineers in London.

LONDON, April 23.—(AP)—Greeted by rousing cheers from a large crowd, the British technicians who were deported from Russia as a result of their sabotage and espionage trial arrived in London today. They still showed traces of their experiences in Moscow, but were smilingly astonished at the warmth of their welcome.

The deportees, Allan Monkhouse, John Cushny, and C. H. Nordwall, were accompanied by A. W. Gregory, another Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical company's engineer, who was acquitted in the Moscow hearing last week. Nordwall's Russian wife, who had never before seen England, was also in the party.

Refuse to Talk of Trial.

The four homecoming Britons stood bareheaded as the crowd sang the national anthem, and then happily greeted their anixous friends and relatives. Subsequently, Sir Felix Pole, chairman of Metropolitan-Vickers, accompanied them to a hotel for a quiet reunion with their more intimate friends.

None of the men would talk about the trial, their detention, or their previous arrest and questioning by the Russian secret police. Their silence on these points was at the behest of company officials.

Monkhouse, the former director of the firm in Russia, repudiated entirely, however, the idea attributed to him in London newspapers that some of the acussed Britons were subjected to hypnotic treatment while under arrest in Mosow.

"I gave no interviews whatever regarding my experiences," Monkhouse declared, "and the statements attributed to me regarding hypnotism are a fantastic invention."

Hints at Mistreatment.

On the arrival of the deportees here Monkhouse said they had been well treated in prison, "but the prison and the place where we were interrogated for nearly 17 hours were things apart."

He added: "You will not get me to speak about the interrogation yet—that's another story."

Monkhouse thanked representatives of the American and British press for the way in which they put the case before the public. "I want to express deep regret that we have only four of us, not six, here. We hope the other two will be home very soon."

[It was reported that the soviet central executive committee might act favorably on a petition that W. L. MacDonald and L. C. Thornton, two other engineers who were sentenced to prison terms, be released soon].

Russians Leave Quitely.

In contrast with the vociferous welcome for the arriving Britons was the quiet departure of the Russian trade delegation later in the day for Moscow. Ambassador Maisky, the embassy personnel, and a crowd of members of the Russian colony bade them farewell at the station.

Asked if the delegation would return soon, one of the commision replied, "I cannot say. I am preparing a report which I shall hand to my government immediately on reaching Moscow."

The trade delegation was recalled when soviet Russia invoked a full embargo on British goods and drastic measures against British shipping, in retaliation for an earlier British embargo, decreed as a protest measure against the trial, which would barr 80 per cent of Russian imports to Great Britain.

MOONEY TRIAL TO OPEN WEDNESDAY; BAR SPECTACLE

San Francisco, Cal., April 23.—(AP)—While police organized to check demonstrations, preparations went forward here today for the start Wednesday of Thomas J. Mooney's second trial for murder—a trial which the court warned will be "no public spectacle."

Mooney, once condemned to die for the San Francisco preparedness day bombing of 1916, will face the "new deal" the law has granted him in a regular court room at the hall of justice.

Efforts to have the trial conducted in the specious civic auditorium or some other hall which would accommodate thousands brought the ruling against a "public spectacle" from Superior Judge Louis H. Ward.

Only seven seats, Judge Ward further ordered, will be reserved in the small court room. They will be for members of Mooney's family.

Mooney himself will be brought from San Quentin prison Tuesday and placed in the San Francisco jail during the trial. It will be his first trip outside the prison since he entered its gates in 1917, a condemned convict whose sentence was later commuted to life.

Swiss Fascist Party Born; Would Expel Jewish Exiles

ZURICH, Switzerland, April 23.—A Fascist party was created here today. A crowd of 1,000 attended the organization meeting of the new Swiss "national front." Orators demanded the suppression of Marxism, restriction of the freedom of the press, muzzling of pacifist agitation, and expulsion of all Jewish refugees who have come here from Germany.

JEWS IN POLAND CALL BOYCOTT OF GERMAN GOODS

Protest Treatment of Race by Hitler.

WARSAW, April 23.—(AP)—A boycott of German goods "as the best means of protesting against the persecution of Jews in Germany" was decided upon today at a convention of Polish Jews attended by 852 delegates representing Jewish political parties, business organizations, and rabbis.

A resolution emphasized that Polish Jews are fighting only the régime of Chancellor Hitler, and not the German nation.

It advocated that Jews in all countries convene in Geneva during the forthcoming league of nations session to exercise "moral pressure on the powers" in order to force them to protest against the alleged persecution.

The convention recommended that German Jews go to Palestine and addressed the British government regarding immigration facilities.

New Protestant Constitution.

BERLIN, April 23.—(AP)—In furtherance of Nazi efforts to control Protestant German church life and to create a united German evangelical church union, Hermann Kapler, president of the German Evangelical church commission, has summoned leading theologists and pastors as advisors to cooperate in the drafting of a new Protestant constitution.

It was reported Chancellor Hitler and Kapler will meet Tuesday.

A communique telling of the summoning of the advisers said that a United German Evangelical church will be formed on the basis of the strictest observance of the rights of faith.

It also was emphasized that the church shall retain full powers required for cultivation of the entire German Evangelical church life and its relation to the people and the state.

Compose Differences.

While Protestant church authorities in the state of Mecklenburg-Schwerin took cognizance of the appointment of Walter Blohm as church commissioner, the supreme church council of state and government composed differences over the appointment by the decision that he will not act for the moment pending a final solution. This is expected next week-end.

Pastors in all churches at Rostock declared in their sermons today that installation of the church commissioner had not been completed and denied that the supreme church council had resigned.

The pastors said they regarded the attempt of "forced encroachment" as dangerous and as "contradicting the chancellor's solemn assurance that he would not interfere with independence of the churches."

France Protests Man's Arrest.

PARIS, April 23. — (AP) — Francois Poncet, French ambassador to Berlin, was instructed today to protest to the German government against the arrest of a Frenchman named Smyrnoff at Treves, Germany.

Dispatches from Metz said that Smyrnoff was attacked a week ago by an individual who called him "a dirty Frenchman" and a spy.

TROOPS TAKE TO JUNGLE AS PLANE BOMBS GUNBOAT

LIMA, Peru, April 23.—(AP)—A war office announcement today said Peruvian forces had advanced about two miles last Thursday in the Gueppi sector of the upper Amazon valley.

On the same day, an official bulletin said, Peruvian airplanes bombed and attacked with machine guns a Colombian gunboat. Troops on the boat were said to have landed and hurriedly taken shelter in the jungle.

Peru and Colombia have been in conflict several months in this area over control of the Leticia territory.

Good Musical Events Crowd Day's Calendar

Cadman Attends Recital of His Works.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Almost at what is ordinarily the end of a musical season, yesterday afternoon and evening were about as productive of musical events as any Sunday since the season began. Among the most important of these was a concert given by the Metropolitan Singers of Chicago in the ballroom of the Stevens hotel, which became a full program of the works of the well known American composer, Charles Wakefield Cadman.

Mr. Cadman was the guest of honor of the concert, presenting some of his compositions as a soloist of the piano, accompanying some of the others. The leading item was a first hearing of "Father of Waters," a cantata with text by Nelle Richmond Eberhart, who has been Mr. Cadman's collaborator in many of his most important works. It is a dramatic treatment of the Mississippi river and the story of the middle west, considered geographically, historically, and spiritually.

Ever a fluent composer with an unceasing fund of melody at his command, Mr. Cadman has written an impressive piece. He and Betsey Knowlton Williams played the accompaniment on two pianos. The chorus, conducted by Tudor Williams and augmented by members of the Illinois Central Male chorus, the North Shore Baptist Male chorus, the Hawthorne Male chorus, and the Apollo Musical club, sang stirringly, and there were excellent solo parts by Mary Catherine Collins, soprano; William Miller, tenor, and Leslie Arnold, baritone. Previous to this Mr. Cadman had played a movement from his sonata in A, Mr. Miller had been highly effective in a group of songs, and there had been a performance of the trio in D.

Another interesting event of the afternoon was an operatic concert by the People's Symphony orchestra, conducted by P. Marinus Paulsen, at Orchestra hall. No less than thirteen soloists added their talents to the occasion. The "Flying Dutchman" Overture by Wagner began the program, followed by a long series of arias. After the intermission the only nonoperatic soloist, Yasna Bjankini, pianist, gave a brilliant performance of the Liszt Concerto in E flat, and this was followed by the "Rigoletto" quartet, the "Lucia" sextet and the orchestral "Ride of the Valkyries," thus beginning and ending with Wagner.

The Chicago String quartet closed its series at the Chicago Woman's Club theater, appearing in the Mozart Quartet in A, a beautifully performed setting of two ancient Scots tunes by A. C. Mackenzie, and an interesting quintet for strings and harp wherein the greatly talented harpist, Alberto Salvi, assisted.

Among other events of the afternoon were a dance program by Serge Oukrainsky at the Bal Tabarin of the Hotel Sherman, assisted physically by Lydia Arlova and a group of other dancers and visually by various light effects, and a piano program, mostly of Chopin, but with additions by Beethoven and Brahms, by the brilliant performer, Moissaye Boguslawski, at the Lake Shore Athletic club.

Alexander Savine made his first public appearance in Chicago in a concert at the Hotel La Salle last night. Coming under the auspices of the Yugoslav arts committee, he conducted a varied orchestral program and then gave the first Chicago hearing of some excerpts from his opera, "Xenia," in concert form with the assistance of the orchestra and a vocal ensemble.

Founded upon a legendary tale of old Serbia, and translated into English by his wife, Lillian Blauvelt, herself a widely known operatic and concert singer, the music is strongly marked with Slavic, and occasionally, as in the vespers scene, with Byzantine influences, altogether an unusual and stimulating idiom. It would be a pleasure to make its further acquaintance by hearing it at full length and in its staged version.

Good Morning!

O, but the scenery in this is enchanting! Naples, Pompeii, the grottos of Capri, and vision after vision of shores and waters, that make your throat ache with their beauty!

And with what cunning the director chose his "shots!" A girl in quaint Neapolitan costume, looking wistfully out to sea from the shore at Naples! Giovanni singing to Claire amid the ruins of Pompeii! The photography is not always perfect, but its very flaw of haziness is an added charm, for some of the scenes seem to have been photographed through a soft mist. . . . I think it would be clever of me to write a book and make enough money to go to Italy. . . . O, well, thank the Lord for movies!

Jan Kiepura, the tenor, is the featured player. The story depicts him as a gay Neapolitan guide, loved by many maids, and in love with pretty Carmella who keeps house for an English sculptor. Her small brother sells the artist's statuettes on the beach to tourists—and for bits of most delightful comedy I refer you to this little fellow. He is a very small boy to be such a very great actor. His motions are positively fluid; his eyes sparkle with intelligence and mischief; his voice is feather soft and honeyed with guile. [Messy combination, as I write it.]

A beautiful Viennese tourist arrives in Naples. She hires Giovanni as her guide. Temperamental, artistic, unmoral she is, and, ere long, she has subjugated the simple youth whose voice, in turn, has swept her off her feet.

Too wonderful to be wasted, that voice, she cries. And so—she takes him to Vienna, away from the adoring Carmella. . . .

The story is slight, but warmly colorful in interpretation. Intensely sympathetic and intuitive acting is provided by Brigitte Helm and Trude Berliner and the men of the supporting cast are good.

In this picture Kiepura, whose glorious tenor voice rings out on every possible occasion, is far from being the attractive personality he is in a later made film "Be Mine Tonight." He is undeniably stodgy to look at and there is a sort of fatness about his acting. But when he sings, you forget all that. . . .

"City of Songs" has been most deftly directed. It is a picture that will keep you from worrying about inflation for a long, dreamy, beauty steeped hour.

See you tomorrow!

Beery Balks at Stage Way of Rehearsals

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., April 24.—[Special.]—The only bit of temperament so far displayed on the MGM set of "Dinner at Eight" has been, of all persons you would not expect, by Wally Beery. And that in a cast including John and Lionel Barrymore, Lee Tracy, Marie Dressler, Billie Burke, Madge Evans.

"I know why Wally objected," said George Cukor, director, "and I don't blame him."

It was over a couple of rehearsals for a piece of business. Wally didn't want to rehearse.

"He's an old motion picture actor," Cukor said, "and like all the successful actors from back in earlier days in films, he does his work spontaneously, gets the idea or the mood of it, and then likes to do his stuff at once. With the stage actors, the Barrymores, and Tracy, it's different. They can't rehearse a thing enough to suit them."

Jimmy Cagney is to be master of ceremonies at a "Free Tom Mooney" massmeeting in San Francisco this week. Cagney has dug down in his own pocket considerably because of his strong feelings on the Mooney case.

Although they never had met on the other side Marlene Dietrich and Dorothea Wieck have been like long lost sisters at Paramount. On the Wieck girl's first visit to the studio, where she is just starting and Marlene is leaving, she arrived at lunch time and was looking about the studio café when Marlene espied her and came, almost running across the length of the room, to greet the newcomer. Marlene brought her arms about the lonesome Swiss girl and poured forth a torrent of German, part of which hearers caught as: "Welcome to Hollywood, Fräulein, permit me the privilege of congratulating you on such a fine performance in 'Maedchen in Uniform'." The rest of the conversation came too fast and excitedly for any onlooker to catch.

Paramount has cabled Herbert Marshall and Charles Laughton, both now in England, to arrange to end their stage work abroad so as to report here June 17 and begin "Hangman's Whip" with Dorothea Wieck.

There are ten thousand actors registered in Hollywood, and I was told at the Hays office headquarters only three hundred of them received screen credit by having their names printed with their parts in the films made in 1932.

Business Meeting Turns Out to Be Style Show

Mrs. E. Knisely Hales, Mrs. Artemus Watson, Jr., Mrs. Herbert W. Bartling, Mrs. Victor A. Spoehr, and Mrs. William Winterhalter (left to right) are a few of the young north shore matrons who are working for the success of a dance and fashion show to be given by the Evanston Auxiliary of the Chicago Maternity Center on Saturday, May 6, at the Evanston Golf club. All dressed in new spring outfits, the meeting at which this picture was taken might have been sort of a preview of the fashion showing.

String, Common String, Fashions Latest Clothes

BY RHEA SEEGER.

"They" . . . meaning all energetic and slightly mad dress designers who go in for knitted clothes . . . use anything, just so it is something new and enough different to intrigue the rather baffled fashion reporters who trail the stuff. So, if you are fashion wise, and the kind of a shopper who dotes on new ideas, you'll certainly get all wound up with the newest arrivals, the clothes made of string.

If you have ever wondered what all the champion string savers saved string for this is the season, or the time, for the secret to be told. Balls, hanks, and hunks of string have been knitted into these amazingly good looking sports clothes . . . sports and street clothes of such lovely colors as dusty pink, powder blue, yellow, and, of course, the good old string color.

You can buy one piece dresses that fit like nobodies' business, knitted with unexpectedly good patterns, or you can select two piece affairs that are as swanky as anything you have ever dreamed about. And they are knitted [machine] of nothing but string, regular package string, the stuff that comes around groceries, T-bone steaks, and parcels from any careful shipping department.

Later you can buy hats with a strong string makeup, or gloves, and even handbags, and some of the best looking string belts you have ever cinched around your waistline are now waiting for appreciative spring string shoppers.

String knitted wear will completely satisfy . . . all the dresses and costumes are incredibly soft and clinging . . . and while they are loosely knitted, it is quite possible to wear them without worrying over sufficient underlayers. And the price tags are low enough to be irresistible.

Belonging to this newly recognized string strain are the cord handbags, stunning color discs of cord, literally going around and around in ever growing circles and finishing this merry-go-round as fashion's newest god-child. Dull black affairs could be carried all spring and summer, flippant green and red models are ready for any suit-able contrast, while white and light colored numbers are perfect finds for summer cottons and linens.

While you are discovering this new string wear you will find the gay plaid wool handbags, squatty square-ish looking things, that look like they should be worn with flippant sports clothes, or skittish suits, and unusual flannel street costumes.

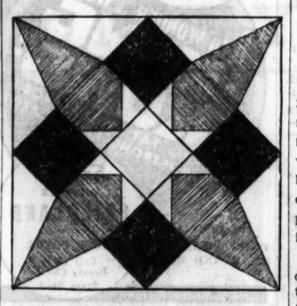
Quilt Is Equally Effective in Vivid or Pastel Colors



Skyrocket.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The skyrocket pattern, if fitting to your personality and your general scheme of things, presents an opportunity for you to exhibit a showy burst of color in your quilt that will rival the brilliance of fireworks. And as you can see, this same pattern is quite as adaptable to the popular powdery pastels used so much in modern interiors. It should please every one.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address carefully. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Women Need Not Fear Beer as Fat Maker

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Women who have looked with longing eye on beer with its foam as frothy as a meringue pastry need not fear its caloric consequences. Tests were cited yesterday to prove that beer is not fattening if taken in moderation; also that beer is far below popular nonalcoholic beverages when it comes to counting calories.

Sixteen kinds of new era beers now on the market have been examined in the laboratories of the Wahl Institute of Brewing Technology. They were found to have an average alcoholic content of 2.71 per cent and the extract, or food material, averaged 3.9 per cent, according to Arnold Spencer Wahl, who, with his father, Dr. Robert Wahl, directs the institute.

On this basis there are only 92 calories in each ten ounce stein," explained Mr. Wahl. "Of these 92 calories, 54 are in the alcohol and 38 in the remaining components of beer.

"Compare this with other beverages. Ten ounces of cocoa contain 279 calories and is therefore three times more fattening than the 2.71 per cent beer. Ten ounces of either tea or coffee with one teaspoon of sugar and one ounce of cream have 156 calories each.

The institute has prepared the following table showing the percentages of alcohol and extract and the total calories in a ten ounce stein of various beers and of ale and stout:

	Alcohol.	Extract.	Total. calories.
New legal beer	2.71	3.9	92
Old-time bottled beer	4.53	4.96	130
Old-time draft beer	4.27	4.40	120
Ale	6.02	4.86	155
Porter	4.46	6.0	140
German Muenchener	4.54	6.96	182
German Pilsner	4.18	4.69	123
Weiss beer	2.79	5.29	103
Stout	5.16	7.07	172

A calorie chart prepared by Antoinette Donnelly, TRIBUNE writer, reveals that the average person requires no more than 2,000 calories daily. The woman at home with little or nothing to do requires between 1,600 and 1,800 calories, and if she is trying to reduce she may cut down her diet to 1,200 to 1,500 calories daily.

Show Interest in Premiere of Play Tomorrow

City Residents to Travel to Lake Forest.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE are very few things that will draw city residents as far as Lake Forest on a week night [they scramble to accept invitations from their country friends for Saturday nights or week-ends], but something is happening out there tomorrow night that is interesting enough to make every one who has been invited to attend it and a dinner party first, anxious to be there.

The event is the first performance of Harlan Ware's "Return to Folly" and Irene Castle McLaughlin's first appearance on any stage in nine years, in fact ever since she became Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin. Those few who have seen a rehearsal say it is a most amusing play and excellently done, and of course seeing the glamorous Mrs. McLaughlin as an actress will be a treat. She isn't to dance, unfortunately, but she is to have a chance to wear quite a variety of lovely new clothes, Miss Mildred FitzHugh, the play's press agent, assures us.

Others in the cast are Roberta Thorne Ellis [Mrs. Corson Ellis], Virginia FizHugh Wamboldt, whose husband, Melvin P. Wamboldt, is the director, 12 year old Mary Faith Wilson, Stuart Bailey, Samuel Otis and four or five others.

There are to be any number of dinners before the Lake Forest performance, some of the hosts and hostesses being Mr. and Mrs. Phelps Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. Hermon D. Smith, the Wayne Chatfield-Taylors, the George Richardsons and the Clymer Bowens. The play is to be repeated at the Skokie school in Winnetka on Friday night and at the Haven school in Evanston on May 4, the proceeds of all three performances going to Mrs. McLaughlin's home for stray dogs, "Orphans of the Storm."

There is talk of bringing the production to town to play in a loop theater for several nights, but this isn't decided yet. Tickets for the three north shore performances are on sale at drug stores of the three towns.

Three Events on Busy Day.

Despite the sunshine yesterday afternoon most of society chose "under roof" entertainment at the Historical society, the Arts club, or the Palmer house.

Important presentations were made to the Historical society at the Spanish-American war program at which Admiral Wat T. Cluverius told of his experiences in that conflict.

Mrs. Robert R. McCormick and Mrs. Arthur A. Small presented their famous Spanish-American war scrapbook to the society and Charles S. Dewey presented a revolver used by Aguinaldo, the Filipino rebel leader.

After this was the Arts club tea for the professional members who have their oils, etchings, and water colors hung in the club's galleries. From 4:30 on until well after 7:30 a continuous throng admired the hangings and stopped for a bit of salad, a sandwich, and a cup of tea or coffee.

The tea table was stunning in old lace, white flowers, and crystal can-

The Changeling Bride

By Martha Ostenso

SYNOPSIS.

The Hendersons—Meryl and Margaret, sisters; Flint, their older brother, and Andrew, the father—have lived for twelve years in poverty in a fishing settlement on the shores of Lake Superior, after losing their fortune in Chicago. Great-Aunt Letitia, formerly dean of a girls' school in Ohio, is the liaison between the Hendersons and a cultured past Flint and his friend, Ned Bremner, hope to build up a great export business. A forest fire brings Blake Lawrence, injured and lost, to the Henderson cottage. There were two great names in nearby Agate Bay and its environs—Lawrence and Greer. When Blake returns to Agate Bay he takes Meryl with him to be his bride. Meryl learns, after the wedding ceremony, through Lucia, a snobbish cousin of the Lawrences, that Blake married her as an escape from Christine, the wife of Julius Greer, with whom he had been in love. Meryl prepares to return home. Theresa, Blake's sister, persuades her to stay for six months, for Blake's sake, whom she still loves, and not to hurt her people. Theresa promises to teach her social service work. Greer at one time saved the Lawrence fortune and Blake feels honor bound not to interfere with the crooked schemes he knows Greer is engaged in. Meryl believes Blake won't fight Greer because of Christine. Greer causes the death of Ola Palka, an old friend and neighbor of the Hendersons. Theresa and Meryl go to New York to attend a charity conference. Blake's separation from Meryl makes him realize he is in love with her, though he thinks Meryl is now interested in his friend, Cy Granville, whom Meryl has met in New York. Meryl returns home with a determination to fight Greer herself, with the aid of Cy. Meryl and Blake attend a house warming at the Frobishers during one of the worst snowstorms of the year. They are obliged to stay over night.

INSTALLMENT XXXVII.

DOUBLING UP.

In the passage to the butler's pantry Blake met Christine. She was alone.

"Christine," he shouted, boisterous now.

"Why—Blake!" It was as if they were meeting for the first time after years. "You haven't spoken two words to me all night. I'm heartbroken!"

She laughed and patted his hand.

"Let's have a drink," he said.

He filled their glasses.

"Now," he said, "tell me about him."

She looked at him gayly across her glass. "Isn't he good looking?" she demanded in a husky whisper. "And, mind you—he's single and rich and——"

"Crazy about you," Blake chuckled. "What's going to happen?"

"Wait and see," Christine said mysteriously, with a certain stifled joy.

"A toast to it, then, whatever it is!" Blake said grinning. "And another to your unforgettable, unforgotten eyes!" He raised his glass high with prodigious gallantry, and then tossed off the drink.

Blake strode out and picked her up bodily.

But across the glass, just as he finished speaking, he saw Meryl standing the doorway. He smiled narrowly and stood balancing on the balls of feet.

Meryl passed on and joined Ray Frobisher, who had gone on to the dining m, where the butler and two other servants were dispensing refreshments m a long table.

At two o'clock Blake got up from a card table and announced cheerfully his host that he had lost enough, and that he thought it time for him and ryl to retire.

Mrs. Frobisher escorted them to the room they were to occupy. Her ologies on the way bore out Meryl's fears.

"I'm so terribly sorry," she said. "But with such a gang in the house ll have to double up wherever it's possible. You two won't mind, I'm sure." d she laughed cozily. "You'll find new toothbrushes in the bathroom."

With the door closed behind them, Blake and Meryl gazed about the room the large canopied bed a suit of pajamas and a silk nightgown were carely laid out. Soft wall brackets glowed. The bathroom beyond was lighted.

Blake strode at once to a fairly capacious chaise longue and began to te at it experimentally.

"All right, Meryl," he said brusquely. "We'll have to make the best of I'll take this."

"You'll do nothing of the sort," she retorted with warmth, "I'm smaller n you. I'll sleep on that."

He returned and glared down at her with his jaws clenched.

"Take that thing!" He pointed at the nightgown. "And go into the broom and undress. When you come out I'll have my back turned till you into bed."

She considered him levelly for a moment, although she knew her cheeks re stinging with color. Then she turned upon her heel and caught up gown.

But when Blake took his turn at undressing in the bathroom, Meryl anged a pillow and a comforter on the chaise longue and curled up in it, that her back would be toward him when he emerged.

Her knuckles were pressed against her lips, her eyes closed tight as ugh to blot out the memory of Blake's image as he lifted his glass to cistine. She did not care, she told herself bitterly. It was over—the experint had been a failure. She could not even serve out the six months she d promised Theresa.

While she was making up her mind fervently to a course of action, Blake ode out, stood silently beside her for a moment, then picked her up bodily d carried her to the bed, with such haste she had no opportunity to protest. another instant he was tucking the silken comforter about her with an phasis more articulate than words.

"And stay there," he said as he turned out the light and stamped across e room to the chaise lounge.

In the blue-white brilliance of the next day Meryl discovered in herself urious unwillingness to admit defeat. The fact that, two days later, Chris e Greer left for an indefinite stay with friends in Chicago gave her cause thought. But Blake's derisive bullying, which was ostensibly an encouragement to her to go ahead and do what she most wanted to do, without ught of him, set up within her an angry obstinacy. He was, in effect, ging her to throw up the game as soon as she liked. His elaborately gener s references to Cy Granville during the ensuing days at first confused and armed her and then antagonized her to a point where she decided grimly fulfill the contract she had entered into with Theresa more than five nths ago. In another three weeks the term they had agreed upon would me to an end.

The days passed quickly enough. The work at the Community house emed at the moment extremely important. There was Mrs. Anton Ascewicz, o was sick in bed, and if a day went by on which Meryl did not see her e lapsed into a hopeless melancholy. There were the Johnsons, too, and e Kleins, and the O'Tooles, families of honest laborers in dire straits. In a w more weeks, when spring would be an established fact, it would be so rd to leave them.

Besides, there were the meetings with Cy Granville and the long talks what they were going to do during the summer. They had rested their pes on their projected campaign to defeat the man whose political prestige is Greer's chief weapon in the fight to gain his ruthless ends. To attack, enly and directly, a man so well protected as Julius Greer was almost hopeless—unless they could by some good fortune discover a point of weakness his defense.

Then, suddenly, it was the first of May, and the lawns about the Lawnce house on Mount Curve avenue became like a lacework of delicate green e and there was a stir and impatience in the blue air. Robins came and owdrops and pussywillows, and Meryl longed for the sweet wild coming of ring on the lake at home.

With a feeling of elation such as she had rarely known of late Meryl rried down the street to keep her appointment with Cy Granville, who had me to town that morning and had asked her to meet him alone for lunch.

"I've got something at last, Meryl," he said when they were seated at e table.

"Tell me," she demanded eagerly.

"I'm not sure what it will lead to," he went on, "but it's worth a try."

She leaned toward him and listened.

"First of all, your friend, Pete Palka, is doing a lot of talking. I'm a ttle afraid of what may happen if some one doesn't persuade him to cool ff. He talks of nothing but his dead brother—'Greer killed Ola!' He has hreatened to get Greer, I understand. If it ever gets to Julius, Pete will have o clear out—and the faster he goes the better for him."

Girl Uses Rival as Threat Over the Boy Friend

Doris Advises Youth to "Speak Up" Now.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

How much justification has a girl for holding another admirer over the head of her steady suitor? It's a practice pretty commonly observed and, we believe, one born and bred of a certain tradition, the tradition being that if a girl isn't popular she's not so likely to keep her suitor intrigued.

So if men suffer from this habit of girls talking about another admirer they can jolly well blame themselves for the "act." In a number of cases it is an act pure and simple. There isn't any other boy in the offing eager to spend all his time with the girl. He's just a handy myth to prod the sometimes delinquent suitor with.

Or there really may be another boy desirous of squiring the girl around. Yet if she cared for him there would be no reason under heaven why she should not go out with him. She doesn't because she prefers the man who already has attached himself.

Then, of course, there is always the flirtatious sister who could not be content with one steady admirer, no matter how perfect he might be. This specie must have excitement, intrigue, a lot of attention—and so her outside admirers do become a bit of a menace.

We think that young men like "Fulton," who exposes to our eyes in a letter today one of the teasing specie, must take the tip about an outside admirer as a cue for action on his part. It's one of the girl's ways of speeding the boy friend on to talk business.

"Fulton's" girl has all the earmarks of one who loves her "Fulton," but wishes he'd speak up and out. She has no name for her secret admirer, though she continually speaks of his anxiety to take her out. "Fulton," being male and not understanding of female intrigue, serves notice that he'll step out of the picture if the rival registers higher. But the girl says no, Fulton's the one she wants.

So, Fulton, take a tip from one familiar with the little game, and talk seriously with the girl. That's what she's angling for.

MINUTE MYSTERY

CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright, 1933, By The Chicago Tribune.]

HUMAN TARGETS.

Prof. Fordney accompanied the homicide squad on a hurried call to the shooting range six miles out of town.

Police Surgeon Lyman, with his usual efficiency, hastily turned the body of Nels Harris over and remarked, "Either shot would have finished him instantly." The professor knelt beside Ben Ricker who had been shot through the heart and brain —"Nothing you can do for him either, doctor," he said grimly, "he's dead."

While riding back to headquarters, Steve Brown explained to Fordney what had happened. Harris, Ricker and himself were to meet at the range for target practice. The other two, however, had arrived ahead of him and were practicing as he approached. Drawing closer he heard them shouting in angry voices although he couldn't make out what they were saying—they had been quarreling for the last week over an incident that happened in a poker game. Neither seemed aware of his presence and then to his utter amazement and horror he saw Harris first fire at Ricker. Quick as lightning they exchanged four shots—both men were dead when he reached them.

Fordney, remembering the position of Ricker's gun, casually asked Brown if Ricker were left-handed. He was not at all surprised at the man's confused manner.

"Why—why—yes——," he stammered. "That is, he shot almost equally as well with both hands!"

"H'mmmm," murmured the professor, leaning back and apparently losing interest in the subject. Well, he thought, when Brown tells his story to Inspector Kelley he'll find himself held for murder!

WHY?

[See solution on page 27.]

Keeps Age a Secret Brushes Away Gray Hair

Now you can really look years younger. With an ordinary small brush you just tint those streaks or patches of gray back to your natural shade—whether blonde, brown or black. It is so easy to do—at home—with Brownatone. Over 20 years success. Guaranteed harmless. Active coloring agent is purely vegetable. Defies detection. No tell-tale, "dyed" look. Cannot affect waving of hair.

No need to guess. First cut a lock of hair from your head and apply a little of this famous tint. If Brownatone does not give your gray, streaked, dull, or faded hair its natural color, youth and luster, your money back. Only 50c.

BY MARY MEADE.

"Is there any language that my electric waffle iron will understand? I want to talk it out of burning, sticking, and generally misbehaving."

That was the way that Mrs. F. D. E. put it in a recent letter. So here are some tips for Mrs. E. and others disturbed by waffle iron troubles.

First, I wonder if you are guilty of trying to squeeze blood out of a turnip. Or more electrically speaking, of trying to get electricity out of your chandelier.

Here is the answer: Electric irons —or molds, as they're more properly called—are designed to carry an electrical load of 600 watts. Most of our regular light fixtures have small wires leading to them, and so carry a load of only about 250 watts.

But there are other sticking reasons. Can't blame it all on the way we plug in the iron. We may not have prepared the mold properly the first time we used it. Or we may not be waiting till it is quite hot before putting in the batter. Either of these things will do the deed.

Now for the seasoning of a new waffle iron: Different directions come with different irons. A way that seems to be universally satisfactory, however, is this: Grease the mold with salt free fat such as olive oil, and then heat it to a very high temperature. Have ready a regular waffle batter and pour in the correct amount, letting it bake until it reaches a dark brown. Now remove and discard this first waffle. Your mold is now seasoned—all set for use.

This seasoning, by the way, has a sound principle back of it. It really fills up the pores of the metal, giving it a smooth surface which will not grip and hold the waffle. But remember to stay away from the salt fats. That would have a tendency to pit the aluminum surface instead of seasoning it.

But some folks are still buying the cast iron type of waffle mold. If yours is one of these, the first thing is to get rid of the thin coat of oil that protects iron equipment from rust till it reaches us. To do this, simply boil the iron in a mild solution of soda water for twenty minutes. Then wash and season it just as you did the electric mold.

Next, about washing. Waffle irons after first seasoning, should never be greased. Washing will break the seal you have just so carefully put on. Therefore, neither need they be washed. Don't let the discoloration bother you.

And lastly, about the baking point. If your waffle mold isn't equipped with an indicator or a control, use this device: Place a piece of paper between the grids and turn on the heat. When it is golden brown, your mold is hot and ready for waffles.

The length of baking time isn't always the same with all waffles. It depends somewhat on the amount of batter we put in the grids. A good rule to follow, though is to let the waffle bake without raising the lid till the steam stops rising. When it does, lift out the waffle with a fork. Then let the iron heat again.

Organdie Wraps Will Accompany Printed Formals

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Printed evening frocks are approved universally by the Paris prophets who light the way of future fashions. A new kind of print is preferred by some of the big ones. It is a simple flat crêpe, printed in the most gorgeous tropical colors, flowers, and foliage in the glaring shades of the jungle.

The Lucien Lelong evening frock in our sketch is made of silk crêpe in tropical colors. The ground is that unbelievable green of the jungle, and the flowers are in wild pinks and orange. Naturally, with such excitable stuff, Lelong cuts the frock on simple lines. It has a bias skirt with a center front seam and a double panel down the back to give the smart backward movement. The bodice is plain, with tiny jutting sleeves that are part of two wide shoulder straps that leave only a narrow V of flesh visible at the center back.

The wrap that goes with this kind of printed frock is, usually, a little jacket or cape made of organdy. Paris doesn't care whether it is done in cotton or silk organdy. The combined jacket and cape in our sketch is made of silk organdy, called organza, and is pink in color. In the back this wrap of pink silk organdy looks like a triple capelet, as you can see by consulting the sketch in the background. In front it looks like a double Quaker collar, and the lowest ruffle becomes a cylinder around the arms, in short, sleeves.

Ban Old Gags to Get Cash.

"The fact that no flowers will be sold, as in previous years, and that there will be no gorgeous articles to tempt special spending, and that there will be, as always, unusual entertainment features, are offered as special lures to come to our party," writes Mrs. Frank M. Gordon, chairman of publicity for the Madonna Center dinner dance to be given Saturday night at the Bal Tabarin.

So as to be strictly up-to-date beer is to be sold from a special bar and the dinner will feature thick beefsteaks and other viands that go well with beer.

All the pretty girls at the party will be having a good time and not working to persuade you to spend money on extras, for there are to be none of the usual cigaret girls. Mrs. Lester Armour, Mrs. Julius T. Benedict, Mrs. Edward N. Hurley Jr., Mrs. Allen B. Ripley, Miss Mary Agnes Amberg, and Miss Marie Plamondon are some of those active in arrangements.

Mrs. John C. Marshall of Hubbard Woods went east last week to visit her daughter, Janet, at Bryn Mawr, and to be present Friday and Saturday nights at the presentation of "Lady Windermere's Fan" by the Bryn Mawr varsity and Princeton university players in which Miss Marshall had the rôle of Lady Windermere. Miss Marshall is to be graduated from college this June.

Another Chicagoan who took a leading rôle in a Princeton production this last week-end was Miss Ethel Dixon, who rushed east at the request of Seymour Morris to take the singing and dancing lead in a new revue young Mr. Morris had written for the spring house parties.

John Derns Move to New Home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dern will be moving this Friday or Saturday to a house a little farther north in Winnetka, at 840 Locust road, and a little roomier than their present residence.

Mrs. Dexter Fairbank, recently returned from Washington, intends to spend the summer in town. Her daughter, Miss Lucy Fairbank, who will be at home from college the middle of June, will spend part of the summer here, and so will Dexter Fairbank Jr., who is a student at the University of Chicago.

Miss Frances Whedon has just returned to her home on Bellevue place after a grand holiday in Bermuda with her young niece, Frances Clark Jeffery. Miss Jeffery is back at her studies at Miss Hall's school in Pittsfield.

Miss Catharine Noyes, the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Paul Noyes, will leave Saturday for three months in Europe. She is going to London and Cornwall, England, to visit the John Rathbones and to see their baby. Mrs. Rathbone is the former Beatrice Gough of Boston, at whose wedding to the young Englishman Miss Noyes was a bridesmaid.

Miss Edith Cummings, who has been visiting Mrs. Dodge Sloane in Upperville, near Middleburg, Va., will be at home tomorrow.

Mrs. Phelps B. Hoyt and one of her daughters, Mrs. T. Philip Swift, returned yesterday from a week in New York. Mrs. Hoyt's youngest daughter, Mrs. Dexter Cummings, and her husband have gone to Virginia Hot Springs for a fortnight's stay.

Mrs. James G. Condon and her daughter, Mrs. Paul Gerhardt Jr., who have been in Phoenix all winter, have gone to California to visit the younger Condon daughter, Jane, and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Truman W. Brophy Jr.

Mrs. George R. Nichols is expected home today from a brief trip to New York.

The Needlework and Textile Guild of the Art Institute will hear a lecture this afternoon at 3 o'clock by Mrs. Herbert E. Bradley on "Cloths of Gold and Cloths of Cotton" in the home of its president, Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, 2450 Lake View avenue. Following Mrs. Bradley's talk, tea will be served.

Mrs. Harold G. Sperling of Highland Park is giving a tea this afternoon for the committee of the Salon Francais du Chicago Woman's club, of which she is chairman.

Dr. Fosdick Asserts Strong Faith in God Is Need of Present

The Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the Riverside church of New York, gave his eighteenth address before the Chicago Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall last night. The usual overflow crowd that has attended all of his sermons before the club was present. Dr. Fosdick took issue with Clarence Darrow, whom he called the "foremost atheist in the United States."

Referring to a statement in which Clarence Darrow said that, if he were a young man again he would be tempted to chuck it all, Dr. Fosdick said:

"It is faith that is needed today, not cynicism, and the literature of atheism has a strong kinship with cynicism.

"I feel very sympathetic toward the young people today. They are all dressed up with a good education, and no place to go. Yet we are living in more momentous and exciting times than ever occurred in ancient Greece or Rome. There are trials and dangers ahead that need an undergirding of a strong faith in God."

Continue Your Daily Exercise Program, Counsels Antoinette

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Now, just because we've closed the West Point exercise series don't you think that that means you drop them right away. Don't! You're going to be able to use that smart new silhouette of yours for your spring suit. You're going to need it a little later on for beach parade. Above all, you're going to need it the year round for countless reasons, health, looks, and general fitness.

That four minute morning workout handpicked from the full series will keep you in fine mettle. Don't neglect doing them mornings; do them at night, too, if you have a reducing job on hand, or a figure in need of building up.

If you didn't save yours, or if one got lost in the moving or in any other way, you can have the West Point morning set-up by sending me a stamped, self-addressed envelope. It's because it is the best little set I have ever run across that I urge it on you and urge you not to drop it now.

Now, I must be on to other beautifying business. From reports in letters there is need of turning to hair and complexions, superfluous hair troubles, and so on. So, for a spell we'll go back to these things.

Hair is causing a lot of trouble at the moment. A healthy sign, too, that it is. I don't suppose there are any more hair troubles than usual, but women are becoming so much more particular about the condition of their locks that it is a most cheering sign. They are beginning to look at their hair now as they do at the condition of their skin. They are demanding little less than perfection of it.

One definite reason for which I keep urging the daily exercise program is for its benefits to the hair. Hair grays quickly where there is a nervous disorder or a long continued mental depression. The daily set-up will do more than anything I know to correct the nervous state and lift the spirits out of melancholy, particularly if the exercise is followed by a shower and brisk rub.

In fact, almost any hair ailment you can think of is corrected through a better blood supply fed to the roots. And the improved circulation resulting from exercise will surely furnish the blood supply.

Anyway, look at that hair of yours. See what it needs. Note if it is graying more than it should. And do something about it, pronto. You have but to ask for advice and you'll get it.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

It's a play about "party girls," who represent a phase of American morals and manners that the prohibition amendment will have to answer for, and its tone, as one may infer from the title, is low. It is offered at the Garrick theater with Edna Hibbard, a comedienne who specializes in loose and impertinent minxes, in the leading rôle. It is not as crass as some of the plays that it imitates, but its would-be comic and fraudulently sentimental dabbling in muddy waters is slightly revolting to my playgoing taste. I find it hard to write about, because I am thoroughly sick of its kind.

Miss Hibbard appears as the worst of the three heroines in this soiled fable. The two others are "party girls" by economic compulsion—or so they say—but Miss Hibbard's Vangie was born to the trade and declines an opportunity of a last act reformation. The character gives the actress a complete line of her customary wisecracks, which seem to be losing their edge of humor as the years roll along, and also permits her to appear in her favorite suit of underwear for the delight of any eye that doesn't happen to be bored by this spectacle.

Enid Markey, who always appears in Miss Hibbard's casts, plays Party Girl No. 2, who is a border line case, and Loretta Poynton is Party Girl No. 3, the little lily with a heart of gold who figures in plots of this kind in order to clear the atmosphere. Miss Poynton is an attractive and quiet young actress who brings a touch of charm into the sorry business.

There are thirteen others in the company, representing romantic and high minded aviators who want to marry the girls; doddering old "party men" who think nothing about peeling off $100 bills whenever coaxed; sinister detectives who are preying upon the party girl business; a bell boy who is a part of the feminine conspiracy to fleece the customers; and a stool pigeon who comes straight out of last year's New York police scandals. Also, there is the author of the play, Roger Gray, acting with a broad comic touch a half witted tourist from Carthage, Mo.

This is all I have to say about "On the Make," the new play at the Garrick theater.

"Dinner for Eight," the drama by George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber which has been one of the most striking successes of the New York season, is definitely scheduled for a Chicago engagement in the World's Fair period. Its run in New York will end May 6; it will then go on tour, and will arrive in Chicago early in July.

SOX WIN, 4-1; LYONS HOLDS INDIANS TO 2 HITS

REDS BEAT CUBS AND WARNEKE IN 9TH INNING, 4-3

Triple Scores Two; Jurges Injured.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., April 23.—Harry Rice's triple off Lon Warneke of the Cubs with two on in the ninth this afternoon gave the Cincinnati Reds their second victory of the year by a score of 4 to 3.

Red Lucas, who shut out the St. Louis Cardinals a week ago today on two hits, was the winning pitcher, but he had to do a lot of suffering before he was returned a hero. The suffering included a rather sloppy second inning in which the Cubs scored all their runs.

Errors Are Costly.

There was no question about the caliber of Rice's decisive triple, an enormous swat to left center. There were other elements, however, that gave other Cubs blame with Warneke for the rather startling setback—the Cubs' third licking in as many days. The second Cincinnati run was scored as a result of an error by Koenig in the seventh, and an error by Bill Herman started the Reds on their way in the fatal ninth.

Johnny Moore, former Cub, who was one of the detachment that came to Cincinnati in the Babe Herman deal, shared hero honors with Lucas, with a double and a single, both of which figured heavily in run manufacture.

Jurges' Ankle Sprained.

Bill Jurges suffered a sprained ankle in the seventh and was carried from the field. Physicians announced the sprain was not serious. Jurges will be out of the lineup for about three days.

Warneke, who had allowed a total of one run in his previous two starts, appeared a sure winner after he and his teammates had put over those three runs in the second, an inning in which they made five of their nine hits. Lon retired the first ten men to face him and during the first five innings allowed only two singles, both coming in the fourth.

That Terrible Ninth!

Then the Reds began to bother Lonnie a bit, making a run in the sixth and another in the seventh. When the latter half of the ninth came along, though, it seemed victory was assured. Then these things happened:

Hafey shot a grounder at Bill Herman and it went right between Bill's heels into center field. Moore singled to center, putting Hafey on third with none out. Lombardi grounded to Koenig, who headed off Hafey with a throw to Hartnett. Gabby tried to get Hafey going back to third and Moore coming up to third. He ran down the baseline and tagged Moore, but Hafey got back to the bag in the mix up.

Hemsley went to first to run for Lombardi. Rice tripled, Hafey scoring the tying run and Hemsley the winner which sent 11,000 long suffering fans home happy.

Durocher Aids Cubs.

A fumble by Durocher, who usually doesn't make his first error until midseason, got the Cubs under way in the productive second inning. Leo booted Stephenson's grounder. Then Demaree forced Stephenson. Grimm popped one just out of Durocher's reach, Demaree stopping at second. Jurges singled to right, Demaree scoring and Grimm stopping at second. Hartnett singled to center, scoring Grimm. Jurges was out trying to take third, Moore to Morrissey, Hartnett reaching second on the throw to third. Warneke followed with a double to left, scoring Hartnett, and stopped at third on Bill Herman's single past Durocher. The inning ended when English forced Bill Herman.

Lucas was the first to break through the Cubs' defense for a run. Red led off the sixth with a single to right and stopped on third on Grantham's double to right center. The runners held on while Warneke threw out Morrissey. Lucas scored and Grantham took third while Bill Herman was throwing out Bottomley. Warneke threw out Hafey.

Moore doubled to start the seventh. Lombardi grounded to Koenig who fumbled and then made a low throw to first, Moore scoring.

What! Again!

TRENTON ARMY POLOISTS REACH CLASS C FINAL

Chicago Artillery Riders Beat Brooklyn.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The 112th Field Artillery of Trenton, N. J., advanced to the finals of the national indoor polo tournament by defeating the Cleveland Riding club, 11½ to 5, in a class C game last night at the 124th Field Artillery armory.

In a special intercity match the 122d Field Artillery trio whipped the Brooklyn Riding and Driving club, 7 to 6½, Lieut. Zimmerman's long shot turning defeat into victory in the last minute of play.

The Trenton players got away to an early lead and held an advantage of 3 to 0 at the end of the first chukker. They maintained a narrow margin through the next two periods and went into the final chukker leading 5½ to 3. Then the Clevelanders came up with a rush to score two goals in quick succession, bringing them within half a point of their adversaries.

Trenton Team Steps Out.

Immediately the Trenton team broke loose and scored from every angle. Four times in the closing minutes Capt. McGowan slammed the ball home and twice Lieut. Wilson did the same. McGowan's total for the game was seven.

The Brooklyn team and the 122d Field Artillery fought nip and tuck throughout, never being separated by more than a goal or two. In the last few minutes of play the lead seesawed several times, and shortly before the end Fox sent the easterners into a 6½ to 6 advantage. Then just before the bell Zimmerman's long off side back stroke from an angle was good for the deciding goal.

Two Games Tomorrow.

The victory of the Trenton players gave them the right to meet Maj. Hunter's 124th Field Artillery team in the C class final tomorrow night. Barney Balding and Capt. Bill Everett will complete Hunter's trio.

In the second game tomorrow, Winston Guest's Optimists will play the United States Army Sixth Corps Area team for the class A championship. The Optimists will spot the Sixth Corps 4 goals by handicap.

In addition to Guest, the Optimists will be made up of Mike Phipps and Harvey Shaffer, while the Sixth Corps trio will consist of Capt. Stub Davis, Capt. C. A. Wilkinson, and Maj. C. C. Smith.

MILLER PICKS UP 146 MORE PINS; LEADS BY 427

New York, April 23.—(AP)—Joe Miller of Buffalo added 146 pins to his lead over Stewart Watson of Chicago in the third block of their series for the national match game bowling championship here tonight and boosted his aggregate advantage to 427 pins.

Bowling in better form than he had in the first two blocks at Buffalo, Miller piled up a 2,098 score in ten games in nine of which he bettered 200. Watson, after rolling under 200 in the first five games, pulled himself together in the last five, exceeding 200 in four of them.

Miller rolled 237 in the seventh game for high of the night. Watson tallied 236 in the tenth game.

After a 10 game block at Syracuse tomorrow night the bowlers will wind up the series with four more blocks at Chicago, starting Friday.

Tonight's scores:

MILLER—184, 205, 204, 204, 212, 206, 237, 208, 231, 207—Total, 2,098; grand total, 6,079.

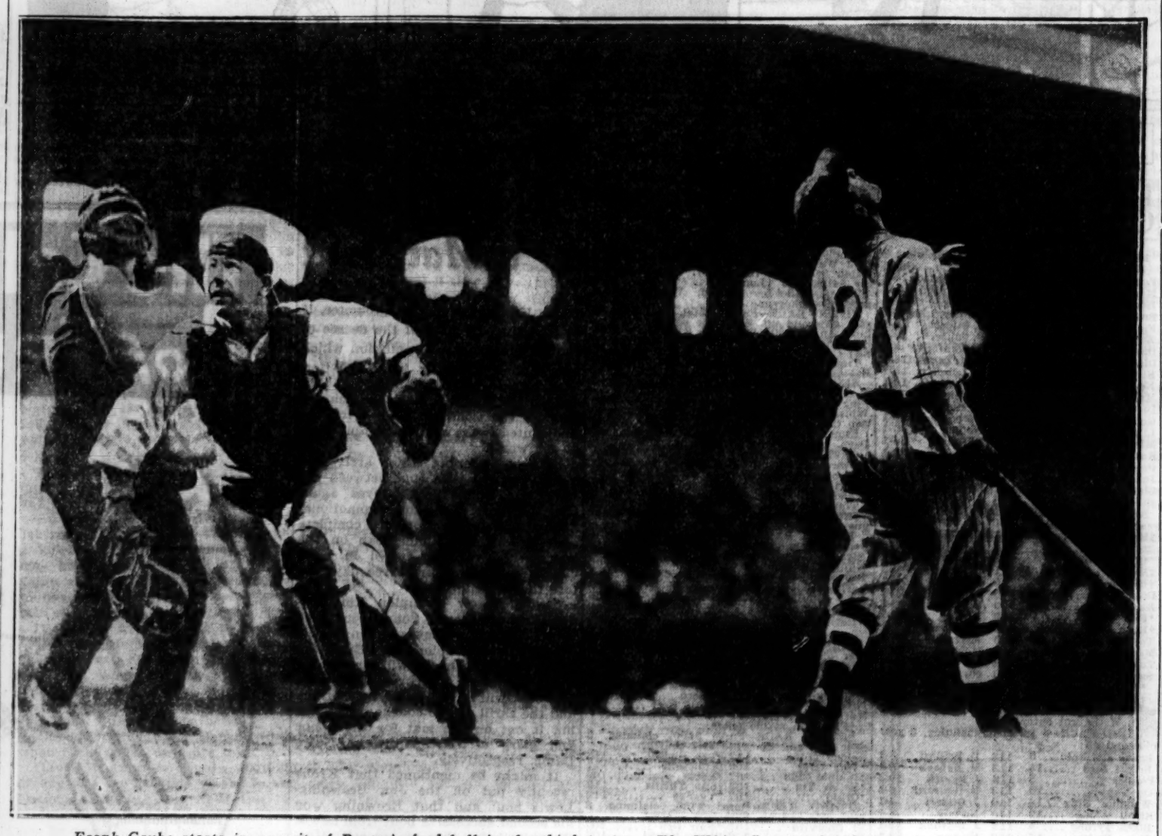
WHEN SOX WERE SCORING VICTORY NO. 7



Frank Grube starts in pursuit of Porter's foul ball in the third inning. The White Sox catcher had to do some sprinting, but he got under the popup. Porter and the rest of the Indians could do little with the pitching of Ted Lyons, being held to two hits while the Sox picked up ten for a 4 to 1 victory.

U. S. Soccer Title Is Won by St. Louis

New York, April 23.—(AP)—The national soccer championship, a title held by eastern elevens for the last 10 years, today was won by a western team when the powerful Stix, Baer and Fuller combination of St. Louis defeated the New York Americans for the second successive time. The score was 2 to 1.

Willie McLean, brilliant outside left forward, tallied the first goal for the St. Louis eleven with the game only 15 minutes old. He took a pass from 17 year old Ollie Bohlman, youngest player in professional soccer, and booted the ball past the lanky New York goal tender, Stanley Chesney, scoring from a difficult angle with a hook shot from 10 yards out.

Scotty Nilsen, one of the five players on the St. Louis team who played with the championship New Bedford eleven last year, was responsible for the winning goal. McLean kicked the ball in from the corner and Nilsen headed the ball into the net, just managing to evade Chesney. The time was 38 minutes.

George Michaels gave the Americans their only goal 29 minutes after Seaman Tom Watson, British featherweight boxing champion, had put the ball in play.

SPARTAS WIN, 5 TO 1.

Favorites in the National Professional Soccer league won easily in yesterday's matches. Sparta, league champions, defeated the Jugo-Slavs, 5 to 1, while the Brickies whipped the Ravenswood Scots, 4 to 1. The Maccabee All Stars, Triner cup holders, beat the Olympias, 5 to 1.

The Judean Leaders of the Major league turned in an upset victory over Gary in Peel cup competition at Gary, Ind., winning, 1 to 0. The Norwegian-Americans defeated the Danish-Americans, 4 to 0.

In International league play the Vikings held the Swedish-Americans to a 3 to 3 tie. The Viennas beat Schwaben, 2 to 1.

Gardner Breaks Record in Winning Oakland Race

Oakland, Cal., April 23.—(AP)—Chet Gardner of San José, Cal., won the 150 mile feature race at the Oakland Motor speedway today. Gardner covered the distance in 1 hour, 38 minutes, and 41½ seconds, which, speedway officials said, bettered the American dirt track record.

Is Manager Lew Fonseca registering surprise or elation? Anyhow this is how he looked when Ted Lyons' homer was sailing into the right field stand in the third inning.. His crutches are at his side.

KENTUCKY DERBY HORSES ON PARADE

BY FRENCH LANE.

The colts which Col. Edward R. Bradley is sharpening up for another Derby killing are Boilermaker and Broker's Tip.

Some famous rôles have been played in the Derby drama by colts carrying the familar Bradley green and white jacket.

Behave Yourself and Black Servant finished one-two for Bradley in the Derby of 1921. Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage did it again in 1926. Bradley's Burgoo King spread a streak of green and white down the Churchill Downs homestretch a year ago and won the 1932 Derby.

Boilermaker One of Fastest 2 Year Olds.

Boilermaker is a very fast horse and in his early trials as a 2 year old showed as much speed as any colt Bradley ever owned. He wasn't rushed last year, and when he made his second trip to the post at Saratoga in August he was regarded as a "good thing" by the Bradley connections. After leading by many lengths far into the stretch, he tired suddenly and stopped so quickly there was no doubt but that something was hurting him basically in his underpinning.

He was thrown out of training, and whatever physical ailment he suffered has disappeared during the winter. Throughout the spring he has been showing a disposition to carry his speed as far as horses do nowadays. Boilermaker is a son of the Kentucky Derby winner, Bubbling Over. He can win the Derby if he is as good the Bradley folks think he is.

Some Think Broker's Tip Better Horse of the Two.

Several good judges of horse flesh regard Broker's Tip, the other barrel to the Bradley Derby gun, as a better colt than Boilermaker. He is an upstanding brown colt by Bradley's Toney out of Forteresse, she by Sardanapale, the great French sire.

Broker's Tip went to the post four times last year and in his two last races performed like a champion. It took all that Head Play had to beat him in his last start, and beyond question Head Play was the best western 2 year old of last season. This happened in the renewal of the Cincinnati Trophy at Latonia, and, although beaten, the Bradley colt was the best horse in the race that day. He was away poorly and was practically left at the post. At one stage of the race he was 15 lengths out of it, then he came on and was beaten only a little more than a length.

This colt can easily become one of the leaders in the 3 year old division.

SENATORS' RALLY IN NINTH BREAKS YANK STREAK, 5-4

Rice Hits with Bases Full for Winning Run.

Washington, D. C., April 23.—(AP)—Washington rallied in the ninth inning today to hand the world champion Yankees their first defeat of the season, 5 to 4, breaking a seven game victory streak.

Manager Joe Cronin led the winning assault with a single to center. Manush was called in to bunt, but after fouling two he lined a triple to right. New York then deliberately filled the bases.

The veteran Sam Rice, called in as a pinch hitter, poked the first pitch through the drawn-in infield to score the winning run.

Whitehill had the better of the pitching battle with Gomez and Moore, striking out seven, including Ruth twice. Score:

HOMER BY TED ACCOUNTS FOR FIRST TWO RUNS

Appling Also Gets Circuit Drive.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Ted Lyons, the gallant pitching bachelor, put on a one man act yesterday much to the dismay of the Cleveland Indians, but much to the satisfaction of 20,000 who drifted back to Comiskey park to see for themselves whether all the things they'd heard were true. Lyons not only pitched but also hit, and that was just about enough material for the White Sox to construct a 4 to 1 victory for their second straight over the Tribe and the fifth in their last six starts.

With his arm Lyons served up so much cunning to the enemy that only two hits were produced. One of these followed a pass, and that's why he didn't collect a shutout along with the other honors. With his bat he turned the crowd into a roaring mass with a powerful drive into the right field seats of a park in which homers are not attained at bargain prices. There was a mate on base at the time. And later he proved his homer was no accident by unloading two singles, but these played no part in the run production.

Four Runs on Four Hits.

Lyons' lengthy drive was just a part, but an important part, of some cannonading the like of which a Sox team hasn't produced in years. His homer was preceded by a double. It was followed immediately by a triple that became another run because of an error. All this was concentrated into the third inning. Then in the next stand another homer whistled into the seats. Luke Appling was the author of this one. Four runs on four hits is a mark hard to beat or even equal.

All this damage was done during the stay of Mel Harder, but he didn't stay long.

Lyons, despite considerable annoyance given him by Red Kress' three errors at first base, let only one Indian get to third base before the visitors picked up their useless run in the eighth. This was in the third when a pass to Myatt started the inning and Kress fumbled Harder's sacrifice bunt. Lyons then bore down in earnest. He finished Porter on a pop foul to Grube. He personally threw out Knickerbocker and then with runners on third and second induced the frequently bothersome Averill to hoist a lazy fly to Swanson.

Connally Broke Hitless Chain.

The gentleman who finally broke through Lyons' defense and put a stop to no-hit conversation was George Connally, Sox employé of other days. The sergeant, who picked up the pitching duties when Harder vanished, stepped into the picture with a single to center after two were out in the fifth, but he went nowhere. Then there was nothing more until the eighth when, after Pytlak had walked for a starter, pinch man Powers singled to right, putting Pytlak on third, whence he scored on Porter's fly.

It was the only run counted against the Sox ace in two successive games, his previous performance having been a three hit whitewash against the Browns last week.

Simmons Gets First Hit.

Until the long range firing commenced in the third the Sox were not particularly rough on Harder. They made two hits in the first two innings. Both occurred in the second, one of them being a single to right with which Simmons introduced himself to his new Sunday constituents. Nothing came of this because Appling hit into a double play. Kress then singled to left, but Dykes grounded to short.

The hilarity in the third, when three Sox scored, started with Grube plunking a two bagger into left. Harder's troubles mounted rapidly. The next ball he pitched was to Lyons and that was the one Ted drove into the right field lower tiers for a brace of runs. There was a letup while Hayes and Haas were being set down on grounders. Then it broke out again when Swanson lined low into the wide open spaces between left and center. Encouraged by the tricky way in which

ILLINI VAULTERS HOLD WHIP HAND IN DRAKE RELAYS

Lenington May Break Meet Record.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Capt. Ike Lenington and Irving Seeley of the University of Illinois track team apparently are going to have the pole vault well under control in the Drake relays this week-end at Des Moines, Ia. This pair of vaulters began the outdoor season last Saturday at Kansas university by sharing the relay pole vault at 13 feet ¼ inch, a mediocre performance, but excusable because of the chilly weather.

IKE LENINGTON.

On his 1933 records indoors and his steady improvement in the last two years, Capt. Lenington now stands out as the best vaulter in the Western conference. Incidentally, the Big Ten, in recent years, always has had top notch performers who have shoved the records up within a few inches of the world mark for this event. Consequently Lenington may win at Drake, at the conference outdoor meet and may even take the National Collegiate title without stamping his name in the book of records.

Warne Holds Record.

The Drake relay record for the pole vault was set by Tom Warne of Northwestern, in 1930 at 13 feet 11 inches. At that time Warne was within less than two inches of the world's mark. It also was his best jump during his intercollegiate competition. Verne McDermont of Illinois and Warne fought it out at every meet that year and the next. In the conference meet in 1930 McDermont defeated Warne and established the present record of 13 feet 10⅝ inches. The next year Warne won the conference title with a jump of 13 feet 9 11-16 inches. In 1932 McDermont replaced Warne as the Drake champion.

It was in the 1931 Big Ten meet that Lenington first gave notice of coming greatness. He finished in a three way tie for fifth place, while Ralph Lovshin of Wisconsin, then a sophomore, won fourth place. Lovshin remains as one of the threats to Lenington's supremacy, particularly since he vaults better outdoors than indoors. Lovshin is the defending champion at Drake, having won last year with a jump of 13 feet 6 inches.

Beecher Wins Title.

Warne and McDermont finished their individual battle in the pole vault in 1931, when they shared the national collegiate championship with Bill Graber of the University of Southern California at a record height of 13 feet 10 5-16 inches. The N. C. A. A. champion last year was Bryce Beecher of Indiana, who jumped 13 feet 10 inches. Beecher previously had won the conference indoor meet with 13 feet 8 inches, but in the Big Ten outdoor competition he tied for second with 13 feet, while John Wonsowitz of Ohio State was the victor at 13 feet 3 inches.

Lenington, Beecher, Hess of Minnesota, and Oberlin of Iowa shared second place in the 1932 conference outdoor meet. Three weeks later Lenington again trailed Beecher in the N. C. A. A., jumping 13 feet 6 inches along with Hess, Schram, Marquette; Zimmerman, Tulane, and Wonsowitz and McKinley, Michigan Normal.

Lovshin Faces Battle.

Lenington's hope of sweeping the three important outdoor meets this year rests largely on his indoor championship when he cleared 13 feet 10 inches at the University of Chicago field house. This jump erased McDermont's Big Ten indoor record which had stood for two years at 13 feet 9¼ inches. Irv Seeley won second place with 13 feet 6½ inches. Steve Divich of Indiana was third at 13 feet 2½ inches, while Lovshin trailed these men with 12 feet 10 inches.

Lovshin's poor showing leads to the guess that he'll be pressed to retain his Drake championship. In the Armour relays this winter Lenington easily took the vault championship at 13 feet 5¼ inches. Schram of Marquette finished second at 13 feet.

After three years' effort Lenington has broken the Big Ten indoor record. He now has three opportunities to break outdoor records. If he is successful in any one, he'll leave the Illinois campus rated as one of the greatest vaulters in Big Ten history.

RETZLAFF OPENS DRILL TODAY FOR LEVINSKY BOUT

Dublinsky, Delmont Paired Second Time Friday.

Charley Retzlaff, Leonard, N. D., heavyweight, is scheduled to begin boxing today at Kid Howard's gymnasium for his 10 round match with King Levinsky at the Stadium on May 3. It is likely that Izzy Gastanaga will appear in the semi-final. Tony Cancela, stablemate of Levinsky, will appear in a supporting match. His opponent may be Tiger Jack Fox.

When Danny Delmont and Harry Dublinsky, west side junior welterweights, meet in an eight round bout at the Cicero Stadium Friday, it will be their second encounter. Three years ago Dublinsky defeated Delmont in five rounds at the Coliseum.

Dublinsky boxed several rounds yesterday with Andy DiVodi and Solly Dukelsky, welterweights. He displayed his usual speed and rapid fire punching. He defeated Wildcat O'Connor at Scranton, Pa., a month ago in his latest match. Delmont yesterday sparred four rounds with Tony Herrera.

Herrera will go to Pittsburgh Thursday where he faces Tracey Cox of Indianapolis, Ind., the next day.

Spike Herrera and Johnny Terry, junior welterweights, will finish training today for their five round windup tomorrow at the Midway arena. . . Mrs. Joseph Brown, wife of the former proprietor of the gymnasium at 180 Randolph street, who died on Thursday, will be buried this morning at Mount Carmel cemetery. Services will be held at St. Lucy church. . . Frankie Talaber and Stanley Seliga, amateur wrestlers, will meet tonight at the Marigold Gardens, Grace street and Broadway.

Chicago amateur champions will begin training today for their intercity bouts with Kansas City, Mo., boxers at the Stadium on May 12. Freddy Caserio, Chicago middleweight, will spar with southpaws in preparation for his match against Junior (Lefty) Munsell of Kansas City.

Miller Defends Title Again on Wednesday Night

New York, April 23.—(AP)—Freddie Miller, busy National Boxing association featherweight champion, and Mickey Walker, Rumson, N. J., veteran, combine to give the West Coast a complete monopoly on outstanding fistic attractions this week.

Miller will defend his title against John Gonzales of Long Beach, Cal., virtually unknown, in a ten round match at Wilmington, Cal., Wednesday night.

Walker returns to the ring in a 10 round match against George Manley, Denver light heavyweight, at San Francisco tomorrow night. Manley has been an impressive 175 pounder for several years.

Most of the other leading fight centers are idle this week and the result is one of the smallest cards in months. Bouts on the national schedule include:

MONDAY.

At Atlantic City, N. J. — Al Ettore vs. Eddie Prant, welterweights, 8, and Gene Moretti vs. Jack Ravelle, welterweights, 6.

TUESDAY.

At Philadelphia—Eddie Cool vs. Joey Costa, lightweights, 8.

WEDNESDAY.

At Wilmington, Cal.—Freddie Miller vs. John Gonzales, featherweights, 10 [title].

At San Francisco—Clever Sison vs. Al Citrino, featherweights, 10.

At East Liverpool, O.—Tuz Phillips vs. Freddie Edwards, welterweights, 10.

At Kansas City—Eddie Anderson vs. Johnny Owens, welterweights, 12.

THURSDAY.

At Philadelphia—Lew Massey vs. Frankie Carlton, lightweights, 8.

At Tacoma, Wash.—Leonard Bennett vs. Don Frazer, welterweights, 8.

At Fairmount, W. Va.—Buddy McArthur vs. Rosy Rosales, light heavyweights, 10.

FRIDAY.

At Pittsburgh—Ton Herrera vs. Tracy Cox, lightweights, 10.

Louisville, Ky., April 23.—(AP)—With the Kentucky Derby only two weeks away, events of the training campaign now in full swing indicate that a record field may go to the post in the 59th running of the $50,000 added stake at Churchill Downs May 6.

Moreover, the field viewed as a whole probably will contain more class than any Derby field of recent years, since none of the principal performers as juveniles has met with mishap during the conditioning campaign. For the first time in many years the field probably will include a filly or two with excellent prospects of beating the colts and geldings.

Ladysman Still Favorite.

W. R. Coe's Ladysman, leading 2 year old money winner last year, remains the favorite, but the stock of Adolphe Pons' Swivel, dubbed a "female Twenty Grand" because of her ability to come from behind and overtake the leaders in the stretch, took a decided advance when she scored a victory over a band of colts at Havre de Grace yesterday.

Ladysman also won his first start at Havre. The Quincy stable's Repaid, secondary favorite in the future books, finished out of the money in the race won by Swivel.

The largest Kentucky Derby field was in 1925, when 22 faced the barrier. The race, run in mud, was won by Reigh Count. At least 50 thoroughbreds are training seriously for this year's Derby, with prospects that 25 or more may start.

In addition to Ladysman, W. R. Coe owns two other Derby nominees which won races during the first week at Havre. They were Pomponious and Pompoleon, both sons of the great sire, Pompey. Other winning Derby nominees at Havre were Mrs. J. H. Whitney's Poppyman, the Wheatley stable's Utopian, and the Sagamore stable's Parity.

Captain Red a Sprinter.

To match the performance of these eastern contenders, the Lexington meeting yesterday, produced two victorious nominees. These are Calumet farm's Warren Jr. and J. C. Milam's Captain Red.

Captain Red scored three successive victories at Lexington, but all were over the short Futurity course, and there is some doubt the colt can retain his speed over the Derby route of a mile and a quarter. Warren Jr., however, defeated a good field over the mile and sixteenth route yesterday, including Col. E. R. Bradley's entry of Boilermaker and Broker's Tip.

This triumph gave Warren Jr. a record of two victories and one second for his three starts at Lexington. He lost to Ridge Wise, a noneligible, last Tuesday, after having previously defeated Red Whisk, Red Roamer, and other Derby candidates over the Futurity course.

Krone's At It Again! Plans a Mat Bout

Doc Krone, the rasslin' promoter, is at it again. In spite of the decree of the Illinois Athletic commission which has banned wrestling in Illinois forever, Krone yesterday announced that Joe Savoldi would wrestle Gus Sonnenberg at the Coliseum May 4 for the undisputed heavyweight championship of the world.

Krone's reasoning which arrives at a heavyweight title bout between Savoldi and Sonnenberg proves again that he possesses true promotional genius not to mention his complete disregard of the Illinois ban on the sport which will be tested in Cook county Superior court three days before the wrestling bout.

Savoldi threw champion Jim Londos, Krone reasons. Sonnenberg once threw Strangler Lewis when Lewis claimed the championship. Ergo, Savoldi, and Sonnenberg will wrestle for the title. And moreover, Doc says, this bout will have "an east-west tinge and the thrill of two college men fighting it out on the mat for the honor and glory of Dartmouth and Notre Dame, respectively."

It might be mentioned that Krone recently put on the Jim Browning-Lewis bout and that Browning won his second successive bout from Lewis. But why bring that up, or call attention to the Browning-Savoldi bout in Toronto which is billed for the heavyweight title? Then there is the matter of Savoldi's suspension by the National Wrestling association for failure to keep an appointment in Evansville, Ind.

Krone now boasts of a temporary injunction against the Illinois wrestling ban. Judge William Lindsay will hear arguments May 1 which are designed to make the injunction permanent. However, there's a possibility, which Krone has neglected to consider apparently, that the injunction will be dissolved.

All of which bothers Krone not a bit. Savoldi and Sonnenberg, the "latest campus star," and the "original of the collegiate sensations," will wrestle for the world's championship, in Krone's eyes, at least.

Among the entrants in the tournament are Paul Pearson, Max Rushakoff, Bob Riedy, Frank Work, J. R. Leininger, George O'Connell, and Ernie Simmons. Flossie Basler and Helen Ovendon lead the women's division.

A. A. U. QUINTETS IN SEMI-FINAL PLAY TONIGHT

Semi-finals in the Central A. A. U. heavyweight basketball tournament will be played tonight at Community recreation center, 4711 Madison street.

In the first game the Covenant Baptist five, church champions of Chicago, will meet the Wentworth Merchants. The other semi-final will bring together the Six Points, recent conquerors of the Rosenberg-Arveys, and the Conboy Boosters.

The winners will meet tomorrow night for the title.

PING COATES WINS FEATURE RACE AT TANFORAN TRACK

San Bruno, Cal., April 23.—(AP)—Ping Coates, an L. T. Whitehill entry with J. Pollard up, won the featured race, the Pony Express purse, at Tanforan track today in 1:46 4-5 for the mile and sixteenth.

White Collar placed second and San Clemente third in the first Sunday racing of the season at Tanforan. The event was a charity benefit and celebrated the departure for Chicago of ten pony express riders bearing greetings from the people of California to the governor of Illinois.

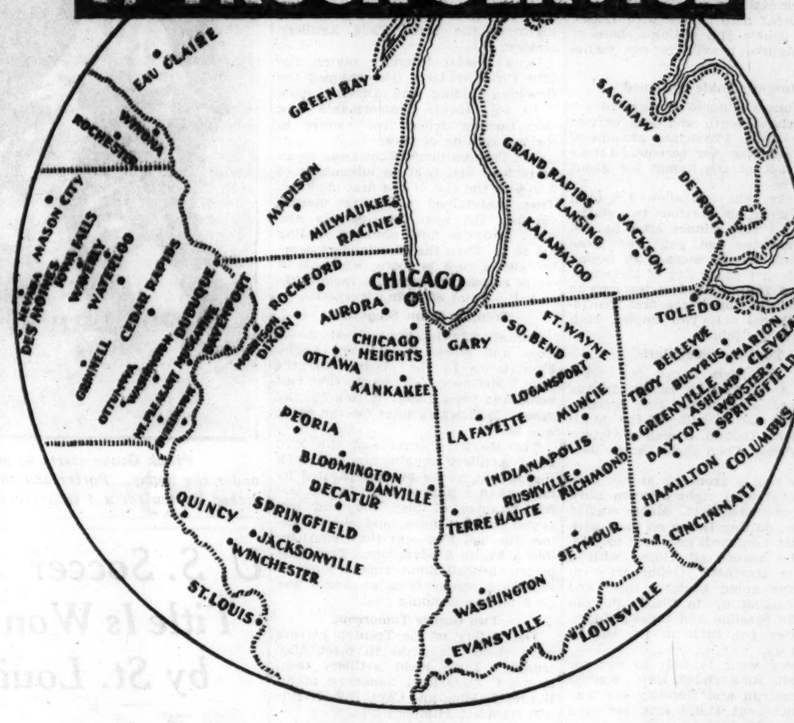
The Celebrated Circle of TRUCK SERVICE



In this circle around Chicago . . . a circle of 350-mile radius which truck transport men often term the overnight-haul limit . . . International Harvester maintains Company-owned service at 77 points. And there are many International Truck dealers.

ALL hard-worked trucks sooner or later will need service. When that need arises INTERNATIONAL TRUCKS get it in efficient measure.

International reputation in Chicago is built not only on quality performance but on Service—and not only on the 24-hour readiness of our three Chicago Branches but on the splendid ring of service that encircles and protects all International Trucks.

Study the map. See what service signifies when your hauling is in International's hands. Where do your trucks travel in a year's time? Never mind! They will always be close to International service, even if they leave the Chicago circle and go to the Carolinas or to California.

International sizes range from ½-ton to 7½-ton. Chassis prices as low as $360, f. o. b. factory. Call any branch or dealer.

Ask Mr. Meyer

Ask A. W. Meyer what he thinks of International service, for example. He is vice-president of the Federal Fireproof Storage Co., 1230 No. Clark St., and 871 No. State St. His trucks go places and do things in a big way. His contacts with our service have made him a great International enthusiast. Mr. Meyer feels that way about the trucks, too. He says he has tried just about every truck made and that none can compare with Internationals for all-around performance. Ask Mr. Meyer.

PIRATES TAKE DOUBLE HEADER FROM CARDINALS

Capture Opener, 4 to 0; Win Nightcap, 6 to 2.

St. Louis, Mo., April 23.—(AP)—Effective pitching in the first game and a weak defense by the St. Louis Cardinals in the second gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a double header this afternoon. The Pirates won the first game, 4 to 0, and took the second 6 to 2.

Heine Meine held the Cards to three hits in the first game, while Dazzy Vance, making his first start of the season for the Cards, yielded four hits and three runs in the first inning.

In the second game the Cardinal defense cracked behind Walker, who was making his first start of the season. The Pirates made four runs in the fifth inning on three hits and two St. Louis errors. St. Louis made five errors all told. Score:

Lyons Limits Indians to Two Hits; Wins, 4-1

the ball was foiling the efforts of Vosmik to pick it up. Swanson kept going until he reached the plate and was safe when Myatt fumbled the throw relayed by Cissell. A fly off Simmons' bat closed the inning.

Appling Contributes to Fun.

Appling made his little contribution to the festivities in the fourth. He sailed his homer into the left field seats. Harder fanned Kress, but when Dykes singled through short Rescuer Connally was hustled into action and he, along with Bean, kept the south siders in check for the rest of the day. There were only three singles after the fourth and two of these carried the Lyons trade-mark. But no promising scoring chances were uncovered.

VICTORY EASES PAIN

The crowd whooped and howled over the Sox victory, but none felt better than Manager Lew Fonseca, who sat on the bench, his injured right leg propped up for comfort and a pair of crutches at his side. The manager, who had been at Mercy hospital since he ripped the tendons in his right ankle last Friday, went to his hotel apartment after the game. The leg is still giving him considerable pain, but he doesn't intend to let that keep him away from the job.

Now that the team has won five of the last six games, Fonseca may decide to let Vic Frasier prove or disprove his comeback today. If there is a change in this plan at the last minute it will be up to Sam Jones to work. The veteran blanked the Tigers last week in his only start of the season. Clint Brown is to be the Indian's nominee.

Altogether it was a bad day for Red Kress, who dropped two throws at first base and fumbled a grounder. It may be that Red was a bit dizzy as the result of being thumped on the chin by a batted ball in the pre-game practice. The cut was severe enough to warrant a couple of stitches by the club doctor.

The Sox fans don't seem to think well of Willie Kamm and Bill Cissell, both south side athletes until traded to Cleveland. They were booed when they appeared at bat, but the largest portion of the demonstration was reserved for Cissell.

Glen Myatt, the Indians' catcher, put his bare hand in the path of a tip foul off Appling's bat in the fourth and lost the nail from the index finger. He retired for repairs.

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

AMONG the young men who will receive diplomas of graduation at Notre Dame in June is Billy Sullivan, who has earned a cum laude in law.

There is nothing startling in a young man's finishing his college course with distinction. But it becomes an item of news when the young man had the good sense to persevere in his studies at a time when he had opportunity to make considerable ready money by quitting the campus for a professional baseball camp.

BILLY SULLIVAN.

Sullivan is one of the most promising youngsters the White Sox or any other ball club has acquired in several years. He has demonstrated he can hit big league pitching more effectively than most veterans. He has been shifted so frequently he has had no real chance to establish himself as a fielder.

Sullivan knows more about the ways of baseball than most young men of his age. He is the son of a famous old White Sox catcher. That, no doubt, is the reason he was determined to complete his law course at Notre Dame. He wanted something to fall back on when his legs and arm no longer were valuable in baseball.

There is little incentive for young men of intelligence to rely upon baseball as a sole means of livelihood when you find such greats as Walter Johnson, Ty Cobb, and Tris Speaker dropped with scant ceremony. These men have contributed heavily to the game and they still have something to contribute, merely as living symbols of history, if nothing else.

It is only a matter of time until nearly every famous player sinks into oblivion, once he passes through the exit gate. Some of them are able to obtain employment as coaches, scouts or managers, but there are only few such jobs. Many are pathetically unqualified for any other line of work when their active days are over.

Hans Wagner for more than a decade was the greatest player in the National league. But until the Pirates engaged him as coach this season he probably had been paying his way into ball parks for many years.

When I was a kid following the exploits of the old Cubs on the west side I used to hear the graybeards speculating as to what would happen to baseball when Wagner was through. But before he had stepped down another player, Cobb, had attained a new peak in baseball popularity. Cobb is only a memory now. Ruth crowded him out of the spotlight.

We like to worry about the plight of baseball when the Babe disappears. There is no need of fretting. A new hero will come along. Baseball is that way. It always outlives its stars.

In a recent column we stated that universities conduct intercollegiate football for two purposes—revenue and advertising; otherwise there would be no need for intercollegiate games. Which brought the following comment from Maj. John L. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner of athletics:

"I estimated the other day that it had cost the conference universities well over a million dollars to maintain track for the last 20 years. I will not attempt to give you the figures, but as you know baseball, swimming, wrestling, gymnastics, fencing, soccer, hockey, and other intercollegiate sports are conducted annually at a loss. Now that being true, the colleges certainly have not conducted these sports on an intercollegiate basis for revenue and if they have they are exceedingly dumb. Further, they do not get much advertising in terms of these sports.

"I am not forgetting that you specifically mentioned football in your article, but the colleges do not differentiate between track, let us say, and football. They would like to get more advertising for track because it is quite a load to carry this sport.

"The point I wanted to make, however, was that college football was not started for the purpose of getting revenue or advertising. The boys who were interested in football at Minnesota, let us say, got up a team and they thought they could beat Wisconsin and the boys at Wisconsin thought otherwise, so they played a game. They had difficulty in getting revenue and in the early days of football in the conference the game usually was conducted at a loss.

"There are 1,000 institutions above high school rank in America and in only a few of these is football a paying proposition. About 900 are conducting football the same way that the conference universities are conducting track, with yearly deficits. So if your statement is correct that colleges maintain football for revenue, then here again we must agree that the institutions of higher learning are not very smart."

Comment—There are 16 baseball clubs in the major leagues and not more than three are making money. Still they are in there trying. Maybe they aren't very smart either.

Grimm Makes Demaree Cubs' Lead-Off Man

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., April 23.—After today's defeat, Manager Charley Grimm decided to rearrange the Cubs' batting order for the second game of the Reds' series tomorrow, making Demaree the lead-off man and dropping English to fifth place.

W. Herman will hit in second position, marking the first time he has not batted in the No. 1 spot since he came to the Cubs. Grimm believes Demaree is bearing down too much and that English will deliver more hits with men on base batting behind F. Herman and Stephenson.

The new batting order will be: Demaree, c. f.; W. Herman, 2 b.; F. Herman, r. f.; Stephenson, l. f.; English, 3 b.; Grimm, 1 b.; Koenig, who will play shortstop until Jurges returns, Hartnett, c., and the pitcher.

Pat Malone tomorrow will go after his second win of the year and his 93d as a Cub. Manager Bush is expected to nominate either Frey or Benton.

Cincinnati's mayor, Russell Wilson, introduced all the new Reds just before today's game. Those who took bows as his honor said nice things about them over the public address system were:

Manager Donie Bush, formerly manager of the White Sox and the Pirates; Coach Jewel Ens, former manager of the Pirates; Johnny Moore, Bob Smith, Rollie Hemsley and Foots Blair, former Cubs; Dutch Henry, former White Sox; Jim Bottomley, Harry Rice, Otto Bluege, Keith Frasier and John Fonger. Bush and Rice were presented with emblems by the Cincinnati lodge of Elks.

Last year the tail end Reds won their season series with the champion Cubs in Cincinnati, taking six out of 11 games. The Cubs won the Chicago series with the Reds, 7 games to 4.

WALTON LEAGUE CONVENTION TO OPEN THURSDAY

Former Senator Hawes Is Among Speakers.

BY BOB BECKER.

All phases of wild life conservation work, including production of fish and game, stream and lake improvement, legislation, hunter and farmer relationships, and reforestation will be discussed at the Izaak Walton league of America's national convention which opens Thursday morning at the Sherman hotel. The convention will continue through Friday, closing that evening with a banquet for delegates and guests. State and U. S. government authorities on wild life conservation will join with the Waltonians in their two day deliberations on problems affecting the preservation and utilization of America's recreational resources.

Hawes to Speak.

Former Senator Harry B. Hawes is to speak at the opening session on Thursday. He will take up the legislative angles of game restoration and legislation. Seth Gordon, president of the American Game association, also is on the opening program to discuss how sportsmen may be educated on conservation principles.

Other speakers who will appear before the convention have been announced by S. Barry Locke, conservation director of the league, as follows: C. E. Rachford, United States forest service; Aldo Leopold, game consultant; J. N. [Ding] Darling, the cartoonist, who is a member of the Iowa game commission; Dr. Carl Hubbs, director of the Institute for Fisheries Research of the University of Michigan; Capt. C. F. Culler, United States fisheries supervisor; Paul G. Redington, chief of the United States biological survey; John N. Ball, American Game association, and Judge A. B. Cohn, Toledo, O., conservationist.

Sportsmen to Attend Sessions.

Several subjects to be brought before this eleventh national convention of the league are of vital interest to the sportsman, according to Mr. Locke. Waltonians in Chicagoland are planning to attend the sessions. One of these projects involves the question of payment to farmers for raising game birds and turning them out in the shooting coverts. A subject of vital interest to fishermen which will come before the convention is that of artificial remodeling of lake beds and trout streams in order to increase the number of game fish.

TRUCK AND BUS OWNERS FIGHT 4 STATE BILLS

Charge Railroads Sponsor Proposed Regulations.

BY HAL FOUST.

The truck and bus operators, represented by the Illinois Highway Users conference, are assembling evidence for presentation to the Illinois legislature this week against four pending bills. Chester G. Moore, director of the conference, charges that the bills are sponsored by the railroads and are designed to strangle highway transportation. These are the bills:

Senate bill 316, introduced by Senator R. M. Shaw [Dem., Lawrenceville]: Reduces gross legal weight of a truck or truck trailer combination to 20,000 pounds. The present limit is 16,000 pounds on any axle, with 40,000 pounds gross limit on a three axle, six wheel truck, and 20,000 pounds on a two axle, four wheel truck or trailer. The bill also reduces the legal maximum length of any single unit from thirty-five to twenty-six and a half feet, and the maximum for truck and trailer from forty feet to thirty feet.

Would Fix Bus Rates.

House bill 174, introduced by Representative Howard L. Doyle [Dem., Decatur]: Directs the Illinois commerce commission to fix the rate for services performed by common carrier trucks and buses at the same rate that is fixed for services of a like character performed by railroads.

House bill 227, introduced by Representative Joseph H. Davis [Dem., Murphysboro]: Places common carrier trucks and buses under regulation of the commerce commission.

House bill 498, introduced by Representative Maurice O. Kalahar [Rep., Bloomington]. Reduces maximum gross weight of truck or truck and trailer to 15,000 pounds. Reduces the maximum length of single unit to twenty-five feet, and the length of truck with trailer to thirty feet.

Protest Frequent Changes.

"These bills would not help the railroads as much as they think," said Mr. Moore. "Shippers would continue to use trucks for the convenience they afford, but the measures would increase the cost of highway transportation and hence the cost to the consumer of articles now carried on the highways such as milk, fruit, live stock, fresh vegetables—yes, and beer, too.

"The maximum length of trucking equipment was reduced in a law that became effective on Jan. 1. It is unfair to change the regulations every two years. There are $40,000,000 worth of trucks operating in this state. Between 13,000 and 14,000 families depend upon trucking for a livelihood."

At the service a new dossal of red velvet, forming a background of the church altar was dedicated "to the glory of God and in loving memory of Anton J. Cermak" by the Rev. John Weaver, pastor.

Phillip Pokorny, 3808 West 24th street, and his family donated the dossal as a memorial to the late mayor.

NATIONAL PARKS TO BENEFIT BY ARMY OF WOODS

Roosevelt O. K.'s Fifty of Camp Sites.

Washington, D. C., April 23.—(AP)—Sites for 50 more conservation work corps camps, approved by President Roosevelt, were announced today by Robert Fechner, director of the conservation employment program. This brings the camp sites thus far selected up to 157.

Ten thousand of the 250,000 young men to be recruited under the President's forestation program, he said, will have an opportunity to spend the summer among the scenic national parks and monuments.

More National Park Work.

They will be scattered through 14 states—Arizona, Arkansas, California Colorado, Maine, Montana, Tennessee, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon, Utah, Virginia, Washington, and Wyoming.

Fechner reported the sites to be utilized included Yellowstone National park, the Great Smokies of Tennessee and North Carolina, the proposed Shenandoah national park area, the Yosemite National park, and the Grand Canyon National park.

The first of the camps will be located in the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia. This area in the proposed Shenandoah national park was visited by President Roosevelt early this month. In that section, also, former President Herbert Hoover's Rapidan retreat is located.

Nature of the Job.

"The work to be undertaken in the national parks and monuments is expected to be productive of very valuable results," Mr. Fechner said in a statement. "Roadside cleanup as a fire hazard reduction measure along the highways; clearing out dead standing and down trees, dead brush, and other material of a highly inflammable character; cleanup of burned areas and slashings on areas recently added to the park and monument system which previously had been logged while in private ownership; and cleanup of trees killed by disease, as in the case of the chestnuts in the east, will greatly enhance the beauty of the parks. Erosion control will be undertaken.

"A limited amount of planting will be done in areas where natural reproduction cannot be counted upon within a reasonable time because destructive logging, fires and other causes."

FLAMES WRECK 8TH FLOOR OFFICE IN FEDERAL BLDG.

Fire early this morning wrecked the courtroom of United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on the eighth floor of the federal building. Valuable records pertaining to pending cases are believed to have been destroyed by fire or damaged by water. Unofficial estimates placed the property damage at $3,500. Firemen believe the blaze originated from crossed wires.

The fire broke out shortly after 2 o'clock and was seen from the street by several early morning loop pedestrians. Guards in the postoffice were notified and an alarm was sounded. Firemen experienced some difficulty in fighting the flames because of the location of the courtroom, but checked them after 15 minutes' work.

The courtroom was flooded by ankle deep water. Fearing the water would seep to the quarters below, guards placed tarpaulins over desks in the naturalization offices directly underneath. There was no seepage, however. It was necessary to shovel the water from the courtroom with scoop shovels.

JOHN J. COLLINS HAYMARKET RIOT VETERAN, IS DEAD

Funeral services for John J. Collins, one of the police veterans of the Haymarket riot on May 4, 1886, will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 320 North Central avenue. Burial will be in Mount Emblem cemetery.

Mr. Collins, who was 79 years old, died Saturday in his home at 5931 Midway Park. He retired from the police department in 1919 and went into business as a mortgage broker. He suffered a paralytic stroke in 1926. His death leaves only seven survivors of the police detachment which battled the Haymarket rioters.

His widow, Mrs. Emma Collins, and a son, Earl J., survive. A brother, Samuel Collins, is a retired captain of police.

BLONDE AND TWO MEN ARRESTED AS BURGLARS

Mrs. Louise Chapman, 26 years old, a blonde who claims to be deaf, was arrested yesterday as an alleged burglar with her husband, James Chapman, 26 years old, and his brother, Nelson Chapman, 30 years old.

The three were seized by Lieut. Joseph McDowell and a squad of the Irving Park police in a vacant store at 5503 Montrose avenue. They were standing at a wall through which some one had started to chop a hole. This would have led into the drug store of Ed Bellezza, 5501 Montrose avenue, which has twice been looted this year. A kit of burglars' tools lay on the floor.

The Chapmans refused to talk. The husband and wife gave their address as 10920 South Troy street. Nelson said he lived at 2342 Madison street.

GEORGE N. NEISE, PIONEER BANKER, IS DEAD AT 80

George N. Neise, 80 years old, who was with the Foreman banks for sixty-four years before his retirement as vice president in 1931, died last night in his home at 2912 Commonwealth avenue, after an illness of several months.

GEORGE N. NEISE. [Underwood & Underwood Photo.]

Mr. Neise began work as a messenger for Gerhard Foreman, the bank founder, in April, 1867. Later he became a director and vice president. He retired shortly before the Foreman-State National bank merged with the First National bank in 1931.

In the closing years of his connection with the Foreman institution Mr. Neise's fellow officers paid him honor on each anniversary. Mr. Neise often recalled how Mrs. Gerhard Foreman took food to him in 1871 when he remained on guard at the bank vaults for a week following the Chicago fire.

Mr. Neise was a native Chicagoan and was educated in schools here. He is survived by his widow, Cora, and two children, Edwin G. Neise and Mrs. Edward J. Lehmann, wife of the former president of The Fair store. Funeral services will be private.

FORMER OPERA EMPLOYE ENDS LIFE; QUIZ GIRL

Bryce Pennell, 60 years old, 4621 Sheridan road, who was chief machinist for the Chicago Civic Opera company and had been idle since the company disbanded, ended his life early yesterday in the forest preserve near Kirkwood and Sauganash avenues. He had attached a metal pipe to the exhaust outlet of his automobile and inhaled the fumes.

Several farewell notes were found beside the body. One of them mentioned Miss Mildred Peterson, 31 years old, of 831 Wilson avenue, a switchboard operator. She told the police that she had met Pennell, a widower, only recently. Last Thursday, she said, he drove her to the forest preserve, and asked her to marry him. When she refused he threatened to kill her, she asserted.

GRAIN MARKETS RIDE CREST OF INFLATION WAVE

Broad Buying Sends Prices Soaring.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

An inflationary movement in the grain and cotton markets led a surprisingly rapid advance last week. The enthusiasm with which buyers took hold of all commodities marked the week.

It seems incredible to speculative and trade leaders that a complete reversal in sentiment from pessimism to optimism should come within a period of a few weeks, but it was evident last week in all markets and expectations are that this week will see a broadening of buying, with advancing prices.

Politics have been an important factor. The United States is off the gold basis and Canada practically off. The announcement of this movement brought in a wave of speculative buying, that carried prices to levels that seemed impossible thirty to sixty days ago.

Sharp Advances Shown.

Wheat is up about 25 cents from the low; corn, which sold at 23½ cents for May recently, was being actively bought at one time during the week at 36 cents. Oats, that went begging for buyers in the winter at around 16 cents, sold at 24½ cents on two days during the last week. Rye and barley have also had sensational advances.

Prices reached the highest levels in recent years, with the greatest volume of trading. Brokers, commission and business houses, in many instances, have been forced to put on extra clerks or work their staffs to the small hours of the morning to keep up with the influx of business. Expectations are that there is to be a continuation of activity for a considerable time.

Investors Good Winners.

Large speculators and the public bought wheat when prices in Chicago were around 45 to 50 cents. Some of them took profits on the advance, while others are predicting around 75 cents, and possibly higher, all depending on the crop outcome in the southwest and in the American and Canadian northwest. In the spring wheat country seeding is one to two weeks late, which is not always an indication of a small crop. In the southwest there have been scattered rains, but some of them came too late to be beneficial.

Many reasons are cited why wheat prices should at least maintain the present level for a time and later go materially higher. A Chicago statistician, in compiling factors on which to base a bullish position, allows 334,000,000 bushels for the winter wheat crop, a carryover on July 1 of 325,000,000 bushels and a normal spring wheat crop of 200,000,000 bushels, indicating a domestic supply for the 1933-'34 crop of 859,000,000 bushels.

Winnipeg wheat is being bought by Chicago and eastern speculators, and futures there are up 5⅝ to 5¾ cents for the week. Liverpool is up 6⅝ cents. Chicago made a net gain of 5⅞ to 6½ cents, the close on May being 67⅝ to 67⅞ cents; July, 68⅞ to 69 cents; September, 69⅞ to 70 cents. Prices for the week follow:

	May.	July.	Sept.
Monday	59⅞-60⅞	61⅝-62⅝	62⅝-63⅝
Tuesday	60¼-62⅞	61⅝-64½	62⅝-65½
Wednesday	63⅝-67⅝	64⅞-68⅜	66⅛-70
Thursday	66¼-69	68 -70	69¾-73
Friday	65⅝-67½	66¼-68⅝	67⅝-70
Saturday	64⅝-67⅛	65⅝-68	66⅝-70
For week	59⅝-69	61⅝-70	62⅝-73
Prev. week	57¼-61⅝	58 -63⅜	59 -64½
Last year	55⅛-59⅜	58 -62½	60½-64⅝
2 yrs. ago	81½-83¼	59⅝-65⅛	59⅝-65
Season	43¼-69	43⅝-70	45¼-73
1931-'32	48¾-73	49 -73⅛	55¼-64⅞

Corn Planting Late.

Corn planting is about ten days to three weeks late. Buying of futures was active, in sympathy with wheat. The largest individual holding of May was unloaded early in the week, creating a break, which brought increased buying and a rally, and at the same time induced country holders to sell corn freely for five to ten days' shipment. The close was at net gains of 3¼ to 3⅝ cents on futures, May being 35⅞ cents, July 38⅝ to 38½ cents, and September 39⅞ to 40 cents. Sentiment is bullish, with an increasing disposition to buy on all breaks. Prices for the week follow:

	May.	July.	Sept.
Monday	31⅝-32⅝	33¾-34⅝	35⅝-36⅝
Tuesday	31⅝-32⅞	33⅝-35½	35½-37
Wednesday	33 -35¼	35⅝-38¼	37¼-40
Thursday	34¼-36	37 -39¼	39 -41
Friday	34½-35⅝	36¼-38¼	38⅜-40¼
Saturday	34½-35⅝	36⅝-38½	38½-40
For week	31⅝-36	33⅝-39¼	35½-41
Previous week	30⅜-33¼	33- 35⅝	35 -37¼
Last year	31½-34	34⅝-37¼	37½-39⅝
2 years ago	55⅝-60⅝	58 -62⅝	58¼-61⅞
Season	23½-40½	25 -39⅛	26⅝-41
1931-'32	31½-53¼	34⅝-55	37⅛-45½

Increased activity, particularly on the buying side, carried oats up to a net gain of 2⅞ to 3⅜ cents, with the close on May at 24 cents and July at 24½ cents. Rye gained 3 to 3⅜ cents, with the finish on May at 48⅝ cents, July 49¼ cents, and September 49⅞ cents. Barley was bought by malsters and May closed at 38¼ cents and July 39⅞ cents, being 5 to 5⅝ cents up.

Steel Plants Will Move Up to 27 Pct. Rate

An expansion in steel ingot production to 27 per cent of capacity is scheduled for this week, says the magazine Steel. This compares with 25 per cent last week and 20½ per cent two weeks ago. The new impulse "recoups all the ground lost since early February," it is said.

Gains were made during the week in all districts except Detroit, which held to 33 per cent. Chicago moved up to 23½ per cent.

"Because some mills are picking semi-finished steel off their stockpiles finishing mill activity has forged ahead to an even greater extent than the ingot rate implies," explains Steel. "Scrap rose so sharply last week that dealers began to avoid orders. Adjustments in foreign exchanges began to lessen foreign competition in pig iron, iron ore, and ferroalloys.

Talk of Higher Prices.

"On practically every finished steel product makers talked of impending price advances. And to find a volume of business comparable with that placed on their books during the week they went back to the spring months of 1932."

Prices of scrap were again raised 50 cents to $1 in all districts, owing apparently to larger transactions and scarcity of the metal. Heavy metal steel at Chicago sold at an advance of $1.50 to $1.80 a ton.

"A strongly rising trend in pig iron shipments is attributed in considerable measure to the higher prices of scrap for foundry mixtures," says Steel. "With a rush of new inquiries Pittsburgh furnaces are withdrawing pig iron quotations."

The magazine finds that "broader, miscellaneous demands, plus a moderate increase in automotive specifications, still constitute the main support of the finished steel markets." Railroad purchasing is still lacking.

Exports Expand in March.

The country's iron and steel exports in March rose to 80,567 gross tons, the largest in twenty months and comparing with 63,936 in February. Imports increased to 22,114 tons from 19,748 in February.

"Sentiment regarding finished steel prices is stronger," says the magazine, "although makers have committed themselves to most consumers for the second quarter. It is believed the first effect of a general inflationary trend will be to make present official prices more applicable in the spot market. Pittsburgh mills this week expect to advance strip steel $3 per ton."

Steel's finished steel composite this week is unchanged at $44.90, the iron and steel composite is up 4 cents to $28.18 owing to the advance of $2 a ton in galvanizing sheets, and the scrap composite is up 88 cents to $7.75.

ANTHRACITE COAL GROUPS PONDER 35 PCT. WAGE CUT

Philadelphia, April 23.—(AP)—Negotiations looking toward a 35 per cent wage reduction in the anthracite industry will be resumed here tomorrow.

The committee of twelve—six company executives and six union officials—will be confronted by an even greater multiplicity of problems than faced them on convening last Wednesday for the first time.

Questions of industrial regulation, inflation, a 30 hour week and other developments at Washington have ben injected into the situation.

Japanese Yen Advances Against Dollar in Tokio

TOKIO, April 24.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Opening with the Yokohama Specie bank's official rate 22¾ cents, the yen strengthened steadily today against the dollar. At noon most of the banks were quoting 23⅝ cents per yen. Week-end dispatches telling of the progress of inflation legislation in congress were the principal factor.

Ford Plant NearTroy, N.Y., Recalls 175 Men to Work

Troy, N. Y., April 23.—(AP)—Virtually closed since the strike at the Briggs Body company plant in Detroit, the Green island branch of the Ford Motor company near here has recalled 175 men to work on a five day week basis. Only 12 toolmakers have been on the pay roll for the last several weeks.

WOODIN OFFERS NEW BOND ISSUE TO SMALL BUYER

Half Billion Notes Available.

Washington, D. C., April 23.—[Special.]—In an effort by the government to sell its securities to small investors, Secretary Woodin announced today an issue of half a billion dollars in three year 2⅞ per cent treasury notes, reserving the right to increase the offering by an amount sufficient to allot in full all subscriptions up to $10,000.

"The books will be kept open several days for the receipt of subscriptions of that class," Secretary Woodin said.

The notes will be in denominations of $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, and $100,000, with interest payable on a semi-annual basis.

Subscribe at Federal Reserve.

Persons or institutions wishing to subscribe for the new securities may do so at the federal reserve banks and their branches, and at the treasury department, in Washington.

Banking institutions generally will handle applications for subscribers, but only the federal reserve banks and the treasury are authorized to act as official agencies.

The usual provision that the notes shall be payable "in United States gold coin of the present standard of value" is made in connection with the new issue.

The proceeds of the sale will be used to meet $239,197,000 of certificates of indebtedness which mature on May 2, to pay $6,500,000 in interest on public debt, and for other currency requirements.

10 Per Cent with Order.

Secretary Woodin said that subscriptions, unless made by an incorporated bank or trust company, or by a responsible and recognized dealer in government securities, must be accompanied by payment of 10 per cent of the amount of the notes applied for. Cash subscriptions, however, may be accompanied by payment in full.

In addition to subscriptions up to $10,000, all subscriptions for which payment is to be tendered in treasury certificates of indebtedness maturing May 2, will be allotted in full. The notes will carry the usual exemption features.

A wide distribution of the new securities is expected to get some money out of hoarding, and the issue also will supply small investors with safe investments. If the program is successful and there is a wide popular subscription the securities will be diverted to some extent from the banks.

The May 2 issue will exceed the maturity of certificates of indebtedness by around $260,000,000 and bring the total of the outstanding public debt to approximately $21,713,448,000 when the transaction is completed. The increase for the fiscal year will be in excess of $3,116,000,000.

Wall Street Works Sunday, First Time Since 1929

New York, April 23.—(AP)—The Sabbath quiet of Wall street was disturbed by workers today for the first time since 1929. The complete clearing house units of nearly all the leading brokerage houses reported for work to straighten out the books after last Friday's heavy trading. Hundreds of former clerks, unemployed since 1929, were credited with overtime.

Number Given Employment in Pennsylvania Increases

Philadelphia, April 23.—(AP)—The Pennsylvania employment commission today reported in increase of 41 per cent in the number of workers it placed in jobs in the Philadelphia area between March 1 and April 15, as compared to the corresponding period of last year.

CONTINENTAL STEEL CORPORATION COMMON

Listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange

(Market 5 bid 6 asked.)

According to the latest balance sheet
Book value of common about $30 per share.
Current assets about 13 times current liabilities.
Cash and Governments about 4 times current liabilities.
Company now operating about 40% of capacity.

We understand steel scrap has advanced this week in Chicago from $5.50 per gross ton to $7.75 per gross ton and that steel prices generally are advancing.

It appears that the outlook for steel companies is brightening rapidly and that operations should increase.

In our opinion the common stock of the Continental Steel Corporation, an old established company, with modern plants at Indianapolis, Canton and Kokomo, is selling not only substantially below its intrinsic value, but is decidedly behind the general market.

If the business recovery, now anticipated by many, actually materializes, it seems to us reasonable that an investment in this stock at present very low levels should prove decidedly profitable.

SEES SOVIET ROW AID TO BRITISH EMPIRE TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 23.—The trade of the British empire will be aided by the embargo placed by Great Britain on imports of soviet goods and raw materials, the Bank of Montreal says in its monthly business summary. Among the raw materials of Canada that compete with Russia in the empire are listed wheat, timber, poultry, butter, barley and oats.

"Favorable features continue to mark Canada's external trade," says the bank, "especially so in the case of exports. In March, for example, the value of Canadian produce exported, $36,579,000, was only 8 per cent less than in the corresponding month of 1932, a comparatively small decrease, the desline in these exports in the last twelve months having been 18 per cent.

For the month there was an excess of domestic exports over imports of $37,850,000, while in this month last year the imports exceeded exports by $17,688,000, the improvement in the balance of trade having been $21,473,000, a remarkable gain."

U. S. STEEL BOARD ACTS TOMORROW ON PFD. DIVIDEND

New York, April 23.—Directors of United States Steel corporation will meet Tuesday for action on the preferred dividend. Three months ago a payment of 50 cents a share was voted, the first change ever made in the long standing $1.75 quarterly rate.

Several other dividend meetings are scheduled for the week, including those of Consolidated Gas of New York, American Tobacco, Coca-Cola, Borden company, Freeport Texas, Sun Oil, United Gas Improvement, Norfolk and Western railway and Diamond Match.

Directors of Minneapolis-Honeywell Regular company have deferred action on the quarterly dividend due May 15. The company had first quarter net loss of $128,256, against loss of $147,746 in the same period last year.

Illinois Central Income for March Is $722,238

The steady decline in railroad revenues is reflected in the report of the Illinois Central system for March. Railway operating revenues for March totaled $6,102,248 compared with $8,125,559 for March, 1932, a decrease of $2,023,311. Net operating income was $722,238 compared with $1,470,712 in March a year ago—a decline of $748,474. Net operating income for the first three months of 1933 totaled $1,806,041 compared with $3,309,569 in the like period of 1932—a decline of $1,503,528.

MANY CHICAGO TRADE LINES FEEL IMPETUS OF INFLATION MOVES

Concurrent with the national movement towards inflation and the noticeable rise in commodity prices, there was a marked improvement in many lines of trade during the last week in Chicago. Not only were retail sales advanced over the corresponding period a year ago but steel plants also jumped their output, electric power output held up well, freight carloadings increased substantially in number, and building permit totals displayed a slight rise, according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Contrary to the usual slump in business following the Easter period, retail sales made a good showing, and profits were only slightly under those of the preceding week, when buying was normally heavy. Officials attributed this gain in part to the slight rise in prices of many lines of necessities and the fear on the part of buyers that other lines would soon follow the same trend.

Electric power output, although slightly under the averages for last year, continued to display a gain over the preceding weeks.

NEW EAST TEXAS OIL PRODUCTION RATE IS FIXED

Austin, Tex., April 23.—(AP)—The production allowable of the east Texas oil field was fixed by the Texas railroad commission today at 15 per cent of the average hourly potential of each well. The commission estimated the field could produce between 700,000 and 750,000 barrels daily under that arrangement.

Test of 300 wells by the commission revealed potential of the field is approximately 126,000 barrels daily.

It was estimated the average per well production daily under the new order would range from forty barrels to 150 barrels. Under the last order the top field allowable was 400,000 barrels daily, the per well allowable ranging from 30 to 38 barrels daily.

The field was closed April 6 to permit the commission to take the potential tests. It will reopen at 7 a. m. tomorrow under terms of the newest conservation rules.

BANKERS' GROUP OUTLINES BROAD REFORM PROGRAM

New York, April 23.—(AP)—A broad program of banking reform designed to stimulate business and to safeguard depositors is recommended by the economic policy commission of the American Bankers' association in a report issued today. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the Cleveland Trust company, Cleveland, O., is chairman of the commission.

Among the proposals is one to bring banks generally into the federal reserve system on a broadened basis of admission that would take in numerous state chartered commercial and mutual savings banks not now in the system.

The report recommends branch banking privileges, uniform within states, for all banks whether holding national or state charters; reasonable limitations to control the sudden shifting of large commercial deposits, and restraint on real estate speculation which "would probably prove to be a safeguard to American banking comparable to that which would result from a restriction of speculation in commodities or securities.

"Consideration should be given," said the report, "to a change in our federal reserve act by which a minimum required relationship would be established between our stock of monetary gold and the combined total of our reserve notes and our bank deposits. This would nullify most of the dangers inherent in the hoarding of currency."

CANADA TO SAVE 53 MILLIONS ON DOLLAR PARITY

OTTAWA, Ont., April 23.—[Special.]—Canada's possible cash gain this year from inflation of the American dollar has been represented to the Canadian cabinet as a maximum of $53,000,000.

The government, in session over the new North American economic deal, was told by statistical experts that amount would be Canada's saving in exchange bills if the Canadian dollar closes the present 20 per cent exchange gap between it and the American dollar. This is based on Canada's total current year commitments, governmental, municipal, and corporation, in New York of 266 million dollars.

American inflation, however, makes it possible for Canada to inflate the Canadian dollar for the benefit of primary industries.

N. Y. Bank Cites Danger in Inflation

New York, April 23.—(AP)—The Guaranty Trust company of New York, in its monthly survey of business and financial conditions, issued today, discusses inflation and its possible consequences in the United States and warns that "efforts at monetary manipulation still belong in the realm of dangerous experiments."

"Agitation for the adoption of such policies," the review continues, "would quickly subside if men in general could be brought to realize that the law of supply and demand is as valid and as powerful in the field of money and finance as it is in the field of commerce and industry. Attempts to interfere with the operation of that law entail consequences far beyond the ability of any one to foresee.

Fears Disturbing Confidence.

"No gold ratio short of 100 per cent can be called a safe ratio as long as confidence is lacking. More specifically, the recent experience proved that a serious possibility of inflation is not consistent with confidence. The results of financial tinkering are so uncertain and so dangerous in their potentialities that inflationary schemes must inevitably hamper, rather than promote, sound and orderly business recovery as long as they remain important elements in the economic outlook."

Regarding the advocation of inflation on the ground that it would assist debtors, the survey says:

"This would be true in so far as inventory values were increased, relative labor costs reduced and business activity and earning power stimulated. On the other hand, the individual wage earner or holder of a fixed income might find it more difficult to meet his debt requirements because of his reduced margin of income over and above his cost of living.

Blow to Fixed Incomes.

"The real sufferers from inflation would be the holders of fixed values and incomes—commercial and savings banks depositors, bondholders, annuitants, beneficiaries of trust funds and insurance policy holders—and the great mass of wage earners and salary workers who would revert to their position of world war days when they were forced to struggle for increased wages and salaries against a rising cost of living.

"In recent years the position of wage and salary earners, in many cases, has been exactly the opposite. Many workers have received increases in real wages, inasmuch as their money wages have fallen only after a fall in the cost of living, and then not commensurately."

URGE RESTORING OLD RELATION OF SILVER TO GOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 23.—Any plan looking toward a permanent recovery in world commodity prices must involve the restoration of silver to approximately the same relationship with gold as existed in normal years prior to the beginning of the current depression in 1929, it is contended by a group of industrialists both here and abroad.

This does not involve the fixing of any definite ratio between silver and gold, such as the sixteen to one ratio or bimetallism, it is declared, but only the retracing of the steps of demonetization that has taken place since 1920 in Europe and India.

This group of industrialists believes that one of the principal causes of the current depression is not so much the overproduction of leading commodities, but to the chaotic condition in the monetary system of the world, due largely to the decreased use of silver and the greater demand for gold as a medium of exchange.

BOOM IN TRADE PUTS NEW LIFE IN WALL STREET

Huge Sum Is Added to Stock Values.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 23.—Happy days have come to Wall street again.

The stock market, which had been simmering for some two weeks on the more or less desultory inflation talk, boiled suddenly over last Wednesday when official word got round that the country had finally cut loose from the gold standard and the subsequent results have been momentous.

Stock Values Enhanced.

Something like $3,250,000,000 has been added to the value of corporation shares listed on the big board. Brokers have reveled in the fattest fees they have pocketed since the seething days of the big 1929 crash. More than 5,000 clerks and other commission house employés have been recalled from enforced vacations and restored once more to the all important pay roll, and finally—and most important of all from the professional viewpoint—the vast speculatively inclined element of the nation's citizenry referred to in the street as "the public" has been brought back into the market for the first time since the collapse of the 1932 late summer advance in September.

Hope and reviving confidence once more have laid the ghost of black despair that has been stalking the market ways for these three years and more now.

Gain in Average.

The week's advance on the share exchange amounting to approximately 7½ points carried THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's stock index to the highest closing level since Oct. 4. At the close of yesterday's business the index stood at 63.47, as against 46.85 on March 2—a rally of more than 35 per cent from the year's lows.

The net gain for the week amounted to a little over 13 per cent, individual upturns ranging anywhere from 2 to 20 points. Various low priced issues just about doubled their rated valuations. In point of volume, it was the biggest week since that ending Aug. 13, last, a total of 22,146,399 shares changing hands.

The present position of some of the leading figures in the week's boisterous activity in comparison with their all time bear market lows of last year and their minimums of this year is shown in the following tabulation, which gives in order the 1932 low, the 1933 low and yesterday's closing price:

The week's gains in twenty-five representative issues, including those just named, American Smelting and Refining, Anaconda Copper, International Harvester, International Telephone, Kennecott, Norfolk and Western, Pennsylvania, Sears-Roebuck, and Union Pacific, accounted for $929,080,854 of the $3,250,000,000 total.

CHINA 'PEGS' EXCHANGE RATE OF NEW DOLLAR

Reform of Currency Goes Into Effect.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, April 23.—The Nanking government has effected a revolutionary modernization of its currency. The action was taken shortly after the government issued orders settling in motion the machinery in the central mint at Shanghai, reputed to be the largest and most modern in the world. Modeled after the United States mint at Philadelphia, the Shanghai mint was completed about ten years ago, but due to political complications had remained idle.

As the mint began turning out new shiny standard silver unit dollars, the government issued regulations abolishing the ancient Chinese monetary unit known as the "tael." The actual abolition of the tael is to be done gradually over a period, but in the meantime the ministry of finance has fixed the exchange rate between dollars and taels, thus eliminating an exchange situation which long has baffled all except the banking experts who made a profit out of it.

Tael Worth $1.40.

Hereafter any one possessing taels may exchange them for silver dollars at the fixed rate of one tael for $1.40, or vice versa at the rate of one dollar for .71½ taels. Heretofore the rate between these two units had fluctuated from day to day, enabling bankers and others to profit at the expense of the public.

The subject is of interest to Americans and other foreigners because the Chinese maritime customs always charged duties in taels, which had to be converted into dollars when actual payment was made. Thus an American bringing an automobile into China was charged duty in taels, but when the importer went to the bank with his bill from the customs house he had to obtain the equivalent in silver dollars which he handed over to the customs cashier. Since the abolition of the tael the customs authorities now charge duties in what is popularly known as customs gold units, which are worth about 40 cents in United States currency.

Americans have a further interest because the abolition of the tael has a direct effect on silver, the basis of all Chinese currency, and the supplies for which China buys chiefly in the United States and Mexico.

History of the Tael.

Although the tael is one of the oldest monetary units in existence, having been in use in China for at least a century, it never was actually coined, and the word itself was not of Chinese origin. It was derived either from the Malayan word "ta-hil" or the Indian word "to-la." In Chinese nomenclature the word tael meant one ounce of pure silver and this is what it was.

When it came to monetary matters, the Chinese were all "from Missouri." They had no confidence in what was stamped on a coin. They were interested only in the coin's actual silver content. Thus, when an American tourist presents payment for an article in a Shanghai shop the clerk always rings the dollars to determine whether they are genuine silver. Through long practice they are able to detect the slightest amount of alloy.

Long Without Money.

It has only been in comparatively recent times that silver dollars and subsidiary coins have circulated in China; that is, dollars of Chinese manufacture. When the foreigners first established commercial contact at Canton in the sixteenth century, they found the Chinese merchants without a circulating medium. The Chinese were accustomed to valuing their merchandise in terms of actual silver, which was minted in blocks having the shape of a primitive boat. These blocks are known as "sy-cee," meaning "as fine as silver," or "absolutely pure." Then from foreign sources they obtained the word "tael," which stood for one ounce of pure silver.

In order to facilitate trading the foreigners, particularly the Americans in the early clipper ship days, introduced silver dollars. One of the first was known as the American "trade dollar," which was a large and cumbersome affair. Later large cargoes of silver in the form of minted dollars from Mexico were brought to China, and since they were of good standard quality they practically became the currency of the country. The term "Mex," meaning dollar, is still in everyday use.

Billions Circulated.

Recently the writer came cross one of these coins bearing the date 1861 which apparently had been hoarded in some oriental sock, as it bore no signs of wear. Actually billions of these Mexican silver dollars were circulated in China up to about forty years ago, when the country first began minting its own silver dollars.

Now one seldom sees a foreign dollar in circulation. The number of Chinese silver dollars in regular use in the country and its dependencies is estimated at 1,700,000,000.

URGES NEW LAWS FOR SPEEDIER FORECLOSURES

Brundage Comments on Bond Situation.

BY AL CHASE.

Laws are needed that will permit foreclosure of property in a few weeks, leaving the trustee in possession in the meantime and thus precluding the appointment of a receiver to manage the property and a master to hear the forescosure suit, according to Avery Brundage, chairman of the H. O. Stone & Co. bondholders' protective committee. This suggestion was made in a statement of accomplishments of his group and also a discussion on laws needed to get bondholders out of the morass of antique laws which is swallowing their investments.

AVERY BRUNDAGE

He declared that realty bond reorganization is a continuous battle with desperate owners, determined to squeeze a last nickel out of a property in which their equity has long been extinct, and with chiselers and racketeers who set up every legal obstacle that can be raised under laws that favor nearly every one but the bondholder.

Called Exasperating Task.

"Reorganization of distressed properties under the existing archaic laws of Illinois and under prevailing rental conditions is a most difficult undertaking," said Mr. Brundage. "It's an exasperating and unpleasant task, involving endless negotiation and litigation, and interminable delays."

Reviewing the progress of the H. O. Stone & Co. committee, Mr. Brundage pointed out that in nine cases bondholders defeated their own interests and indefinitely delayed the reorganization of their bond issues by supporting other groups, instead of cooperating with the regular committee.

91 Issues Called.

"Ninety-four issues have been called for deposit by the committee," he said. "Bonds of two have been sold, netting the holders 70 and 74 cents, respectively, on the dollar. In one issue the bonds were extended at the same rate of interest and in the other the bonds are being extended and the interest lowered to 4 per cent, without expense to the bondholders.

"The committee has been successful in financing 42 foreclosure sales. Twenty-one of these properties are now under the full control of the committee and 14 will be taken over shortly.

"Foreclosures had been started and receivers appointed in about a third of the cases before the committee undertook this job. Since then the committee has avoided receiverships in 19 cases."

Hershey Chocolate.

Kindly furnish me with information concerning Hershey Chocolate as an investment possibility.—Miss S. H.

Hershey Chocolate corporation, established in 1893, is one of the largest American manufacturers of chocolate candy bars, cocoa, chocolate sirup and similar products.

Profits depend on volume of sales, cost of raw materials and the company's success in taking a position in the purchase of the commodities it uses. In 1931 sales declined, but the drop was offset by lower cost of raw materials. In 1932 competition forced the company to increase the size of its candy bars. As a result the upward trend in earnings in evidence during the preceding five years was sharply checked.

Sales in 1932 were not reported. Net income was $4,738,000, or $4.72 per common share [allowing for participation of preferred], against net of $7,636,000, or $8.73 per common share on the same basis, for 1931. Net for 1930 was $7,520,000, against $7,436,000 for 1929 and $6,456,000 for 1928.

The company's current position on Dec. 31, 1932, remained favorable, with current assets of $7,919,000 and current liabilities of $2,899,000. Cash was $1,609,000. Working capital was $5,020,000, against $6,783,000 the year before.

With the exception of a $150,000 mortgage due Dec. 1, 1933, there is no funded debt. There are outstanding 271,351 shares of no par preferred. The preferred is entitled to $4 cumulative dividends a year. Before anything can be distributed on the common in any one year, an additional dollar must be set aside for each preferred share. Common equity is represented by 728,649 no par shares.

Effective May 15, 1933, the common will be on a quarterly 75 cent dividend basis, against the previous $1.25 basis.

Kolster Radio.

On Nov. 18, 1931, you gave me a report on Kolster Radio corporation. I have heard nothing since regarding the situation. Are there any new developments?—M. S.

The final report and accounting of the receivers for Kolster Radio corporation was approved by Vice Chancellor Church of the Chancery court at Newark, N. J., on June 4, 1931. It showed a balance of $243,000, or about $2.34 per share on the 99,894 preferred shares.

As the preferred must receive $80 a share and unpaid accumulated dividends in liquidation before anything can be paid on the common, it appears that the common is worthless.

PUBLIC UTILITIES PLAN TO COMBAT FALSE CRITICISM

Assert Political Attacks Are Unjustified.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 23.—Leaders in the public utility field are preparing to abandon their attitude of nonresistance to the mounting volume of political criticism directed at them and will contest warmly in the territories which they serve any public utterances embracing misstatements of facts and circumstances.

In the last few years the utilities have avoided discussions of their business because of the more pressing nature of the general decline in it and the necessity to make savings and reduce debts. At the same time adverse propaganda against the companies has gained momentum.

Holding Concerns Blamed.

To an important degree the criticism against the public service companies has been based on the collapse of the Insull empire and smaller bankruptcies. These were not utility company failures, it is pointed out, but rather the bursting of overextended holding company bubbles.

The public utility field itself for many years has been resisting influences that crept into the practices of some holding companies, but, due to the importance and prestige of the Insulls, it was not possible to organize rigid opposition to such practices until last year, when the Edison Electric Institute was formed.

According to leaders of the industry, the great majority of holding companies has not abused the operating utility companies which they control either by unjustified borrowings of funds or by improper charges for management, engineering or other services.

Cite Rate Reductions.

Throughout the depression a steady reduction in the electric and gas rates of the industry has been maintained through voluntary coöperation between the utility companies and state regulatory commissions. This has been a strain on the companies, inasmuch as business has declined and taxes have risen simultaneously. Despite these factors the industry is confident of an early recovery that, coupled with steady improvement in management and increased operating economies, will permit the companies to increase their total revenues and make further rate reductions in more prosperous times.

MEN.

WE HAVE IMMEDIATE OPENINGS IN SOME OF OUR LOCAL BRANCH OFFICES FOR MEN WHO ARE QUALIFIED TO LEARN HOW TO SUCCESSFULLY REPRESENT THIS COMPANY.

This company, a unit of a powerful international institution of invaluable commercial service, is right now enjoying the greatest success of its history, and this year is marking its greatest enlargement and fourth consecutive record sales year.

These positions are genuine opportunities at high earnings for those who acquire [as taught] right ways of working and thinking. An investigation will disclose, our successful men make from $4,000.00 up to $10,000.00 or higher per year. There are no off seasons. These incomes in cash are just as stable and certain as any business or professional opportunities can present.

For example, a former merchant who took up this work in the fall of 1931 earned $4,940.00 with us last year—an average of about $95.00 a week and during recent weeks he has averaged a little over $130.00 per week. Yet today he has none of the worries or investment he had in his former business and our experienced man, C. L. Shipley, made commissions totaling over $6,000.00 in 1932, and he too expects to exceed these earnings this year. Another man made well over $4,000.00 last year with us, yet before joining us never earned more than $2,000.00 a year. This is the greatest opportunity for a salesman who wants to work for one Chicagoan as told us recently. "I paid off my old debts, am permanently settled, and know I am in a dependable, profitable business."

This work involves a novel and amazingly effective method of visual selling which does away with high pressure arguments and mere claims, and our product lends itself so naturally to this manner of non-talkative presentation that its sales are steadily increasing throughout the country.

C. G., formerly a salesman, made $47.50 Friday, the day this announcement was prepared. T. L., a former tool and die maker, seldom makes under $20 in a day—often $30 or more. M. J., a theatrical producer, made $45 the first 4 days last week. P. G., a civil engineer, who joined us last Dec. 5, made about $75 the first month and thus far in April has earned $235. J. B. H. made $92 in two days. R. S. earned $42 in a day, and W. G. did as well. R. H. earned $44.50 in a single day and W. E. nearly $100 in 5 days. R. O. made $20 the first day in this business. V. J. C., formerly an upholsterer, made $40 last Friday—has made as high as $200 in a day; W. L. made over $80 in 1 day last week; L. N. made $22 his first day in this business; J. J. C. has thus far increased his March earnings by J. D. earned $40 in half of week. He formerly was a salesman. These are ordinary earnings, taken at random from our files. They represent a fair average of salability of our product. Men starting in this work cannot expect to break records, and we prefer showing them an average of incomes. Men who make the most in this business are always happy and ready to give the others the benefit of their experience and help new men get into good incomes.

The first model of this product was introduced in Europe in 1919. It was designed to solve in a practical and sensible manner one of the greatest service problems of humanity. Inventors had vied with each other, the market was crowded with contraptions claiming efficiency and actually helping a great deal and doing a great deal of good, but Australia has a short time since the introduction of this product, it took precedence in one market after another until its sales throughout the European countries outstripped the sales of all others added together. Five great factories are required for present demand—one in England, two in Sweden, and one in Germany, and one in America. 95% of all sales classified for such need is for this equipment. The progress of the American organization has been no less marked, regardless of times, seasons, or conditions, that it is freely predicted that the American factory will outstrip all of the others. This illustrates the present sales strength of this Electrolux mechanical invention [not refrigeration.]

Those who are inexperienced in specialty sales work must take the necessary time to learn and acquire skill. During this time they must be willing and satisfied to get along on nominal earnings of $125.00 to $200.00 per month [some men $105.00 to $150.00]. We cannot tell you how long it will take you to do this—whether one month, 3 months, or 6 months—but we do know that if you have the qualifications to satisfy our requirements, you should, with reasonable study, practice, good character and diligence, be genuinely assured of making a success which will afford you the higher earnings.

If you can learn from men who prove it with pay-checks, and will put effort and character into your work, come in for a personal interview with an executive of this company Monday morning, April 24, 9 to 10. Those who are accepted will be fully trained without charge and immediately employed at once. Apply in person only, at Parlor B, Morrison hotel, Chicago.

Applications will also be received at this time for certain of our out-of-town offices, including Peoria, Davenport, Danville, Rockford, Springfield, Champaign.
